INTRODUCTION

The make up of this publication varies somewhat, in its plan, from that usually adopted in the preparation of a work of this kind.

In the front portion of the book—immediately following the roster of State officers and employes—will be found an official register of the several counties, which is given a preferential position as a matter of convenience and because it will be referred to more frequently than any other part of the book. This register contains a list of county and court officers and boards, attorneys, political committees, newspapers, banks, district officers and post offices. After the lists were prepared, carbon copies were sent to the circuit and county clerks of each county for any revision or correction that might be found necessary. When the lists were returned, the original manuscript from which the book was printed was corrected in accordance with the changes that had been made.

The data as to National banks was obtained from the last published report of the Comptroller of the Treasury; as to State banks, from the last report of the Commissioner of Banking.

Information as to newspapers was compiled from one of the oldest established newspaper directories published in the country.

The primary election law enacted by the Legislature of 1915 provides that party committeemen shall be elected at the primary election to be held on the 6th day of June of the present year, and their terms of office will continue for four years from the 15th day of June. Under this new system committeemen will become elective party officers and it is proper that their names should have a place in a book of this character. In order to give a practical test of the value of the publication of such matter, the compiler—with the assistance of party chairmen and secretaries throughout the State—is able to present in the register or directory division of this volume, complete lists of the officers and members of the party committees in each county. In a future edition it is the intention to substitute for the old committees the new county committees that will be chosen in June; also to include in that publication a complete list of the officers and members of the new State, Congressional and Senatorial committees.

For assistance rendered in connection with the publication of this work the compiler is under obligations to the various officers and heads of departments of the State government, to the clerks of the circuit and county courts, and to the chairmen and secretaries of the party committees in each county.

Ex-Governor Dawson, a member of the Public Service Commission, died on the 12th day of March. One of the last official duties he performed was to prepare the admirable digest of the Public Service Commission law that appears in this volume.

Charleston, West Virginia, April 20, 1916.

DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE.

In Congress July 4, 1776.

THE UNANIMOUS DECLARATION OF THE THIRTEEN UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

(Adopted by the Continental Congress July 2, and authenticated and proclaimed July 4, 1776.)

When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bonds which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitled them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident; that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness; that to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that, whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it, and to institute a new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and, accordingly, all experience hath shown that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security. Such has been the patient sufferance of these colonies, and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former systems of government. The history of the present king of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these states. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world:

He has refused his assent to laws the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his governors to pass laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his assent should be obtained, and, when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless these people would relinquish the right of representation in the legislature—a right inestimable to them, and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the repository of their public records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved representative houses repeatedly for opposing, with manly firmness, his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused for a long time after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the legislative powers, incapable of annihilation, have returned to the people at large for their exercise; the state remaining, in the meantime, exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without and convulsions within.

He has endeavored to prevent the population of these states, for that purpose obstructing the laws for naturalization of foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migration hither and raising the conditions of new appropriations of lands.

He has obstructed the administration of justice by refusing his assent to laws for establishing judiciary powers.

He has made judges dependent on his will alone for the tenure of their offices and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in times of peace, standing armies, without the consent of our legislatures.

He has effected to render the military independent of, and superior to, the civil power.

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution and unacknowledged by our laws, giving his assent to their acts of pretended legislation—

For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us;

For protecting them, by a mock trial, from punishment for any murders which they should commit on the inhabitants of these states;

For cutting off our trade with all parts of the world;

For imposing taxes on us without our consent;

For depriving us, in many cases, of the benefits of trial by jury;

For transporting us beyond seas, to be tried for pretended offenses;

For abolishing the free system of English laws in a neighboring province: establishing therein an arbitrary government, and enlarging its boundaries, so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these colonies;

For taking away our charters, abolishing our most valuable laws, and altering fundamentally the forms of our governments;

For suspending our own legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated government here by declaring us out of his protection and waging war against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is, at this time, transporting large armies of foreign mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation and tyranny, already begun, with circumstances of cruelty, and perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow-citizens, taken captive on the high seas, to bear arms against their country, to become the executioners of their friends and brethren, or to fall themselves by their hands.

He has excited domestic insurrection amongst us, and has endeavored to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers the merciless Indian savages, whose known rule of warfare is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions.

In every stage of these oppressions we have petitioned for redress, in the most humble terms; our repeated petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A prince whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a tyrant is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Nor have we been wanting in attentions to our British brethren. We have warned them, from time to time of attempts, by their legislature, to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity; and we have conjured them, by the ties of our common kindred, to disavow these usurpations, which would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They, too, have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity which renounces our separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, enemies in war, in peace friends.

We, therefore, the representatives of the United States of America, in general congress assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do in the name and by the authority of the good people of these colonies, solemnly publish and declare, that these united colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown, and that all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved; and that, as free and independent states, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and do all other acts and things which independent states may of right do. And for the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor.

The said states hereby severally enter into a firm league of friendship with each other for their common defense, the security of their liberties, and their mutual and general welfare, binding themselves to assist each other against all force offered to or attacks made upon them, or any of them, on account of religion, sovereignty, trade or any other pretense whatever.

ART. 4. The better to secure and perpetuate mutual friendship and intercourse among the people of the different states in this union, the free inhabitants of each of these states, paupers, vagabonds and fugitives from justice excepted, shall be entitled to all privileges and immunities of free citizens in the several states; and the people of each state shall have free ingress and egress to and from any other state, and shall enjoy therein all the privileges of trade and commerce, subject to the same duties, impositions and restrictions as the inhabitants thereof respectively; provided that such restrictions shall not extend so far as to prevent the removal of property imported into any state to any other state of which the owner is an inhabitant; provided, also, that no imposition, duties or restrictions, shall be laid by any state on the property of the United States, or either of them.

If any person guilty of or charged with treason, felony or other high misdemeanor in any state shall flee from justice, and be found in any of the United States, he shall upon demand of the governor or executive power of the state from which he fled, be delivered up and removed to the state having jurisdiction of his offense.

Full faith and credit shall be given in each of these states to the records, acts and judicial proceedings of the courts and magistrates of every other state.

ART. 5. For the more convenient management of the general interests of the United States, delegates shall be annually appointed, in such manner as the legislature of each state shall direct, to meet in congress on the first Monday in November, in every year, with a power reserved to each state to recall its delegates, or any of them, at any time within the year, and to send others in their stead for the remainder of the year.

No state shall be represented in congress by less than two, nor by more than seven, members; and no person shall be capable of being a delegate for more than three years in any term of six year: nor shall any person, being a delegate, be capable of holding any office under the United States for which he, or another for his benefit, receives any salary, fees or emolument of any kind.

Each state shall maintain its own delegates in a meeting of the states, and while they act as members of the committee of the states.

In determining questions in the United States in congress assembled, each state shall have one vote.

Freedom of speech and debate in congress shall not be impeached or questioned in any court or place out of congress, and the members of congress shall be protected in their persons from arrests and imprisonments, during the time of their going to and from and attendance on congress, except for treason, felony or breach of the peace.

ART. 6. No state, without the consent of the United States in congress assembled, shall send any embassy to, or receive any embassy from, or enter into any conference, agreement, alliance or treaty with any king, prince or state; nor shall any person holding any office of profit or trust under the United States, or any of them, accept of any present, emolument, office or title of any kind whatever, from any king, prince or foreign state; nor shall the United States in congress assembled, or any of them, grant any title of nobility.

No two or more states shall enter into any treaty, confederation or alliance whatever between them, without the consent of the United States in congress assembled, specifying accurately the purposes for which the same is to be entered into, and how long it shall continue.

No state shall lay any imposts or duties which may interfere with any stipulations in treaties, entered into by the United States in congress assembled, with any king, prince or state, in pursuance of any treaties already proposed by congress, to the courts of France and Spain.

No vessels of war shall be kept up in time of peace by any state, except such number only as shall be deemed necessary by the United States, in congress assembled, for the defense of such state, or its trade, nor shall any body of forces be kept up by any state, in time of peace, except such number only as in the judgment of the United States, in congress assembled, shall be deemed requisite to garrison the forts necessary for the defense of such state, but every state shall always keep up a well regulated and disciplined militia, sufficiently armed and accoutred, and shall provide and constantly have ready for use, in public stores, a due number of field-pieces and tents, and a proper quantity of arms, ammunition and camp equipage.

No state shall engage in any war, without the consent of the United States in congress assembled, unless such state be actually invaded by enemies, or shall have received certain advice of a resolution being formed by some nation of Indians to invade such state, and the danger is so imminent as not to admit of a delay till the United States, in congress assembled, can be consulted; nor shall any state grant commissions to any ships, or vessels of war, nor letters of marque or reprisal, except it be after a declaration of war by the United States, in congress assembled, and then only against the kingdom or state, and the subjects thereof, against which war has been so declared, and under such regulations as shall be established by the United States, in congress assembled, unless such state be infested by pirates, in which case vessels of war may be fitted out for that occasion, and kept so long as the danger shall continue, or until the United States, in congress assembled, shall determine otherwise.

ART. 7. When land forces are raised by any state for the common defense, all officers of or under the rank of colonel shall be appointed by the legislature of each state, respectively, by whom such forces shall be raised, or in such manner as such state shall direct, and all vacancies shall be filled up by the state which first made the appointment.

ART. 8. All charges of war, and all other expenses that shall be incurred for the common defense or general welfare, and allowed by the United States in congress assembled, shall be defrayed out of a common treasury, which shall be supplied by the several states, in proportion to the value of all land within each state, granted to, or surveyed for, any person, as such land and the building and improvements thereon, shall be estimated, according to such mode as the United States in congress assembled shall, from time to time, direct and appoint.

The taxes for paying that proportion shall be laid and levied by the authority and direction of the legislatures of the several states within the time agreed upon by the United States in congress assembled.

ART. 9. The United States, in congress assembled, shall have the sole and exclusive right and power of determining on peace and war, except in the cases mentioned in the sixth article; of sending and receiving ambassadors, entering into treaties and alliances, provided that no treaty of commerce shall be made whereby the legislative power of the respective states shall be restrained from imposing such imposts and duties on foreigners as their own people are subjected to, or from prohibiting the exportation or importation of any species of goods or commodities whatsoever; of establishing rules for deciding, in all cases, what captures on land or water shall be legal, and in what manner prizes taken by land or naval forces in the service of the United States shall be divided or appropriated; of granting letters of marque and reprisal in times of peace; appointing courts for the trial of piracies and felonies committed on the high seas, and establishing courts for receiving and determining finally appeals in all cases of capture; provided that no member of congress shall be appointed a judge of any of the said courts.

The United States in congress assembled, shall also be the last resort on appeal in all disputes and differences now subsisting, or that hereafter may arise, between two or more states concerning boundary, jurisdiction, or any other cause whatever which authority shall always be exercised in the manner following: Whenever the legislature or executive authority or lawful agent of any state in controversy with another shall present a petition, to congress, stating the matter in question and praying for a hearing, notice thereof shall be given by order of congress to the legislative or executive authority of the other state in controversy, and a day assigned for the appearance of the parties by their lawful agent, who shall then be directed to appoint, by joint consent, commissioners or judges to constitute a court for hearing and determining of the matter in question; but, if they cannot agree, congress shall name three persons out of each of the United States, and from the list of such persons each party shall alternately strike out one, the petitioners beginning, until the number shall be reduced to thirteen, and from that number not less than seven nor more than nine names, as congress shall direct, shall, in the presence of congress, be drawn out by lot, and the person whose names shall be so drawn, or any five of them, shall be commissioners or judges to hear and finally determine the controversy, so always as a major part of the judges who shall hear the cause shall agree in the determination; and if either party shall neglect to attend at the day appointed without showing reasons which congress shall judge sufficient; or, being present shall refuse to strike, the congress shall proceed to nominate three persons out of each state, and the secretary of congress shall strike in behalf of such party absent or refusing; and the judgment and sentence of the court to be appointed in the manner before prescribed shall be final and conclusive; and if any of the parties shall refuse to submit to the authority of such court, or to appear or defend their claim or cause, the court shall nevertheless proceed to pronounce sentence, or judgment which shall in like manner be final and decisive; the judgment or sentence and other proceedings being in either case transmitted to congress, and lodged among the acts of congress, for the security of the parties concerned; provided that every commissioner before he sits in judgment, shall take an oath, to be administered by one of the judges of the supreme or superior court of the state where the cause shall be tried, "well and truly to hear and determine the matter in question, according to the best of his judgment, without favor, affection or hope of reward;" provided, also, that no state shall be deprived of territory for the benefit of the United States.

All controversies concerning the private right of soil, claimed under different grants of two or more states whose jurisdiction, as they may respect such lands, and the states which passed such grants, are adjusted, the said grants or either of them being at the same time claimed to have originated antecedent to such settlement of jurisdiction, shall, on the petition of either party to the congress of the United States, be finally determined, as near as may be, in the same manner as before prescribed for deciding disputes respecting territorial jurisdiction between different states.

The United States in congress assembled, shall also have the sole and exclusive right and power of regulating the alloy and value of coin struck by their own authority, or by that of the respective states, fixing the standard of weights and measures throughout the United States; regulating the trade and managing all affairs with the Indians, not members of any of the states; provided, that the legislative right of any state within its own limits, be not infringed or violated; establishing and regulating post offices from one state to another, throughout all the United States, and exacting such postage on the papers passing through the same as may be requisite to defray the expenses of the said office; appointing all officers of the land forces in the service of the United States, excepting regimental officers; appointing all the officers of the naval forces, and commissioning all officers whatever in the service of the United States; making rules for the government and regulation of the said land and naval forces, and directing their operations.

The United States, in congress assembled, shall have authority to appoint a committee, to sit in the recess of congress, to be denominated "A Committee of the States," and to consist of one delegate from each state, and to appoint such other committees and civil officers as may be necessary for managing the general affairs of the United States under their direction; to appoint one of their number to preside; provided, that no person be allowed to serve in the office of president more than one year in any term of three years; to ascertain the necessary sums of money to be raised for the service of the United States, and to appropriate and apply the same for defraying the public expenses; to borrow money or emit bills on the credit of the United States, transmitting every half year to the respective states an account of the sums of money so borrowed or emitted; to build and equip a navy; to agree upon the number of land forces, and to make requisitions from each state for its quota; in proportion to the number of white inhabitants in such state, which requisition shall be binding; and thereupon the legislature of each state shall appoint the regimental officers, raise the men, and clothe, arm and equip them, in a soldier-like manner, at the expense of the United States; and the officers and men, so clothed, armed and equipped, shall march to the place appointed, and within the time agreed on, by the United States, in congress assembled, but if the United States, in congress assembled, shall, on consideration of circumstances, judge proper that any state should not raise men, or should raise a smaller number than its quota, and that any other state should raise a greater number of men than the quota thereof, such extra number shall be raised, officered, clothed, armed and equipped in the same manner as the quota of such state, unless the legislature of such state shall judge that such extra number cannot be safely spared out of the same, in which case they shall raise, officer, clothe, arm and equip as many of such extra number as they judge can be safely spared, and the officers and men, so clothed, armed and equipped, shall march to the place appointed, and within the time agreed on, by the United States, in congress assembled.

The United States, in congress assembled, shall never engage in a war, nor grant letters of marque and reprisal in time of peace, nor enter into any treaties or alliances, nor coin money, nor regulate the value thereof, nor ascertain the sums and expenses necessary for the defense and welfare of the United States, or any of them, nor emit bills, nor borrow money on the credit of the United States, nor appropriate money, nor agree upon the number of vessels of war to be built or purchased, or the number of land or sea forces to be raised, nor appoint a commander-in-chief of the army, or navy, unless nine states assent to the same, nor shall a question on any other point, except for adjourning from day to day, be determined, unless by the votes of a majority of the United States, in congress assembled.

The congress of the United States shall have power to adjourn to any time within the year, and to any place within the United States so that no period of adjournment be for a longer duration than the space of six months, and shall publish the journal of their proceedings monthly except such parts thereof relating to treaties, alliances or military operations as in their judgment require secrecy; and the yeas and nays of the delegates of each state, on any question, shall be entered on the journal, when it is desired by any delegate; and the delegates of a state or any of them, at his or their request, shall be furnished with a transcript of the said journal, except such parts as are above excepted, to lay before the legislature of the several states.

ART. 10. The committee of the states, or any nine of them, shall be authorized to execute, in the recess of congress, such of the powers of congress as the United States, in congress assembled by the consent of nine states shall, from time to time, think expedient to vest them with; provided that no power be delegated to the said committee, for the exercise of which by the articles of confederation, the voice of nine states, in the congress of the United States assembled, is requisite.

ART. 11. Canada acceding to this confederation and joining in the measures of the United States, shall be admitted into and entitled to all the advantages of this union; but no other colony shall be admitted into the same, unless such admission be agreed to by nine states.

ART. 12. All bills of credit emitted, moneys borrowed and debts contracted by or under the authority of congress, before the assembling of the United States in pursuance of the present confederation, shall be deemed and considered as a charge against the United States, for payment and satisfaction whereof the said United States and the public faith are hereby solemnly pledged.

ART. 13. Every state shall abide by the determination of the United States, in congress assembled, on all questions which by this confederation are submitted to them. And the articles of this confederation shall be inviolably observed by every state, and the union shall be perpetual.

nor shall any alteration at any time hereafter be made in any of them, unless such alteration be agreed to in a congress of the United States, and be afterwards confirmed by the legislature of every state.

And whereas it hath pleased the great Governor of the world to incline the hearts of the legislature we respectfully represent in Congress to approve of, and to authorize us to ratify, the said articles of confederation and perpetual union. Know ye, that we, the undersigned delegates, by virtue of the power and authority to us given for that purpose, do, by these presents, in the name and in behalf of our respective constituents, fully and entirely ratify and confirm each and every of the said articles of confederation and perpetual union, and all and singular the matters and things therein contained. And we do further solemnly plight and engage the faith of our respective constituents that they shall abide by the determinations of the United States, in congress assembled, on all questions which by the said confederation are submitted to them; and that the articles thereof shall be inviolably observed by the states we respectively represent, and that the union shall be perpetual. In witness whereof, we have hereunto set our hands, in congress.

ARTICLE 1.

Section 1. All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a congress of the United States, which shall consist of a senate and house of representatives.

Sec. 2. (1)* The house of representatives shall be composed of members chosen every second year by the people of the several states; and the electors in each state shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the state legislature.

(2) No person shall be a representative who shall not have attained to the age of twenty-five years, and been seven years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that state in which he shall be chosen.

(3) [Representative and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states which may be included within the union according to their respective numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole number of free persons, including those bound to service for a term of years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three-fifths of all other persons.]†

The actual enumeration shall be made within three years after the first meeting of the congress of the United States, and within every subsequent term of ten years, in such manner as they shall by law direct. The number of representatives shall not exceed one for every thirty thousand, but each state shall have at least one representative, and, until such enumeration shall be made, the state of New Hampshire shall be entitled to choose three, Massachusetts eight, Rhode Island and Providence Plantations one, Connecticut five, New York six, New Jersey four, Pennsylvania eight, Delaware one, Maryland six, Virginia ten, North Carolina five, South Carolina five, and Georgia three.

(4) When vacancies happen in the representation from any state, the executive authority thereof shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies.

(5) The house of representatives shall choose their speaker and other officers, and shall have the sole power of impeachment.

Sec. 3. (1) The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two senators from each state, chosen by the legislature thereof for six years; and each senator shall have one vote.

(2) Immediately after they shall be assembled in consequence of the first election, they shall be divided as equally as may be into three classes. The seats of the senators of the first class shall be vacated at the expiration of the second year, of the second class at the expiration of the fourth year, and of the third class at the expiration of the sixth year, so that one-third may be chosen every second year; and if vacancies happen, by resignation or otherwise, during the recess of the legislature of any state, the executive thereof may make temporary appointments until the next meeting of the legislature, which shall then fill such vacancies.

(3) No person shall be a senator who shall not have attained to the age of thirty years, and been nine years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that state from which he shall be chosen.

(4) The vice-president of the United States shall be president of the senate, but shall have no vote, unless they be equally divided.

(5) The senate shall choose their other officers, and also a president pro tempore, in the absence of the vice-president, or when he shall exercise the office of president of the United States.

(6) The senate shall have the sole power to try all impeachments. When sitting for that purpose they shall be on oath, or affirmation. When the president of the United States is tried, the chief justice shall preside; and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present.

(7) Judgment in cases of impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust or profit under the United States; but the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment, according to law.

Sec. 4. (1) The times, places and manner of holding elections for senators and representatives shall be prescribed in each state by the legislature thereof, but the congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to the places of choosing senators.

(2) The congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meeting shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by law appoint a different day.

Sec. 5. (1) Each house shall be the judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its own members, and a majority of each shall constitute a quorum to do business; but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members, in such manner and under such penalties as each house may provide.

(2) Each house may determine the rules of its proceedings, punish its members for disorderly behavior, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member.

(3) Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and from time to time publish the same, excepting such parts as may in their judgment require secrecy; and the yeas and nays of the members of either house on any question shall, at the desire of one-fifth of those present, be entered on the journal.

(4) Neither house, during the session of congress, shall, without the consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which the two houses shall be sitting.

Sec. 6. (1) The senators and representatives shall receive a compensation for their services, to be ascertained by law, and paid out of the treasury of the United States. They shall in all cases, except treason, felony and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the sessions of their respective houses, and in going to and returning from the same; and for any speech or debate in either house they shall not be questioned in any other place.

(2) No senator or representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States, which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased, during such time; and no person holding any office under the United States shall be a member of either house during his continuance in office.

Sec. 7. (1) All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the house of representatives, but the senate may propose or concur with amendments, as on other bills.

(2) Every bill which shall have passed the house of representatives and the senate, shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the president of the United States; if he approve he shall sign it, but if not he shall return it, with his objections, to that house in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the objections at large on their journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If after such reconsideration two-thirds of that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and, if approved by two-thirds of that house, it shall become a law. But in all such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house, respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the president within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law, in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the congress by their adjournment prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law.

(3) Every order, resolution or vote to which the concurrence of the senate and house of representatives may be necessary (except on a question of adjournment) shall be presented to the president of the United States, and, before the same shall take effect, shall be approved by him, or, being disapproved by him, shall be repassed by two-thirds of the senate and house of representatives, according to the rules and limitations prescribed in the case of a bill.

Sec. 8. The congress shall have power:—

ARTICLE II.

Section 1. (1) The executive power shall be vested in a president of the United States of America. He shall hold his office during the term of four years, and, together with the vice-president chosen for the same term, be elected as follows:

(2) Each state shall appoint, in such manner as the legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors, equal to the whole number of senators and representatives to which the state may be entitled in the congress; but no senator or representative, or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States, shall be appointed an elector.

The electors shall meet in their respective states and vote by ballot for two persons of whom one at least shall not be an inhabitant of the same state with themselves. And they shall make a list of all the persons voted for, and the number of votes for each; which list they shall sign and certify, and transmit sealed to the seat of the government of the United States, directed to the president of the senate. The president of the senate shall, in the presence of the senate and house of representatives, open all the certificates, and the votes shall then be counted. The person having the greatest number of votes shall be the president, if such number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed; and if there be more than one who have such majority, and have an equal number of votes, then the house of representatives shall immediately choose, by ballot, one of them for president; and if no person have a majority, then, from the five highest on the list, the said house shall, in like manner, choose the president. But in choosing the president, the votes shall be taken by states, the representation from each state having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the states; and a majority of all the states shall be necessary to a choice. In every case, after the choice of the president, the person having the greatest number of votes of the electors shall be the vice-president. But if there should remain two or more who have equal votes, the senate shall choose from them, by ballot, the vice-president.

(3) The congress may determine the time of choosing the electors,

and the day on which they shall give their votes; which day shall be the same throughout the United States.

(4) No person except a natural born citizen, or a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of this constitution, shall be eligible to the office of president, neither shall any person be eligible to that office who shall not have attained to the age of thirty-five years, and been fourteen years a resident within the United States.

(5) In case of the removal of the president from office, or of his death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the vice-president, and the congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation or inability, both of the president and vice-president, declaring what officer shall then act as president, and such officer shall act accordingly until the disability be removed or a president shall be elected.

(6) The president shall, at stated times, receive for his services a compensation, which shall neither be increased nor diminished during the period for which he shall have been elected, and he shall not receive within that period any other emolument from the United States or any of them.

(7) Before he enter on the execution of his office, he shall take the following oath or affirmation:

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect, and defend the constitution of the United States."

Sec. 2. (1) The president shall be commander-in-chief of the army and navy of the United States, and of the militia of the several states when called into the actual service of the United States; he may require the opinion in writing of the principal officer in each of the executive departments, upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices; and he shall have power to grant reprieves and pardons for offenses against the United States, except in cases of impeachment.

(2) He shall have power, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the senators present concur; and he shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the senate shall appoint, ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, judges of the supreme court, and all other officers of the United States, whose appointments are not herein otherwise provided for and which shall be established by law. But the congress may, by law, vest the appointment of such inferior officers as they think proper in the president alone, in the courts of law, or in the heads of departments.

(3) The president shall have power to fill all vacancies that may happen during the recess of the senate, by granting commissions, which shall expire at the end of their next session.

Sec. 3. He shall from time to time give to the congress information of the state of the Union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient. He may, on extraordinary occasions, convene both houses, or either of them, and, in case of disagreement between them with respect to the time of adjournment, he may adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper. He shall receive ambassadors and other public ministers. He shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed; and shall commission all the officers of the United States.

Sec. 4. The president, vice-president, and all civil officers of the United States, shall be removed from office on impeachment for, and conviction of treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors.

ARTICLE III.

Section 1. The judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one supreme court, and in such inferior courts as the congress may, from time to time, ordain and establish. The judges, both of the supreme and inferior courts, shall hold their offices during good behavior, and shall, at stated times, receive for their services a compensation, which shall not be diminished during their continuance in office.

Sec. 2. (1) The judicial power shall extend to all cases in law and equity arising under this constitution, the laws of the United States, and treaties made, or which shall be made, under their authority; to all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls; to all cases of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction; to controversies to which the United States shall be a party; to controversies between two or more states, between a state and citizens of another state, between citizens of different states, between citizens of the same claiming lands under grants of different states, and between a state, or the citizens thereof, and foreign states, citizens or subjects.

(2) In all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, and those in which a state shall be a party, the supreme court shall have original jurisdiction. In all other cases before mentioned, the supreme court shall have appellate jurisdiction, both as to law and fact, with such exceptions and under such regulations as the congress shall make.

(3) The trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury, and such trial shall be held in the state where the said crimes shall have been committed; but when not committed within any state, the trial shall be at such place or places as the congress may by law have directed.

Sec. 3. (1) Treason against the United States shall consist only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court.

(2) The congress shall have power to declare the punishment of treason, but no attainder of treason shall work corruption of blood, or forfeiture, except during the life of the person attained.

ARTICLE IV.

Section 1. Full faith and credit shall be given in each state to the public acts, records and judicial proceedings of every other state. And the congress may, by general laws, prescribe the manner in which such acts, records and proceedings shall be proved, and the effect thereof.

Sec. 2. (1) The citizens of each state shall be entitled to all privileges and immunities of citizens in the several states.

(2) A person charged in any state with treason, felony or other crime, who shall flee from justice and be found in another state shall on demand of the executive authority of the state from which he fled, be delivered up, to be removed to the state having jurisdiction of the crime.

(3) No person held to service or labor in one state, under the laws thereof, escaping into another, shall, in consequence of any law or regulation therein, be discharged from such service or labor, but shall be delivered up on claim of the party to whom such service or labor may be due.

Sec. 3. (1) New states may be admitted by the congress into this Union; but no new state shall be formed or erected within the jurisdiction of any other state, nor any state be formed by the junction of two or more states, or parts of states, without the consent of the legislatures of the states concerned, as well as of the congress.

(2) The congress shall have power to dispose of, and make all needful rules and regulations respecting, the territory or other property belonging to the United States; and nothing in this constitution shall be so construed as to prejudice any claims of the United States or of any particular state.

Sec. 4. The United States shall guarantee to every state in this Union a republican form of government, and shall protect each of them against invasion; and, on application of the legislature, or of the executive (when the legislature cannot be convened), against domestic violence.

ARTICLE V.

The congress, whenever two-thirds of both houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to this constitution, or on the application of the legislatures of two-thirds of the several states, shall call a convention for proposing amendments, which, in either case, shall be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of this constitution, when ratified by the legislature of three-fourths of the several states, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the congress; provided, that no amendment which may be made prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and eight shall in any manner affect the first and fourth clauses in the ninth section of the first article; and that no state, without its consent, shall be deprived of its equal suffrage in the senate.

ARTICLE VI.

(1) All debts contracted and engagements entered into before the adoption of this constitution shall be as valid against the United States under this constitution as under the confederation.

(2) This constitution, and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof, and all treaties made, or which shall be made, under the authority of the United States, shall be the supreme law of the land; and the judges in every state shall be bound thereby, anything in the constitution or laws of any state to the contrary notwithstanding.

(3) The senators and representatives before mentioned, and the members of the several state legislatures, and all executive and judicial officers, both of the United States and of the several states, shall be bound by oath or affirmation to support this constitution; but no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States.

ARTICLE VII.

The ratification of the conventions of nine states shall be sufficient for the establishment of this constitution between the states so ratifying the same.

Done in convention, by the unanimous consent of the states present, the seventeenth day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eighty-seven, and of the independence of the United States of America the twelfth. In witness whereof, we have hereunto subscribed our names.

THE DISMEMBERMENT OF VIRGINIA

A Chronological Arrangement of Historical Documents Relating to the Secession of Virginia, the Establishment of the Restored Government, and the Formation of a New State

THE ORDINANCE OF SECESSION.

Adopted by the Virginia Convention, at Richmond, April 17, 1861.

An Ordinance to Repeal the Ratification of the Constitution of the United States of America, by the State of Virginia, and to Resume all the rights and powers granted under said Constitution.

The people of Virginia, in their ratification of the Constitution of the United States of America, adopted by them in Convention on the twenty-fifth day of June, in the year of our Lord, one thousand seven hundred and eighty-eight, having declared that the powers granted under the said Constitution were derived from the people of the United States, and might be resumed whensoever the same should be perverted to their injury and oppression, and the Federal Government having perverted said powers, not only to the injury of the people of Virginia, but to the oppression of the Southern Slaveholding States.

Now, therefore, we, the people of Virginia, do declare and ordain, That the ordinance adopted by the people of this State in Convention, on the twenty-fifth day of June, in the year of our Lord, one thousand seven hundred and eighty-eight, whereby the Constitution of the United States of America was ratified; and all acts of the General Assembly of this State ratifying or adopting amendments to said Constitution, are hereby repealed and abrogated; that the union between the State of Virginia and the other States under the Constitution aforesaid is hereby dissolved, and that the State of Virginia is in full possession and exercise of all the rights of sovereignty which belong and appertain to a free and independent State.

And they do further declare, That said Constitution of the United States of America, is no longer binding on any of the citizens of this State.

This Ordinance shall take effect and be an act of this day, when ratified by a majority of the votes of the people of this State, cast at a poll to be taken thereon, on the fourth Thursday in May next, in pursuance of a schedule hereinafter to be enacted.

THE CLARKSBURG PROTEST.

Preamble and Resolutions Adopted by a Mass Convention, April 22, 1861.

Whereas, The Convention now in session in this State, called by the legislature, the members of which had been elected twenty months before said call, at a time when no such action as the assemblage of a convention by legislative enactment was contemplated by the people, or expected by the members they elected in May, 1859, at which time no one anticipated the troubles recently brought upon our common country by the extraordinary action of the State authorities of South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Florida, Louisiana and Texas, has, contrary to the expectation of a large majority of the people of this State, adopted an ordinance withdrawing Virginia from the Federal Union; and

Whereas, By the law calling said Convention, it is expressly declared that no such ordinance shall have force or effect, or be of binding obligation upon the people of this State, until the same shall be ratified by the voters at the polls; and

Whereas, We have seen with regret that demonstrations of hostility, unauthorized by law, and inconsistent with the duty of law-abiding citizens, still owing allegiance to the Federal Government, have been made by a portion of the people of this State against the said Government; and

Whereas, The Governor of this Commonwealth has, by proclamation, undertaken to decide for the people of Virginia, that which they have reserved to themselves, the right to decide by their votes at the polls, and has called upon the volunteer soldiery of this State to report to him and hold themselves in readiness to make war upon the Federal Government, which Government is Virginia's Government, and must in law and of right continue so to be until the people of Virginia shall, by their votes, and through the ballot-box, that great conservator of a free people's liberties, decide otherwise; and

Whereas, The peculiar situation of Northwestern Virginia, separated as it is by natural barriers from the rest of the State, precludes all hope of timely succor in the hour of danger from other portions of the State, and demands that we should look to and provide for our own safety in the fearful emergency in which we now find ourselves placed by the action of our State authorities, who have disregarded the great fundamental principle upon which our beautiful system of Government is based, to-wit: "That all governmental power is derived from the consent of the governed," and have without consulting the people, placed this State in hostility to the Federal Government by seizing upon its ships and obstructing the channel at the mouth of Elizabeth river; by wresting from the Federal officers at Norfolk and Richmond the custom houses; by tearing from the Nation's property the Nation's flag, and putting in its place a bunting, the emblem of rebellion, and by marching upon the National Armory at Harper's Ferry; thus inaugurating a war without consulting those in whose name they profess to act; and that her people should be united in action, and harmonious in purpose—there being a perfect identity of interests in times of war as well as in peace. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That it be and is hereby recommended to the people in each and all of the counties composing Northwestern Virginia to appoint delegates, not less than five in number, of their wisest, best, and discreetest men, to meet in Convention on the 13th day of May next, to consult and determine upon such action as the people of Northwestern Virginia should take in the present fearful emergency.

Resolved, That Hon. John S. Carlisle, Waldo P. Goff, Hon. Charles S. Lewis, John J. Davis, Solomon S. Fleming, Lot Bowen, Dr. William Dunkin, William E. Lyon, Felix Sturm and James Lynch, be and are hereby appointed delegates to represent this county in said Convention.

THE FIRST WHEELING CONVENTION.

Report of the Committee on State and Federal Relations, Adopted May 15, 1861.

1. Resolved, That in our deliberate judgment the ordinance passed by the Convention of Virginia, on the 17th day of April, 1861, known as the ordinance of secession, by which said Convention, undertook in the name of the State of Virginia, to repeal the ratification of the Constitution of the United States by this state, and to resume all the rights and powers granted under said Constitution, is unconstitutional, null and void.

2. Resolved, That the schedule attached to the ordinance of secession suspending and prohibiting the election for members of Congress from this State, is a manifest usurpation of power to which we ought not to submit.

3. Resolved, That the agreement of the 24th of April, 1861, between the Commissioner of the Confederate States and this State, and the ordinance of the 25th of April, 1861, approving and ratifying said agreement by which the whole military force and military operations, offensive and defensive, of this Commonwealth are placed under the chief control and direction of the President of the Confederate States, upon the same principles, basis and footing as if the Commonwealth were now a member of said Confederacy, and all the acts of the executive officers of our State in pursuance of said agreement and ordinance are plain and palpable violations of the Constitution of the United States, and are utterly subversive of the rights and liberties of the people of Virginia.

4. Resolved, That we earnestly urge and entreat the citizens of the State everywhere, but more especially in the Western section, to be prompt at the polls on the 23rd inst.; and to impress upon every voter the duty of voting in condemnation of the Ordinance of Secession, in the hope that we may not be involved in the ruin to be occasioned by its adoption, and with the view to demonstrate the position of the West on the question of secession.

5. Resolved, That we earnestly recommend to the citizens of Western Virginia to vote for members of the Congress of the United States, in their several districts, in the exercise of the right secured to us by the Constitutions of the United States and the State of Virginia.

6. Resolved, That we also recommend to the citizens of the several counties to vote at said election for such persons as entertain the opinions expressed in the foregoing resolutions, for members of the Senate and the House of Delegates of our State.

7. Resolved, That in view of the geographical, social, commercial and industrial interests of Northwestern Virginia, this Convention are constrained in giving expression to the opinion of their constituents to declare that the Virginia Convention in assuming to change the relation of the State of Virginia to the Federal Government, have not only acted unwisely and unconstitutionally, but have adopted a policy utterly ruinous to all the material interests of our section, severing all our social ties, and drying up all the channels of our trade and prosperity.

8. Resolved, That in the event of the Ordinance of Secession being ratified by a vote, we recommend to the people of the counties here represented, and all others, disposed to co-operate with us, to appoint on the 4th day of June, 1861, delegates to a General Convention, to meet on the 11th of that month, at such place as may be designated by the Committee hereinafter provided, to devise such measures and take such action as the safety and welfare of the people they represent may demand,—each county to appoint a number of Representatives to said Convention equal to double the number to which it will be entitled in the next House of Delegates; and the Senators and Delegates to be elected on the 23rd inst., by the counties referred to, to the next General Assembly of Virginia, and who concur in the views of this Convention, to be entitled to seats in the said Convention as members thereof.

9. Resolved, That inasmuch as it is a conceded political axiom, that government is founded on the consent of the governed and is instituted for their good, and it cannot be denied that the course pursued by the ruling power in the State, is utterly subversive and destructive of our interests, we believe we may rightfully and successfully appeal to the proper authorities of Virginia, to permit us peacefully and lawfully to separate from the residue of the State, and form ourselves into a government to give effect to the wishes, views and interests of our constituents.

10. Resolved, That the public authorities be assured that the people of the North West will exert their utmost power to preserve the peace, which they feel satisfied they can do, until an opportunity is afforded to see if our present difficulties cannot receive a peaceful solution; and we express the earnest hope that no troops of the Confederate States be introduced among us, as we believe it would be eminently calculated to produce civil war.

11. Resolved, That in the language of Washington in his letter of the 17th of September, 1787, to the President of Congress; "in all our deliberations on this subject we have kept steadily in view that which appears to us the greatest interest of every true American, the consolidation of our Union, in which is involved our prosperity, felicity, safety, and perhaps our national existence." And therefore we will maintain and defend the Constitution of the United States and the laws made in pursuance thereof, and all officers acting thereunder in the lawful discharge of their respective duties.

12. Resolved, That John S. Carlile, James S. Wheat, Chester D. Hubbard, Francis H. Pierpont, Campbell Tarr, George R. Latham, Andrew Wilson, S. H. Woodward and James W. Paxton be a Central Committee to attend to all the matters connected with the objects of this Convention; and that they have power to assemble this Convention at any time they may think necessary.

13. Resolved, That the Central Committee be instructed to prepare an address to the people of Virginia in conformity with the foregoing resolutions and cause the same to be published and circulated as extensively as possible.

THE CENTRAL COMMITTEE'S ADDRESS.

In obedience to the thirteenth resolution of the Convention, which met in this city, on the 13th inst., we earnestly conjure you to enter actively and immediately upon the great work of preparing your neighbors and friends, as well as yourselves, for the firm, stern and decided stand necessary to be taken and adhered to at all hazards, and maintained at any and every cost, if we would preserve to ourselves and transmit to our posterity, that unity of government which constitutes us one people, which we justly regard as the palladium of our liberties and the main pillar in the edifice of our independence. In this way, and this way alone, we can save ourselves from the innumerable evils consequent upon secession and all the horrors of civil war.

Why should the people of North Western Virginia allow themselves to be dragged into the rebellion inaugurated by ambitious and heartless men, who have banded themselves together to destroy a government formed for you by your patriot fathers, and which has secured to you all the liberties consistent with the nature of man, and has, for near three-fourths of a century, sheltered you in sunshine and in storm, made you the admiration of the civilized world, and conferred upon you a title more honored, respected and revered, than that of King or Potentate—the title of an American citizen? Will you passively surrender it, and submit to be used by the conspirators engaged in this effort to enslave you, as their instruments by which your enslavement is to be effected?

Freemen who would remain free, must prove themselves worthy to be free and must themselves first strike the blow.

What is secession? A deed not to be accomplished in the broad glare of noon-day sun, but a deed of darkness, which had to be performed in secret conclave, by the reckless spirits who accomplished it, in contempt of the people, their masters under our form of government, but whom the leaders in this work of destruction determined to enslave.

What is secession? Bankruptcy, ruin, civil war, ending in a military despotism. Prior to the adoption of the Ordinance of Secession in Virginia, and to the passage by the Legislature of the bill calling a Convention, all was peace, and the great business interests of our State were uninterrupted. From the hour that it was proclaimed the Ordinance of Secession had been passed, business of every description has been paralyzed, State, corporation and individual credit is prostrate, and bankruptcy and ruin stare us in the face, and war, civil war, with all its attendant horrors, is upon us. Secession, all now see, is war. It is preceded by war, accompanied and sustained by war, ushered into being by war.

Who are to stand the brunt of this contest? Will it be those who have clamored loudest for secession, and who have done the most to bring on the present crisis? These are the first to flee from the very approach of danger. They hurry in every train and by every coach from the anticipated scenes of disturbance. Will the disunion majority of the Richmond Convention come into the ranks and shoulder the musket in the strife which they have inaugurated? They will keep at a respectful distance from danger.—They will fill the lucrative offices and secure the rich appointments which appertain to the new order of things. They will luxuriate on two or three or four hundred dollars per month, with horses, and servants, and rations to match, while the Union-loving people will be called upon, for the honor of Virginia and two shillings per day, to do the fighting and undergo the hardships of war. We are all Virginians, say they, the State must be sustained, and right or wrong, we must all fight for Virginia, etc.

What is it to fight for Virginia. What is it to sustain the State? Is it to urge her upon a course which leads to visible and gaping destruction? Is this the way and the only way in which we can testify our devotion to the Commonwealth? If those feelings which actuated our Revolutionary Fathers be not all dead in us, we shall exhibit our love for Virginia, by repudiating this tyrannical rule which the Richmond Convention has endeavored to impose, and suffer not ourselves to be sold like sheep from the shambles. The people yet hold their destinies in their own hands—it is for them to accept or reject a tyranny, worse many times, than that from which the war of '76 delivered us—not the tyranny of one man, but of many.

But, people of North Western Virginia, why should we thus permit ourselves to be tyrannized over, and made slaves of, by the haughty arrogance and wicked machinations of would-be Eastern Despots? Are we submissionists, craven cowards, who will yield to daring ambition, the rich legacy of Freedom, which we have inherited from our fathers, or are we men who know our rights, and knowing, dare maintain them? If we are, we will resist the usurpers and drive from our midst the rebellion sought to be forced upon us. We will, in the strength of our cause, resolute.

ly and determinedly stand by our rights and our liberties secured to us by the struggles of our Revolutionary Fathers, and the authors of the Constitution under which we have grown and prospered beyond all precedent in the world's history. We will maintain, protect and defend that Constitution and the Union with all our strength, and with all our powers, ever remembering that "Resistance to tyrants is obedience to God." We utterly repudiate the war sought to be enforced upon us without and against the consent and earnest protestations of the people who have not produced it, but who have, we regret to say, thus far offered no resistance, but have submitted to the filling up of armies and the quartering of troops in their midst; taking for the purpose, our young men who had, in a time of profound peace, and with no expectation of ever being called upon to aid in a rebellion, attached themselves to the volunteer corps of our State. The people, stunned by the magnitude of the crime, have, for a time, offered no resistance, but as returning reason enables them to perceive distinctly the objects and purposes of the vile perpetrators of this deed, their hearts swell within them, and already the cry has gone up from our mountains and our valleys, "Resistance to tyrants is obedience to God."

Let us urge you then, that our resistance may be effectual, to act in the spirit of the Resolutions here appended, adopted by the Convention, whose Committee we are. Let all our ends be directed to the creation of an organized resistance to the despotism of the tyrants, who have been in session in Richmond, and who are soon to re-assemble, that we may maintain our position in the Union under the flag of our common country, which has for so many years waved gracefully and protectingly over us, and which, when we behold upon its ample folds the stripes and the stars of Freedom, causes our bosoms to glow with patriotic heat, and our hearts to swell with honest love of country. That this flag, the symbol of our might, challenges our admiration, and justly claims our every effort against those who have dared to desecrate and dishonor it, we all admit. Let us then see that we take the proper measures to make effectual those efforts. The Convention to assemble on the 11th proximo, is looked to to organize our action. Its importance, its necessity, will at once strike your minds; take immediate steps therefore to secure for your representatives in Convention, your most determined, resolute, temperate and wisest men. We have already detained you too long, the time for action, prompt, firm and decided, has come. In the hope that our section will be that of a united people, we take leave of you, confidently calculating that you will give your body, soul, strength, mind, and all the energies of your nature to the work of saving your country from becoming the theatre of a bloody war, brought upon you without your consent and against your will. Let us show Mr. Ex-Secretary Cobb, now President of the Montgomery Congress, that we are not willing to recognize the transfer of us made by the Richmond Convention, nor do we intend to allow our borders, as he says they will be, to be made the theatre of this war.

Fellow-citizens, we ask you to read and ponder well the passages from Mr. Cobb's speech. We recite:

"The people of the Gulf States need have no apprehension; they might go on with their planting and their other business as usual, the war would not come to their section, its theatre would be along the borders of the Ohio River and in Virginia."

The Convention between Virginia and the Confederate States, by which the control of all military operations is placed in the hands of President Davis, insures this result.

Fellow-Citizens—"These are the times when we must not stop to count sacrifices and costs, where honor, and character, and self-preservation are put in issue." The patriot and sage, Daniel Webster, in a speech delivered at Washington, in 1851, at the laying of the cornerstone of the addition to the Capitol, spoke as follows:

"Ye men of the Blue Ridge, many thousands of whom are nearer to this capitol than the seat of Government of your own State, what do you think of breaking up this great association into fragments of States and of people? I know that some of you, and I believe that you all, would be almost as much shocked at the announcement of such a catastrophe, as if you were informed that the Blue Ridge itself would soon totter from its base—and ye men of Western Virginia, who occupy the slope from the Alleghenies to Ohio and Kentucky, what benefit do you propose to yourselves by disunion? If you secede, what do you 'secede' from, and what do you 'accede' to? Do you look for the current of the Ohio to change and to bring you and your commerce to the tide waters of Eastern rivers?—What man in his senses can suppose that you would remain part and parcel of Virginia a month after Virginia had ceased to be a part and parcel of the United States?"

Fellow-Citizens of Northwestern Virginia, the issue is with you. Your destiny is in your own hands. If you are worthy descendants of worthy sires you will rally to this defence of your liberties, and the Constitution which has protected and blessed you will still extend over you its protecting aegis. If you hesitate or falter all is lost, and you and your children to the latest posterity are destined to perpetual slavery.

THE SECOND WHEELING CONVENTION.

A Declaration of Rights by the People of Virginia Represented in that Convention, June 13, 1861.

The true purpose of all government is to promote the welfare and provide for the protection and security of the governed, and when any form or organization of government proves inadequate for, or subversive of this purpose, it is the right, it is the duty of the latter to abolish it. The Bill of Rights of Virginia, framed in 1776, reaffirmed in 1830, and again in 1851, expressly reserves this right to a majority of her people. The act of the General Assembly, calling the Convention which assembled at Richmond in February last, without the previously expressed consent of such majority, was therefore a usurpation; and the Convention thus called has not only abused the powers nominally entrusted to it, but, with the connivance and active aid of the executive, has usurped and exercised other powers, to the manifest injury of the people, which, if permitted, will inevitably subject them to a military despotism.

The Convention, by its pretended ordinances, has required the people of Virginia to separate from and wage war against the government of the United States, and against citizens of neighboring States, with whom they have heretofore maintained friendly, social and business relations:

It has attempted to subvert the Union founded by Washington and his co-patriots, in the purer days of the republic, which has conferred unexampled prosperity upon every class of citizens, and upon every section of the country:

It has attempted to transfer the allegiance of the people to an illegal confederacy of rebellious States, and required their submission to its pretended edicts and decrees:

It has attempted to place the whole military force and military operations of the Commonwealth under the control and direction of such confederacy, for offensive as well as defensive purposes:

It has, in conjunction with the State executive, instituted wherever their usurped power extends, a reign of terror intended to suppress the free expression of the will of the people, making elections a mockery and a fraud:

The same combination, even before the passage of the pretended ordinance of secession, instituted war by the seizure and appropriation of the property of the Federal Government, and by organizing and mobilizing armies, with the avowed purpose of capturing or destroying the Capital of the Union:

They have attempted to bring the allegiance of the people to the United States into direct conflict with their subordinate allegiance to the State, thereby making obedience to their pretended ordinances, treason against the former.

We, therefore, the delegates here assembled in Convention to devise such measures and take such action as the safety and welfare of the loyal citizens of Virginia may demand, having maturely considered the premises, and viewing with great concern the deplorable condition to which this once happy Commonwealth must be reduced unless some regular adequate remedy is speedily adopted, and appealing to the Supreme Ruler of the Universe for the rectitude of our intentions, do hereby, in the name and on the behalf of the good people of Virginia, solemnly declare that the preservation of their dearest rights and liberties and their security in person and property, imperatively demand the reorganization of the government of the Commonwealth, and that all acts of said Convention and Executive, tending to separate this Commonwealth from the United States, or to levy and carry on war against them, are without authority and void; and that the offices of all who adhere to the said Convention and Executive, whether legislative, executive or judicial, are vacated.

AN ORDINANCE FOR REORGANIZING THE STATE GOVERNMENT.

Adopted by the Second Wheeling Convention, June 19, 1861.

The People of the State of Virginia, by their Delegates assembled in Convention at Wheeling, do ordain as follows:

1. A governor, lieutenant governor and attorney general for the state of Virginia, shall be appointed by this convention, to discharge the duties and exercise the powers which pertain to their respective offices by the existing laws of the state, and to continue in office for six months, or until their successors be elected and qualified; and the general assembly is required to provide by law for an election of governor and lieutenant-governor by the people as soon as in their judgment such election can be properly held.

2. A council, to consist of five members, shall be appointed by this convention, to consult with and advise the governor respecting such matters pertaining to his official duties as he shall submit for consideration, and to aid in the execution of his official orders. Their term of office shall expire at the same time as that of the governor.

3. The delegates elected to the general assembly on the twenty-third day of May last, and the senators entitled under existing laws to seats in the next general assembly, together with such delegates and senators as may be duly elected under the ordinances of this convention, or existing laws, to fill vacancies, who shall qualify themselves by taking the oath or affirmation hereinafter set forth, shall constitute the legislature of the state, to discharge the duties and exercise the powers pertaining to the general assembly. They shall hold their offices from the passage of this ordinance until the end of the terms for which they were respectively elected. They shall assemble in the city of Wheeling on the first day of July next, and proceed to organize themselves as prescribed by existing laws, in their respective branches. A majority in each branch of the members qualified as aforesaid, shall constitute a quorum to do business. A majority of the members of each branch thus qualified, voting affirmatively, shall be competent to pass any act specified in the twenty-seventh section of the fourth article of the constitution of the state.

4. The governor, lieutenant-governor, attorney-general, members of the legislature, and all officers now in the service of the state, or of any county, city or town thereof, or hereafter to be elected or appointed for such service, including the judges and clerks of the several courts, sheriffs, commissioners of the revenue, justices of the peace, officers of the city and municipal corporations, and officers of militia, and officers and privates of volunteer companies of the state, not mustered into the service of the United States, shall each take the following oath or affirmation before proceeding in the discharge of their several duties:

"I solemnly swear (or affirm,) that I will support the constitution of the United States, and the laws made in pursuance thereof, as the supreme law of the land, anything in the constitution and laws of the state of Virginia, or in the ordinances of the convention which assembled at Richmond on the thirteenth of February, eighteen hundred and sixty-one, to the contrary notwithstanding; and that I will uphold and defend the government of Virginia as vindicated and restored by the convention which assembled at Wheeling on the eleventh day of June, eighteen hundred and sixty-one."

5. If any elective officer, who is required by the preceding section to take such oath or affirmation, fail or refuse so to do, it shall be the duty of the governor, upon satisfactory evidence of the fact, to issue his writ declaring the office to be vacant, and providing for a special election to fill such vacancy at some convenient and early day to be designated in said writ; of which due publication shall be made for the information of the persons entitled to vote at such election; and such writ may be directed, at the discretion of the governor, to the sheriff or sheriffs of the proper county or counties, or to a special commissioner or commissioners to be named by the governor for the purpose. If the officer who fails or refuses to take such oath or affirmation be appointed by the governor, he shall fill the vacancy without writ, but if such officer be appointed otherwise than by the governor or by election, the writ shall be issued by the governor, directed to the appointing power, requiring it to fill the vacancy.

RECEIPTS AND DISBURSEMENTS OF PUBLIC REVENUE.An Ordinance Relating Thereto and Providing for the Election of Certain Officers, Adopted June 21, 1861.

The people of Virginia, by their delegates assembled in Convention, in Wheeling, do ordain as follows:

1. The General Assembly, as soon as it shall be organized at Wheeling, pursuant to the Ordinances of this Convention, shall elect by joint vote of the two houses, an Auditor of Public Accounts, a Treasurer, and a Secretary of the Commonwealth, whose terms of office shall respectively commence as soon as they shall be duly qualified, and shall continue for the unexpired portion of the current term of said offices, and until their successors be respectively elected and qualified.

2. The officers so to be elected shall discharge the duties and exercise the power pertaining to their several offices by existing laws, so far as such law may be consistent with the ordinances of this Convention.

3. Each of said officers, shall give bond, with security, to the satisfaction of the Governor, which bond shall be payable to the Commonwealth of Virginia, and be conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of the office. The penalties of the bonds shall be respectively as follows: that of the Auditor of Public Accounts, Twenty Thousand Dollars; that of the Treasurer, Fifty Thousand Dollars; and that of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, Five Thousand Dollars. Each of these bonds shall be submitted to the Governor for approval; and if he be of opinion that it is in proper form, and duly executed, and that the security is sufficient, he shall endorse his approval thereon, and cause the same to be deposited in some secure place for safe keeping.

4. The Auditor of Public Accounts, and the Treasurer, shall each keep an office in the City of Wheeling, for the transaction of their official business; and the hours for transacting business at said offices shall be from eight in the morning, until three in the afternoon, between the first day of April and the first day of November, and from nine in the morning, until three in the afternoon, during the remainder of the year.

5. It shall be the duty of the several Sheriffs, and all other persons who have in their hands, or are liable for, any monies which by existing laws are payable to the Treasury of the State of Virginia forthwith to adjust their several accounts with the Auditor to be elected as aforesaid and pay over to the Treasurer herein provided for, the amounts which shall respectively be found due to the State.

6. If any Sheriff or other person, having in his hands, or being liable for any monies which by existing laws are payable to the Treasury, fail or refuse to adjust his account, or pay over such monies as herein required, the Auditor of Public Accounts shall immediately publish a notice of such default in some Newspaper in the City of Wheeling and if such Sheriff or other person shall not, within thirty days after such publication, have duly adjusted his account and paid over such monies, he shall forfeit and pay to the Commonwealth, the sum of Five Hundred Dollars, to be levied by distress under warrant of the Governor, which warrant it shall be the duty of the Governor to issue, on satisfactory evidence that such default has occurred, directing the same at his discretion to the Sheriff of any county, or to a special Commissioner or Commissioners for the purpose, and the Sheriff or other person making default as aforesaid, and his or their securities, shall further be liable to judgment, in the name of the Commonwealth of Virginia, for the amount appearing to be due, with interest thereon from the time of such default till payment, and fifteen per centum upon the principal, as damages to be recovered by motion on ten days' notice in any Court of Record in the State.

7. The several Commissioners of the Revenue and Sheriffs, having first taken the oath or affirmation required by the Ordinances of this Convention, and being otherwise duly qualified, shall proceed, with all convenient despatch, to the discharge of their several duties in relation to the assessment and collection of the public revenue, under the existing laws, so far as the same may not be inconsistent with the Ordinances of this Convention.

8. All monies to be paid into the public Treasury, shall be paid into the Merchants' and Mechanics' Bank of Wheeling, at the City of Wheeling, or one of its Branches, at Point Pleasant, Clarksburg and Morgantown; or into the North-Western Bank of Virginia, at Wheeling, or one of its Branches at Parkersburg and Wellsburg, but if collected East of the Blue Ridge of Mountains, into the Bank of the Old Dominion in Alexandria, to the credit of The Treasury of Virginia; and the person so paying the same shall take from the proper officer of such Bank or Branch, a certificate of the fact. The Treasurer, on the delivery of such certificate, shall retain and file the same, charging the amount therein specified to the proper bank or branch, and delivering to the person who made the payment at Bank, duplicate receipts for the amount so paid, specifying on what account the money was paid. The person making the payment shall forthwith hand over one of the said receipts to the Auditor of Public Accounts, to be retained and filed by him, and charged to the Treasurer's account; upon the other receipt, which is to be retained by the person making the payment, the Auditor shall endorse as follows:—"A duplicate hereof has been filed in the Auditor's office," and affix his signature and the proper date to such endorsement.

9. No receipt of the Treasurer shall be an acquittance or discharge to any person for any sum of money due to the Commonwealth, unless such receipt be endorsed by the Auditor of Public Accounts as aforesaid. And any person bound to pay money into the Public Treasury, who shall pay the same otherwise than according to this Ordinance, shall remain liable for such money, and be subject to every fine, penalty or forfeiture to which he would have been subject if he had not paid the same.

10. If the Governor, at any time when this Convention, and the General Assembly, re-organized under the ordinances thereof, shall not be in session, shall be of opinion that the safety of the public funds requires that no more public monies should be paid into any one or more of the depositories, specified in the preceding section, or that the monies which may be in the same, to the credit of the Treasury, should be withdrawn, he may announce the fact by proclamation to be published in some newspaper in the City of Wheeling, and in the City of Alexandria. In the proclamation he may, if it be necessary, designate another depository or depositories, at which monies due to the Commonwealth may thereafter be paid. And after such proclamation is published it shall not be lawful to pay any sum of money on State account into any depository or depositories to which such payment shall be thereby forbidden; and the Auditor of Public Accounts and Treasurer, if required by the Governor, shall cause the monies held by such depository or depositories, to be transferred to some other lawful depository or depositories of the Public Funds. But all such Proclamations and orders of the Governor shall, as soon as possible, be submitted to the Convention or to the General Assembly, for their revision.

11. Any person claiming to receive money from the Public Treasury, shall apply to the Auditor of Public Accounts for a warrant for the same. And the Auditor if he find such money to be due by the State, and that the payment thereof has been authorized by any Ordinance of this Convention, or Act of the General Assembly as re-organized under the ordinances of this Convention, shall issue his warrant therefor upon the Treasurer, specifying on what account the money is to be paid, and to what appropriation the same is chargeable. And the Treasurer, on the presentation of said warrant to him, shall, if satisfied that such warrant has been duly authorized as aforesaid, endorse upon said warrant, his Check, directed to some one of the depositories in which there shall be money to the credit of the Treasury, which check shall be payable to the order of the person entitled to receive the amount therein specified. The Treasurer shall, however, at no time, draw a check on any Bank, Branch, or other depository, unless there be money enough therein, to the credit of the Treasury, to pay such check. And no Bank, Branch or other depository, holding money to the credit of the Treasury, shall pay any check drawn by the Treasurer, unless the same be endorsed upon a warrant, authorizing the same, issued by the Auditor of Public Accounts.

12. This ordinance shall take effect from its passage. It may be altered or repealed by the General Assembly.

ADDRESS OF THE SECOND CONVENTION

Of the People of Northwestern Virginia, Published June 25, 1861.

The Delegates now assembled in Convention at Wheeling, deem it proper to address their fellow-citizens throughout the Commonwealth, in explanation and vindication of the course they have unanimously felt it incumbent on them to pursue.

It is only necessary to allude briefly to the circumstances which called this Convention into existence, to justify, in the fullest manner, any resumption of authority by the people in whose name they act. The General Assembly, which met in extra session at Richmond, in January last, without the excuse of impending danger or other grave necessity, and without constitutional authority, convened a Convention, "to adopt such measures as they may deem expedient for the welfare of the Commonwealth;" thus tamely relinquishing the very power reposed in themselves by the Constitution, and, as the sequel proved, with a corrupt purpose. Elections were held for delegates to the proposed Convention, and it being then clearly understood that an active and influential party favored the secession of the Commonwealth from the United States, the issue presented everywhere was clearly "Secession" or "No Secession." We need not remind you that by a very large majority of the voters of the Commonwealth, secession was rejected and repudiated. by the election of delegates professedly opposed to that iniquity, nor that a still larger majority required that any act of that Convention, altering the fundamental law or affecting the relations of the State, should be submitted to the people, and without the approbation of a majority, expressed at the polls, should have no force or effect.

The proceedings of that Convention up to the seventeenth of April last, were evidently intended by those in the secret to persuade the members favorable to the perpetuity of the Union and the people at large, that it was intended to propose terms on which it could be maintained.—On the day named the mask was thrown aside and the Secession Ordinance was passed. This was done in secret session, and no immediate promulgation of the facts was made to the people; nor until since this Convention assembled, was the injunction of secrecy so far removed that the vote on the passage of the ordinance was made public. It now appears that more than one-third of the whole Convention voted against it, and that nine members were absent. Up to this day the debates which preceded the vote are concealed from the people, who are thus denied a knowledge of the causes which, in the opinion of the majority, rendered secession necessary and justified so gross a disregard of their lately expressed will.

Under the legislative act calling the Convention, from which alone that body derived its authority, and under the vote of the people provided for by that act, the secession ordinance had no legal effect until ratified at the polls by a majority of the voters of the Commonwealth. The leaders of the secession movement, whose conduct proved them to be conspirators against the State of Virginia and the peace and welfare of her people, did not wait until the time fixed for this ratification to begin their overt acts of treason against the Government and people of the United States, as well as the state and people for whom they professed to act. Indeed, two days before the adoption of the ordinance, with the connivance, or, as is alleged, in defiance of a feeble Executive, they levied war against both by sending their emissaries to capture the Harper's Ferry Armory, and to obstruct the entrance of the harbor on which is situated the Gosport Navy Yard. This bold assumption of authority was followed by numerous acts of hostility against the United States; by the levy of troops to aid in the capture of the National Capital and the subversion of the National authority, and, to crown the infamy of the conspirators, with whom the Executive had now coalesced, by an attempt, without even the pretense of authority or acquiescence of the people, to transfer their allegiance from the United States to a league of rebellious States, in arms against the former.

In this state of things, the day arrived when the people were to vote for or against the Secession Ordinance. Threats of personal injury and other intimidations, such as had been uttered upon the floor of the usurping Convention against the remaining friends of the Union there, were used by the adherents of the conspirators in every county of the State. Judges charged the Grand Juries that opposition to disunion would be punished as treason against the Commonwealth; and the armed partisans of the conspirators in various places, arrested, plundered and exiled peaceable citizens, for no other crime than their adherence to the Union their fathers had constructed and under which they had been born and lived in prosperity and peace. We are not apprised by any official announcement of the result of the vote taken under such circumstances; but, whatever the result may be, we denounce it as unfair and unjust, and as affording no evidence of the will of the people on the subject actually presented for their suffrages, and much less of their consent to the self-constituted oligarchy of the South.

In the point of view in which this result, and the transactions which inevitably led to it, should be examined by the people of Virginia, it is unimportant whether secession was of itself desirable or not desirable; because the end cannot justify the means, if the latter are illegal and unholy. In the present case the great principle which underlies all free government; the principle that the will of the people is the supreme law, or as expressed in the Declaration of Independence, that "Governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed," and in our own Bill of Rights, that "all power is vested in and consequently derived from the people," has not only been violated and set at naught, but has been trampled under foot. In the call of the Convention, in the acts of that body, in the circumstances preceding and accompanying the late election, a continued effort has been made, with what success you know, not merely to disregard the will of the people, but to set at defiance, and to establish the counter principle that the few should govern the many. The men justly termed conspirators and usurpers, because they cannot show your warrant for their acts, were, when this Convention met, practically in full possession of every branch of the State government, and still claim the right to exercise their usurped power; and if you submit to their acts of secession and affiliation with usurpers like themselves, you yield to them the right to govern you in perpetuity. Will your Bill of Rights and Constitution afford you any protection against those who have already violated both? Will your connection with a pretended Confederacy, in every State of which the leaders have openly and directly refused to submit their similar acts to the approval or rejection of their people, aid you in the recovery of the fundamental right of which you have been so wantonly robbed?

But is secession right, or is it desirable if it is right? We will not amplify the argument on the first branch of this enquiry. The ratification of the Constitution of the United States by our own Commonwealth, in express terms, reserves the right to abrogate it to those by whom it was made, the People of the United States; thus repudiating in advance the modern doctrine of separate State secession. This is in strict accordance with the views of our elder statesmen, whose patriotism and ability are held in reverence, not only by us and by our fellow-citizens of the Union, but by good men throughout the world. It is the logic of every honest heart, that a contract, a compact, or call it what you will, can only be set aside by the joint act of those by whom it was made.

But why should secession be desirable? Why should Virginia desire to withdraw from that Union of which she has been for so long an honored member—that Union, the accomplishment of which illumines with the brightest rays her own history and the lives of her most distinguished sons? Shall it be said that what she toiled to achieve in 1787, was destroyed by her own act in 1861? Is there on the page of history the story of a nation that has risen more rapidly to prosperity and power, or more steadily advanced in intellectual and moral culture? There is no such nation, nor is there among the thirty-four States, one which has profited more by the association, or one which would suffer more from its dissolution, as is sufficiently indicated by our geographical position.

Impressed with these views, the Northwestern counties of the State, knowing that a large majority of their people remained and would remain faithful to the Union under all circumstances, met in Convention at Wheeling on the 13th day of May last, to consult upon their condition and to take such steps as it might indicate. It was literally a mass Convention, and from the irregular manner of the appointment of its delegates, was not calculated for the despatch of business. As the result of its deliberations, the Convention which now addresses you was called, the representation in which is proportioned to that of the General Assembly. The number of counties actually represented is thirty-four, and we have reliable assurance that several which are now with us in spirit, will ere long be present by their regularly appointed delegates. Considering that in so many counties every expression of opinion unfavorable to the conspirators is suppressed, the number already represented is larger than could have been anticipated. Several of the delegates present escaped from their counties at the risk of their lives, while others are still detained at home by force or menace against them or their families and property. Such is doubtless the case in other counties from which we have no information.

Two courses of action were presented to those who now address you upon their organization; both of which had been debated in the previous Convention at this place. The first was the immediate separation of the Western or Northwestern counties from the residue of the State. This was the result rather of a previous and growing belief, now amounting to conviction in the minds of all throughout this section of the State, that diversity, almost opposition of interest; different directions of the channels of trade, and the want of legislation adapted to their conditions, and indispensable to their moral and material prosperity, rendered the separation desirable under any and all circumstances. But aside from the constitutional requirements which made its accomplishment almost impossible while hostilities continued, the consideration that to separate now, would be to separate from many who, under circumstances even more adverse than those by which they had been themselves surrounded, had maintained their loyalty to the Federal Government, caused the abandonment of this course at this time. On the other hand, a sense of duty to those who like themselves, were constrained to repudiate the action of the Richmond Convention and the State authorities, demanded that such a course should be taken as would enable all the loyal citizens of the Commonwealth to participate in its advantages, and to enjoy the security it might offer.

Besides submission to palpable usurpation, there was then but one alternative, namely, under the authority of numerous precedents in the history of nations, to assume the conduct of the government, on the ground that those previously intrusted with its administration, by their numerous illegal and unconstitutional acts in plain derogation of the rights of the people, had, in the language of the Declaration of Independence, "abdicated government by declaring us out of their protection, and waging war against us;" whereby, in the words of the same instrument, "the legislative powers, incapable of annihilation, have returned to the people for their exercise." This Convention, therefore, in humble, but, as they firmly believe, proper imitation of the sages of '76, have, "in the name and on behalf of the good people of Virginia," issued their Declaration, "that the preservation of their dearest rights and liberties, and their security in person and property, imperatively demand the reorganization of the government of the Commonwealth."

In pursuance of the Declaration, we have passed such ordinances as are immediately necessary to re-organize the government, and put it in operation. We have appointed a Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Attorney General and Executive Council, leaving to the General Assembly, which we have directed to be convened at a very early day, to fill, or to provide for filling, all other offices as soon as in their judgment, it can be properly done. The terms of the officers we have appointed, are limited to six months or until the election and qualification of their successors, for which the General Assembly has authority to provide at the earliest possible period. In all this, our fellow citizens will clearly perceive that there has been no disposition to assume any power or authority not demanded by the exigencies of their present unhappy condition, or to retain it longer than a regard for their highest interests may require.

In reply to remarks which have been made abroad, we deem it proper to say that we have seen no occasion to take any steps in reference to the debt of the State. The idea of the repudiation of any part of it which was legally contracted has not been expressed or entertained by any member of the Convention. The only notice the subject has received, has been in connection with the proposed separation of the Western counties, and whenever it has been thus named, those desirous of separation, have invariably expressed their willingness to assume their equitable portion of the burden. Any promises of payment or projects of arrangement at this time, when the very existence of the Commonwealth is threatened, would be worse than idle.

Under all these circumstances, with the firm conviction that the course adopted is the only one by which the State can be retained in the Union, and the liberties and rights of the people secured and perpetuated, we most earnestly call upon our loyal fellow-citizens in every county of the Commonwealth, who are not already represented in the General Assembly and in this Convention, to elect members of the Legislature, and appoint Delegates to this body, at the earliest possible moment.—Writs of election will be issued by the Executive whenever it appears that they can be executed, and Representatives from every county will be most cordially received. No suspension or essential change of any part of the Constitution or Laws of the Commonwealth, unless positively demanded by the exigencies of the times, will be made, until the will of the whole people or of their authorized representatives, can be freely expressed and such changes as have been or may hereafter be so demanded, will be submitted for ratification at an early day.

We call upon the loyal citizens of the Commonwealth, to organize and arm for its defense against the conspirators and usurpers at Richmond, and their aiders and abettors. Plans will immediately be devised to give to such organizations the greatest efficiency. The General Government will aid and protect us to the utmost of their power, and will most unquestionably recognize the re-organized government, as the true and legitimate government of the State. They cannot and will not do otherwise.

The re-organized Government appeals to the great body of the people, for countenance and support in this hour of great anxiety, and trial. They do so confidently, because, while there have been many defections from the great and holy cause of "Liberty and Union," among those to whom you have been accustomed to look for political information and direction, there have been comparatively few among yourselves. In this matter, which appeals to your dearest rights and interests, you have responded spontaneously to the promptings of your honest hearts. Your own experience has taught you the great benefits of the Union, and you recognize the great principle, that a government so beneficial in its operations, so mild in its requirements, so powerful to protect, and constituted as to diffuse throughout an immense territory the blessings of Prosperity and happiness, "should not be changed for light and transient causes." In every county where the free expression of your views has been permitted, your majorities in favor of the maintenance and perpetuity of the Union, have far exceeded the calculations of the most sanguine among your friends. Persevere then, in your most holy war against the corrupt and perjured oligarchy, who have usurped your government, and would have sold you to the ambitious despots of an unholy affiliation. In such a cause, we may look for the blessings of that Holy One, who has made it a part of His Divine Providence, that those, who in purity of heart and purpose, strive for the preservation of their dearest rights, their homes and their country, although the struggle may be protracted for long and weary years, shall never strive in vain.

By order of the Convention.

REORGANIZATION OF THE STATE GOVERNMENT.

Appointment and Election of State Officers and United States Senators.

Under the provisions of Sections 1 and 2 of the ordinance adopted for the re-organization of the State government, the Convention on June 20th, 1861, appointed the following officers: Governor—Francis H. Pierpont, of Marion county. Lieutenant Governor—Daniel Posley, of Mason county. Attorney General—James S. Wheat, of Ohio county. Members of the Council of State—William Lazier, of Monongalia county; Daniel Lamb and J. W. Paxton, of Ohio county; Peter G. Van Winkle, of Wood county, and William A. Harrison, of Harrison county.

On June 22nd, Governor Pierpont issued a call convening the General Assembly in extraordinary session July 1. The assembly met on that day and there were eleven Senators present and forty-nine members of the House of Delegates, representing forty-eight counties. Daniel Posley, Lieutenant Governor, presided over the Senate, and Daniel Frost, of Jackson county, was elected and served as speaker of the House of Delegates. In his message to the General Assembly Governor Pierpont, among other things, said:

"I regret that I cannot congratulate you on the peace and prosperity of the country, in the manner which has been customary with Executives, both State and Federal. For the present, those happy days which as a nation, we have so long enjoyed, and that prosperity which has smiled upon us, as upon no other nation, are departed. We are passing through a period of gloom and darkness in our Country's history, but we must not despair. There is a just God who 'rides upon the whirlwind and directs the storm.' Let us look to Him with abiding confidence. You have met, gentlemen, in the midst of Civil War, but I trust you may yet be assembled under happier auspices, when the strife shall be over and peace and prosperity be restored to this once happy country."

Accompanying this message was Governor Pierpont's correspondence with President Lincoln together with letters received by the Governor from Simon Cameron, Secretary of War, and Caleb B. Smith, Secretary of the Interior, all showing recognition of the movement to restore civil government to Western Virginia.

In conformity with the ordinance adopted June 21st, the two houses of the legislature met in joint assembly on July 9th, for the purpose of electing the State officers who had not already been appointed by the convention. Lucien A. Hagans, of Preston county, was elected Secretary of State; Samuel Crane, of Randolph county, Auditor; and Campbell Tarr, of Brooke county, Treasurer.

At the same joint session John S. Carlile, of Harrison county, was chosen to fill the vacancy in the United States Senate caused by the resignation of R. M. T. Hunter, and Waitman T. Willey, of Monongalia county, was chosen to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of James M. Mason.

The second Wheeling Convention met on the 11th day of June, 1861, and remained in session until June 25th, when it adjourned to meet on the first Tuesday in August, unless otherwise ordered by the Governor, with the advice of his council. Not being otherwise ordered, the Convention met in adjourned session on Tuesday, August 6th, and remained in session until August 20th, when it adjourned sine die.

3. This ordinance shall be in force from its passage.

"THE WHEELING ORDINANCE."

Providing for the Formation of a New State out of a Portion of the Territory of Virginia, Adopted August 20, 1861.

Whereas, it is represented to be the desire of the people inhabiting the counties hereinafter mentioned, to be separated from this commonwealth, and be erected into a separate state, and admitted into the union of states, and become a member of the government of the United States:

2. All persons qualified to vote within the boundaries aforesaid, and who shall present themselves at the several places of voting within their respective counties, on the fourth Thursday in October next, shall be allowed to vote on the question of the formation of a new state, as hereinbefore proposed; and it shall be the duty of the commissioners conducting the election at the said several places of voting, at the same time, to cause polls to be taken for the election of delegates to a convention to form a constitution for the government of the proposed state.

3. The convention hereinbefore provided for may change the boundaries described in the first section of this ordinance, so as to include within the proposed state the counties of Greenbrier and Pocahontas, or either of them, and also the counties of Hampshire, Hardy, Morgan, Berkeley and Jefferson, or either of them, and also such other counties as lie contiguous to the said boundaries, or to the counties named in this section; if the said counties to be added, or either of them, by a majority of the votes given, shall declare their wish to form part of the proposed state, and shall elect delegates to the said convention, at elections to be held at the time and in the manner herein provided for.

4. Poll books shall be prepared under the direction of the governor for each place of voting in the several counties hereinbefore mentioned, with two separate columns, one to be headed "For the New State," the other "Against the New State." And it shall be the duty of the commissioners who superintended, and the officers who conducted the election in May last, or such other persons as the governor may appoint, to attend at their respective places of holding elections, and superintend and conduct the election herein provided for. And if the said commissioners and officers shall fail to attend at any such place of holding elections, it shall be lawful for any two freeholders present to act as commissioners in superintending the said election, and to appoint officers to conduct the same. It shall be the duty of the persons superintending and conducting said election, to employ clerks to record the votes, and to endorse on the respective poll books the expenses of the same.

If on the day herein provided for holding said election, there shall be in any of the said counties any military force, or any hostile assemblage of persons, so as to interfere with a full and free expression of the will of the voters, they may assemble at any other place within their county, and hold an election as herein provided for. It shall be the duty of the commissioners superintending, and officers conducting said election, and the clerks employed to record the votes, each before entering upon the duties of his office, to take, in addition to the oath now required by the general election law, the oath of office prescribed by this convention. It shall be the duty of the officers and commissioners aforesaid, as soon as may be, and not exceeding three days after said election, to aggregate each of the columns of said poll books, and ascertain the number of votes recorded in each, and make a return thereof to the secretary of the commonwealth, in the city of Wheeling, which return shall be in the following form, or to the following effect:

We,, commissioners, and, conducting officers, do certify, that we caused an election to be held at, in the county of, at which we permitted all persons to vote that were entitled to do so under existing laws, and that offered to vote, and that we have carefully added up each column of our poll books, and find the following result:

For a new state, votes; Against a new state votes

Given under our hands, this day of, 1861.

Under which certificate there shall be added the following affidavit:
..... County, to-wit:

I, a justice of the peace, (or any officer now authorized by law to administer oaths,) in and for said county, do certify that the above named commissioners and conducting officer severally made oath before me, that the certificate by them above signed is true.

5. The commissioners conducting the said election in each of said counties shall ascertain, at the same time they ascertain the vote upon the formation of a new state, who has been elected from their county to the convention, hereinbefore provided for, and shall certify to the secretary of the commonwealth the name or names of the person or persons elected to the said convention.

6. It shall be the duty of the governor, on or before the fifteenth day of November next, to ascertain and by proclamation make known the result of the said vote; and if a majority of the votes given within the boundaries mentioned in the first section of this ordinance, shall be in favor of the formation of a new state, he shall so state in his said proclamation, and shall call upon said delegates to meet in the city of Wheeling, on the 26th day of November next, and organize themselves into a convention; and the said convention shall submit, for ratification or rejection, the constitution that may be agreed upon by it, to the qualified voters within the proposed state, to be voted upon by said voters on the fourth Thursday in December next.

7. The county of Ohio shall elect three delegates; the counties of Harrison, Kanawha, Marion, Marshall, Monongalia, Preston and Wood shall each elect two; and the other counties named in the first section of this ordinance shall each elect one delegate to the said convention. And such other counties as are described in the third section of this ordinance, shall, for every seven thousand of their population according to the census of 1860, be entitled to one delegate, and to an additional delegate for any fraction over thirty-five hundred; but each of said counties shall be entitled to at least one delegate. The said delegates shall receive the same per diem as is now allowed to members of the general assembly; but no person shall receive pay as a member of the general assembly and of the convention at the same time.

8. It shall be the duty of the governor to lay before the general assembly, at its next meeting, for their consent according to the constitution of the United States, the result of the said vote, if it shall be found that a majority of the votes cast be in favor of a new state, and also in favor of the constitution proposed to said voters for their adoption.

9. The new state shall take upon itself a just proportion of the public debt of the commonwealth of Virginia prior to the first day of January, 1861, to be ascertained by charging to it all state expenditures within the limits thereof, and a just proportion of the ordinary expenses of the state government, since any part of said debt was contracted; and deducting therefrom the monies paid into the treasury of the commonwealth from the counties included within the said new state during the same period. All private rights and interests in lands within the proposed state, derived from the laws of Virginia prior to such separation, shall remain valid and secure under the laws of the proposed state, and shall be determined by the laws now existing in the state of Virginia.

The lands within the proposed state, of non-resident proprietors, shall not in any case be taxed higher than the lands of residents therein. No grants of lands or land warrants, issued by the proposed state, shall interfere with any warrant issued from the land office of Virginia prior to the 17th day of April last, which shall be located on lands within the proposed state now liable thereto.

10. When the general assembly shall give its consent to the formation of such new state, it shall forward to the congress of the United States such consent, together with an official copy of such constitution, with the request that the said new state may be admitted into the union of states.

11. The government of the state of Virginia as reorganized by this convention at its session in June last, shall retain, within the territory of the proposed state, undiminished and unimpaired, all the powers and authority with which it has been vested, until the proposed state shall be admitted into the union by the congress of the United States: and nothing in this ordinance contained, or which shall be done in pursuance thereof, shall impair or affect the authority of the said reorganized state government in any county which shall not be included within the proposed state.

RESULT OF VOTE ON QUESTION OF DIVISION.

In compliance with the requirement of section four of the "Wheeling Ordinance," providing for the formation of a new State, on the 24th day of October, 1861, an election was held in all the counties named in the first section of that ordinance. The whole number of votes cast was 19,189, of which 18,408 were in favor of the new State and 781 against it.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION OF 1861.

This Convention met in the city of Wheeling, November 26th, 1861, pursuant to a proclamation issued by Governor Francis H. Pierpont. It organized by electing John Hall, of Mason county, President; Ellery R. Hall, of Taylor county, Secretary, and James C. Orr, of Ohio county, Sergeant-at-Arms. The Convention was in session until February 18th, 1862, and framed a Constitution for the proposed new State, changing the name from "Kanawha," as contained in the ordinance, to "West Virginia." The question of the adoption of the Constitution was voted upon by the people on April 3rd. The total vote cast was 19,376, of which 18,862 were for ratification and 514 for rejection. The seventh section of article eleven of that Constitution read:

"7. No slave shall be brought, or free person of color be permitted to come into this State for permanent residence."

Congress was not satisfied with this section, and required that it should be so changed as to provide for the gradual extinction of slavery, by reading as follows:

"The children of slaves born within the limits of this State after the fourth day of July, eighteen hundred and sixty-three, shall be free and that all slaves within the said State who shall, at the time aforesaid, be under the age of ten years, shall be free when they arrive at the age of twenty-one years; and all slaves over ten, and under twenty-one years, shall be free when they arrive at the age of twenty-one years; and no slave shall be permitted to come into the State for permanent residence therein."

In consequence of the action of Congress, the Constitutional Convention was again called together, and met at Wheeling on February 12th, 1863, for the purpose of making the change in the Constitution regarding the gradual extinction of slavery. Owing to the resignation of John Hall as President, Abram D. Soper was chosen to fill the vacancy, and presided. On the 17th of February the Convention agreed to the amendment proposed by Congress and on the 20th adjourned sine die. The amendment was voted upon by the people on the 26th day of the following March. There were 27,899 votes for ratification and 572 for rejection. The first Constitution, as it appears in this volume, is printed with section seven of article eleven as amended.

On the 17th day of April, Abraham D. Soper, President, and Daniel Lamb, Peter G. Van Winkle, Elbert H. Caldwell, Ephriam B. Hall, and James W. Paxton, the Executive Committee of the Constitutional Convention certified the result of the election on March 26th, on the amended Constitution, to Governor Pierpont, by whom it was immediately certified to the President of the United States.

The State.

1. The State of West Virginia shall be and remain one of the United States of America. The Constitution of the United States, and the laws and treaties made in pursuance thereof, shall be the supreme law of the land.

2. The following counties, formerly parts of the State of Virginia, shall be included in, and form part of, the State of West Virginia, namely: The counties of Hancock, Brooke, Ohio, Marshall, Wetzel, Marion, Monongalia, Preston, Taylor, Pleasants, Tyler, Ritchie, Doddridge, Harrison, Wood, Jackson, Wirt, Roane, Calhoun, Gilmer, Barbour, Tucker, Lewis, Braxton, Upshur, Randolph, Mason, Putnam, Kanawha, Clay, Nicholas, Cabell, Wayne, Boone, Logan, Wyoming, Mercer, McDowell, Webster, Pocahontas, Fayette, Raleigh, Greenbrier and Monroe.

And if a majority of the votes cast at the election or elections held, as provided in the schedule hereof, in the district composed of the counties of Pendleton, Hardy, Hampshire, and Morgan, shall be in favor of the adoption of this Constitution, the said four counties shall also be included in, and form part of, the State of West Virginia; and if the same shall be so included, and a majority of the votes cast at the said election or elections, in the district composed of the counties of Berkeley, Jefferson, and Frederick, shall be in favor of the adoption of this Constitution, then the three last mentioned counties shall also be included in, and form part of, the State of West Virginia.

The State of West Virginia shall also include so much of the bed, banks, and shores of the Ohio river as heretofore appertained to the State of Virginia; and the territorial rights and property in, and the jurisdiction of whatever nature over, the said bed, banks and shores heretofore reserved by, or vested in, the State of Virginia, shall vest in, and be hereafter exercised by, the State of West Virginia.

3. The powers of Government reside in all the citizens of the State, and can be rightfully exercised only in accordance with their will and appointment.

4. The Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Departments of the Government shall be separate and distinct. Neither shall exercise the powers properly belonging to either of the others. No person shall be invested with or exercise the powers of more than one of them at the same time.

5. Writs, grants, and commissions issued under state authority, shall run in the name of, and official bonds shall be made payable to, The State of West Virginia. Indictments shall conclude, "against the peace and dignity of the State of West Virginia."

6. The citizens of the State are the citizens of the United States residing therein: but no person in the military, naval, or marine service of the United States shall be deemed a resident of this State by reason of being stationed therein.

7. Every citizen shall be entitled to equal representation in the Government, and in all apportionments of representation, equality of numbers of those entitled thereto shall, as far as practicable, be preserved.

ARTICLE II.

Bill of Rights.

1. The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended except when in time of invasion, insurrection, or other public danger, the public safety may require it. No person shall be held to answer for treason, felony, or other crime not cognizable by a justice, unless on presentment or indictment of a grand jury. No bill of attainder, ex post facto law, or law impairing the obligation of a contract, shall be passed.

2. Excessive bail shall not be required, or excessive fines imposed, or cruel and unusual punishments inflicted. Penalties shall be proportioned to the character and degree of the offense. No person shall be compelled to be a witness against himself, or be twice put in jeopardy for the same offense.

3. The right of the citizens to be secure in their houses, persons, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated. No warrant shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons and things to be seized.

4. No law abridging freedom of speech or of the press shall be passed; but the legislature may provide for the restraint and punishment of the publishing and vending of obscene books, papers, and pictures, and of libel and defamation of character, and for the recovery, in civil actions, by the aggrieved party, of suitable damages for such libel or defamation. Attempts to justify and uphold an armed invasion of the state, or an organized insurrection therein, during the continuance of such invasion or insurrection, by publicly speaking, writing or printing, or by publishing or circulating such writing or printing, may be, by law, declared a misdemeanor, and punished accordingly.

5. In prosecutions and civil suits for libel, the truth may be given in evidence; and if it shall appear to the jury that the matter charged as libelous is true, and was published with good motives and for justifiable ends, the verdict shall be for the defendant.

6. Private property shall not be taken for public use without just compensation. No person, in time of peace, shall be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law. The military shall be subordinate to the civil power.

7. In suits at common law, where the value in controversy exceeds twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury, if required by either party, shall be preserved. No fact tried by a jury shall be otherwise re-examined in any case than according to the rules of the common law.

8. The trial of crimes and misdemeanors, unless herein otherwise provided, shall be by jury, and shall be held publicly and without unreasonable delay, in the county where the alleged offense was committed, unless upon petition of the accused and for good cause shown, or in consequence of the existence of war or insurrection in such county, it is removed to, or instituted in, some other county. In all such trials the accused shall be informed of the character and cause of the accusation, and be confronted with the witnesses against him, and shall have the assistance of counsel for his defense, and compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor.

9. No man shall be compelled to frequent or support any religious worship, place, or ministry whatsoever; nor shall any man be enforced, restrained, molested, or burthened in his body or goods, or otherwise suffer, on account of his religious opinions or belief; but all men shall be free to profess, and by argument to maintain, their opinions in matters of religion, and the same shall in no wise affect, diminish, or enlarge their civil capacities. And the legislature shall not prescribe any religious test whatever; or confer any peculiar privileges or advantages on any sect or denomination; or pass any law requiring or authorizing any religious society, or the people of any district within this state, to levy on themselves or others, any tax for the erection or repair of any house for public worship, or for the support of any church or ministry; but it shall be left free to every person to select his religious instructor, and to make for his support such private contract as he shall please.

10. Treason against the state shall consist only in levying war against it, or in adhering to its enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court. Treason shall be punished, according to the character of the acts committed, by the infliction of one or more of the penalties of death, imprisonment, fine, or confiscation of the real and personal property of the offender, as may be prescribed by law.

ARTICLE III.

Elections and Officers.

1. The white male citizens of the State shall be entitled to vote at all elections held within the election districts in which they respectively reside; but no person who is a minor, or of unsound mind, or a pauper, or who is under conviction of treason, felony, or bribery in an election, or who has not been a resident of the State for one year, and of the county in which he offers to vote for thirty days, next preceding such offer, shall be permitted to vote while such disability continues. * No person who, since the first day of June, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-one, has given, or shall give, voluntary aid or assistance to the rebellion against the United States, shall be a citizen of this State, or be allowed to vote at any election therein, unless he has volunteered into the military or naval service of the United States, and has been, or shall be, honorably discharged therefrom.

2. In all elections by the people the mode of voting shall be by ballot.

3. No voter, during the continuance of an election at which he is entitled to vote, or during the time necessary and convenient for going to and returning from the same, shall be subject to arrest upon civil process, or be liable to attend any court or judicial proceeding as suitor, juror, or witness; or to work upon the public roads; or, except in time of war or public danger, to render military service.

4. No persons, except citizens entitled to vote, shall be elected or appointed to any State, county, or municipal office. Judges must have attained the age of thirty-five years, the Governor the age of thirty years, and the Attorney General and Senators the age of twenty-five years, at the beginning of their respective terms of service; and must have been citizens of the State for five years next preceding, or at the time this Constitution goes into operation.

5. Every person elected or appointed to any office or trust, civil or military, shall, before proceeding to exercise the authority or discharge the duties of the same, make oath or affirmation that he will support the Constitution of the United States, and the Constitution of this State; and every citizen of this State may, in time of war, insurrection, or public danger, be required by law to make the like oath or affirmation, upon pain of suspension of his right of voting and holding office under this Constitution.

6. All officers elected or appointed under this Constitution may be removed from office for misconduct, incompetence, neglect of duty, or other causes, in such manner as may be prescribed by general laws; and unless so removed, shall continue to discharge the duties of their respective offices, until their successors are elected or appointed and qualified.

*The last sentence of Section 1. of Article III. was added by amendment taking effect May 24, 1866.

7. The general elections of state and county officers, and of members of the legislature, shall be held on the fourth Thursday of October. The terms of such officers and members, not elected or appointed to fill a vacancy, shall, unless herein otherwise provided, begin on the first day of January next succeeding their election. Elections to fill vacancies shall be for the unexpired term. Vacancies shall be filled in such manner as may be prescribed by law.

8. The legislature, in cases not provided for in this Constitution, shall prescribe, by general laws, the terms of office, powers, duties, and compensation of all public officers and agents, and the manner in which they shall be elected, appointed, and removed.

9. No extra compensation shall be granted or allowed to any public officer, agent, or contractor, after the services shall have been rendered, or the contract entered into. Nor shall the salary or compensation of any public officer be increased or diminished during his term of office.

10. Any officer of the state may be impeached for maladministration, corruption, incompetence, neglect of duty, or any high crime or misdemeanor. The House of Delegates shall have the sole power of impeachment. The Senate shall have the sole power to try impeachments. When sitting for that purpose, the Senators shall be on oath or affirmation; and no persons shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present. Judgment in cases of impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from office, and disqualification to hold any office of honor, trust, or profit, under the state; but the party convicted shall, nevertheless, be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment, and punishment, according to law. The Senate may sit during the recess of the legislature, for the trial of impeachments.

11. Any citizen of this state, who shall, after the adoption of this Constitution, either in or out of the state, fight a duel with deadly weapons, or send or accept a challenge so to do; or who shall act as a second, or knowingly aid or assist in such duel, shall ever thereafter be incapable of holding any office of honor, trust, or profit, under this state.

12. The legislature may provide for a registry of voters. They shall prescribe the manner of conducting and making returns of elections, and of determining contested elections; and shall pass such laws as may be necessary and proper to prevent intimidation, disorder, or violence, at the polls, and corruption or fraud, in voting.

ARTICLE IV.

Legislature.

1. The legislative power shall be vested in a Senate and House of Delegates. The style of their acts shall be, "Be it enacted by the Legislature of West Virginia."

2. The Senate shall be composed of eighteen and the House of Delegates of forty-seven members, subject to be increased according to the provisions hereinafter contained.

3. The term of office of Senators shall be two years, and that of Delegates one year. The Senators first elected shall divide themselves into two classes, one Senator from every district being assigned to each class; and of these classes, the first, to be designated by lot in such manner as the Senate may determine, shall hold their offices for one year, and the second for two years; so that after the first election one-half of the Senators shall be elected annually.

4. For the election of Senators, the State shall be divided into nine Senatorial Districts; which number shall not be diminished, but may be increased as hereinafter provided. Every district shall choose two Senators, but after the first election both shall not be chosen from the same county. The districts shall be equal, as nearly as practicable, in white population, according to the returns of the United States census. They shall be compact, formed of contiguous territory, and bounded by county lines. After every such census, the legislature shall alter the Senatorial districts, so far as may be necessary to make them conform to the forgoing provisions.

5. Any Senatorial District may at any time be divided, by county lines or otherwise, into two sections, which shall be equal, as nearly as practicable, in white population. If such division be made, each section shall elect one of the Senators for the district; and the Senators so elected shall be classified in such manner as the Senate may determine.

6. Until the Senatorial Districts are altered by the Legislature after the next census, the counties of Hancock, Brooke, and Ohio shall constitute the first Senatorial District; Marshall, Wetzel and Marion the second; Monongalia, Preston, and Taylor the third; Pleasants, Tyler, Ritchie, Doddridge, and Harrison the fourth; Wood, Jackson, Wirt, Roane, Calhoun, and Gilmer the fifth; Barbour, Tucker, Lewis, Braxton, Upshur, and Randolph the sixth; Mason, Putnam, Kanawha, Clay and Nicholas, the seventh; Cabell, Wayne, Boone, Logan, Wyoming, Mercer, and McDowell the eighth; and Webster, Pocahontas Fayette, Raleigh, Greenbrier, and Monroe the ninth.

7. For the election of Delegates, every county containing a white population of less than half the ratio of representation for the House of Delegates, shall, at each apportionment, be attached to some contiguous county or counties, to form a Delegate District.

8. When two or more counties are formed into a Delegate District, the Legislature shall provide by law that the Delegates to be chosen by the voters of the District shall be, in rotation, residents of each county, for a greater or less number of terms, proportioned, as nearly as can be conveniently done, to the white population of the several counties in the District.

9. After every census the Delegates shall be apportioned as follows:

The ratio of representation for the House of Delegates shall be ascertained by dividing the whole white population of the State by the number of which the House is to consist, and rejecting the fraction of a unit, if any, resulting from such division.

Dividing the white population of every Delegate District, and of every county not included in a Delegate District, by the ratio thus ascertained, there shall be assigned to each a number of Delegates equal to the quotient obtained by this division, excluding the fractional remainder.

The additional Delegates necessary to make up the number of which the House is to consist, shall then be assigned to those Delegate Districts, and counties not included in a Delegate District, which would otherwise have the largest fractions unrepresented. But every Delegate District and county not included in a Delegate District, shall be entitled to at least one Delegate.

10. Until a new apportionment is declared, the counties of Pleasants and Wood shall form the first Delegate District; Calhoun and Gilmer the second; Clay and Nicholas the third; Webster and Pocahontas the fourth; Tucker and Randolph the fifth; and McDowell, Wyoming, and Raleigh the sixth. The first Delegate District shall choose two Delegates, and the other five, one each.

11. The Delegates to be chosen by the first Delegate District shall, for the first term, both be residents of the county of Wood; and for the second term, one shall be a resident of Wood, and the other of Pleasants county; and so in rotation. The Delegate to be chosen by the second Delegate District shall, for the first term, be a resident of Gilmer, and for the second, of Calhoun county. The Delegate to be chosen by the third Delegate District shall, for the first two terms, be a resident of Nicholas and for the third term, of Clay county. The Delegate to be chosen by the fourth Delegate District shall, for the first two terms, be a resident of Pocahontas, and for the third term, of Webster county. The Delegate to be chosen by the fifth Delegate District shall, for the first three terms, be a resident of Randolph, and for the fourth term, of Tucker county. And the Delegate to be chosen by the sixth Delegate District shall, for the first term, be a resident of Raleigh, for the second term of Wyoming, for the third term of Raleigh, for the fourth term of Wyoming, and for the fifth term of McDowell county; and so, in each case, in rotation.

12. Until a new apportionment is declared, the apportionment of Delegates to the counties not included in Delegate Districts shall be as follows:

To Barbour, Boone, Braxton, Brooke, Cabell, Doddridge, Fayette, Hancock, Jackson, Lewis, Logan, Mason, Mercer, Putnam, Ritchie, Roane, Taylor, Tyler, Upshur, Wayne, Wetzel, and Wirt counties, one Delegate each.

To Harrison, Kanawha, Marion, Marshall, Monongalia, and Preston counties, two Delegates each.

To Ohio county, three Delegates.

To Greenbrier and Monroe counties together, three Delegates: of whom, for the first term, two shall be residents of Greenbrier, and one of Monroe county; and for the second term, two shall be residents of Monroe and one of Greenbrier county; and so in rotation.

13. If the counties of Pendleton, Hardy, Hampshire, and Morgan become part of this State, they shall, until the next apportionment, constitute the tenth Senatorial District, and choose two Senators. And if the counties of Frederick, Berkeley, and Jefferson become part of this State, they shall, until the next apportionment, constitute the eleventh Senatorial District, and choose two Senators. And the number of the Senate shall be, in the first case, twenty, and in the last, twenty-two, instead of eighteen.

14. If the seven last named counties become part of this State, the apportionment of Delegates to the same shall, until the next apportionment, be as follows: to Pendleton and Hardy, one each; to Hampshire, Frederick, and Jefferson, two each; and the counties of Morgan and Berkeley shall form the seventh Delegate District, and choose two Delegates; of whom, for the first term, one shall be a resident of Berkeley and the other of Morgan county; and for the second term, both shall be residents of Berkeley county; and so in rotation.

But if the counties of Pendleton, Hardy, Hampshire, and Morgan become part of this State, and Frederick, Berkeley, and Jefferson do not, then Pendleton, Hardy, and Morgan counties shall each choose one Delegate, and Hampshire two, until the next apportionment.

The number of the House of Delegates shall, instead of forty-seven, be in the first case fifty-seven, and in the last, fifty-two.

15. The arrangement of the Senatorial and Delegate Districts, and apportionment of Delegates, shall hereafter be declared by law, as soon as possible after each succeeding census taken by authority of the United States. When so declared, they shall apply to the first general election for members of the Legislature to be thereafter held, and shall continue in force, unchanged, until such districts are altered and Delegates apportioned under the succeeding census.

16. Additional territory may be admitted into and become part of this State with the consent of the Legislature. And in such case, provision shall be made by law for the representation of the white population thereof in the Senate and House of Delegates, in conformity with the principles set forth in this Constitution. And the number of members of which each branch of the Legislature is to consist, shall thereafter be increased by the representation assigned to such additional territory.

17. No person shall be a member of the Legislature who shall not have resided within the district or county for which he was chosen one year next preceding his election; and if a Senator or Delegate remove from the district or county for which he was chosen, his office shall be thereby vacated.

18. No person holding an office of profit, under this State or the United States, shall be a member of the Legislature.

19. No person who may have collected, or been entrusted with public money, whether State, county, township, or municipal, shall be eligible to the Legislature, or to any office of honor, trust, or profit, until he shall have duly accounted for and paid over such money according to law.

20. The Legislature shall meet once in every year, and not oftener, unless convened by the Governor. The regular sessions shall begin on the third Tuesday of January.

21. The Governor may convene the Legislature by proclamation, whenever in his opinion, the public safety or welfare shall require it. It shall be his duty to convene them on application of a majority of the members elected to each branch.

22. The Seat of Government shall be at the city of Wheeling, until a permanent Seat of Government be established by law.

23. When, for any cause, the Legislature, in the opinion of the Governor, cannot safely meet at the Seat of Government, the Governor, by proclamation, may convene them at another place.

24. No session of the Legislature, after the first, shall continue longer than forty-five days, without the concurrence of three-fourths of the members elected to each branch.

25. Neither branch, during the session, shall adjourn for more than two days, without the consent of the other. Nor shall either, without such consent, adjourn to any other place than that in which the Legislature is then sitting.

26. Each branch shall be the judge of the elections, qualifications, and returns of its own members.

27. A majority of each branch shall constitute a quorum to do business. But a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and compel the attendance of absent members, in such manner as shall be prescribed by law.

28. The Senate shall choose from their own body a President, and the House of Delegates one of their own number as Speaker. Each branch shall appoint its own officers and remove them at pleasure; and shall determine its own rules of proceeding.

29. Each branch may punish its own members for disorderly behavior; and, with the concurrence of two-thirds of the members present, expel a member, but not a second time for the same offense.

30. Each branch shall have the power necessary to provide for its own safety, and the undisturbed transaction of its business; and may punish, by imprisonment, any person not a member, for disrespectful behavior in its presence, obstructing any of its proceedings, or any of its officers in the discharge of his duties, or for any assault, threatening, or abuse of a member for words spoken in debate. But such imprisonment shall not extend beyond the termination of the session, and shall not prevent the punishment of any offense by the ordinary course of law.

31. For words spoken in debate, or any report, motion, or proposition made, in either branch, a member shall not be questioned in any other place.

32. Members of the Legislature shall, in all cases except treason, felony, and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during the session, and for ten days before and after the same.

33. Senators and Delegates shall receive for their services a compensation not exceeding three dollars a day during the session of the Legislature, and also ten cents for every mile they shall travel in going to and returning from the place of meeting by the most direct route. The President of the Senate and Speaker of the House shall, respectively, receive an additional compensation of two dollars a day.

34. Bills and resolutions may originate in either branch, to be passed, amended, or rejected by the other.

35. No bill shall become a law until it has been fully and distinctly read on three different days in each branch; unless in cases of urgency, three-fourths of the members present dispense with this rule.

36. No law shall embrace more than one object, which shall be expressed in its title.

37. On the passage of every bill the vote shall be taken by yeas and nays, and be entered on the journal; and no bill shall be passed by either branch without the affirmative vote of a majority of the members elected thereto.

38. The presiding officer of each branch shall sign, before the close of the session, all bills and joint resolutions passed by the Legislature.

39. Each branch shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and cause the same to be published from time to time; and the yeas and nays on any question, if called for by one-fifth of those present, shall be entered on the journal.

ARTICLE V.

Executive.

1. The chief Executive power shall be vested in a Governor, who shall be elected by the voters of the State, and hold his office for the term of two years, to commence on the fourth day of March next succeeding his election. The person acting as Governor shall not be elected or appointed to any other office during his term of service.

2. The Governor shall reside at the seat of Government; shall receive two thousand dollars for each year of his service, and during his continuance in office shall receive no other emolument from this or any other Government.

3. The Governor shall be commander-in-chief of the military forces of the State; shall have power to call out the militia to repel invasion, suppress insurrection, and enforce the execution of the laws; shall conduct in person, or in such manner as may be prescribed by law, all intercourse with other States; and during the recess of the Legislature shall fill temporarily all vacancies in office, not provided for by this Constitution or the Legislature, by commissions to expire at the end of thirty days after the commencement of the succeeding session of the Legislature. He shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed; communicate to the Legislature at each session thereof the condition of the State, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he may deem expedient. He shall have power to remit fines and penalties in such cases and under such regulations as may be prescribed by law; to commute capital punishment; and, except when the prosecution has been carried on by the House of Delegates, to grant reprieves and pardons after conviction; but he shall communicate to the Legislature, at each session, the particulars of every case of fine or penalty remitted, of punishment commuted, and of reprieve or pardon granted, with his reasons for remitting, commuting, or granting the same.

4. The Governor may require information in writing from the officers of the Executive Department, upon any subject pertaining to their respective offices; and also the opinion in writing of the Attorney General upon any question of law relating to the business of the Executive Department.

5. Returns of the election of Governor shall be made, in the manner and by the persons designated by the Legislature, to the Secretary of the State, who shall deliver them to the Speaker of the House of Delegates on the first day of the next session of the Legislature. The Speaker shall, within ten days thereafter, in the presence of a majority of each branch of the Legislature, open the said returns, when the vote shall be counted. The person having the highest number of votes, if duly qualified, shall be declared elected; but if two or more have the highest and an equal number of votes, one of them shall thereupon be chosen Governor by the joint vote of the two branches. Contested elections for Governor shall be decided by a like vote, and the mode of proceeding in such cases shall be prescribed by law.

6. In case of the removal of the Governor from office, or of his death, failure to qualify within the time prescribed by law, resignation, removal from the seat of Government, or inability to discharge the duties of the office, the said office, with its compensation, duties, and authority, shall devolve upon the President of the Senate; and in case of his inability or failure from any cause to act, on the Speaker of the House of Delegates. The Legislature shall provide by law for the discharge of the Executive functions in other necessary cases.

7. A Secretary of the State, a Treasurer, and an Auditor shall be elected at the same time, and for the same term, as the Governor. Their duties shall be prescribed by law. The Secretary of the State shall receive thirteen hundred, the Treasurer fourteen hundred, and the Auditor fifteen hundred dollars, per annum.

8. The Governor shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint all military officers above the rank of colonel.

ARTICLE VI.

Judiciary.

1. The judicial power of the State shall be vested in a supreme court of appeals and circuit courts, and such inferior tribunals as are herein authorized.

2. The State shall be divided into nine circuits. The counties of Hancock, Brooke, Ohio, and Marshall shall constitute the first; Monongalia, Preston, Tucker, and Taylor, the second; Marion Harrison, and Barbour, the third; Wetzel, Tyler, Pleasants, Ritchie, Doddridge, and Gilmer, the fourth; Randolph, Upshur, Lewis, Braxton, Webster, and Nicholas, the fifth; Wood, Wirt, Calhoun, Roane, Jackson, and Clay, the sixth; Kanawha, Mason, Putnam, and Fayette, the seventh; Cabell, Wayne, Boone, Logan, Wyoming, and Raleigh, the eighth; and Pocahontas, Greenbrier, Monroe, Mercer and McDowell, the ninth. If the counties of Pendleton, Hardy, Hampshire, and Morgan become a part of the State, they shall constitute another circuit, to be called the tenth. And if the counties of Frederick, Berkeley, and Jefferson become a part of this State, they shall constitute the eleventh circuit.

3. The Legislature may, from time to time, re-arrange the circuits; and after the expiration of five years from the time this Constitution goes into operation, and thereafter, at periods of ten years, may increase or diminish the number of circuits, or the number of courts in a year, as necessity may require.

4. For each circuit, a Judge shall be elected by the voters thereof, who shall hold his office for the term of six years. During his continuance in office he shall reside in the circuit of which he is Judge.

5. A circuit court shall be held in every county at least four times a year, unless otherwise provided by law in pursuance of the third section of this Article. The Judges may be required or authorized to hold the courts of their respective circuits alternately, and a Judge of one circuit to hold a court in any other circuit.

6. The circuit court shall have the supervision and control of all proceedings before justices and other inferior tribunals, by mandamus, prohibition, or certiorari. They shall, except in cases confided exclusively by this Constitution to some other tribunal, have original and general jurisdiction of all matters at law, where the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, exceeds twenty dollars, and of all cases in equity, and of all crimes and misdemeanors. They shall have appellate jurisdiction in all cases, civil and criminal, where an appeal, writ of error, or supersedeas may be allowed to the judgment or proceedings of any inferior tribunal. They shall also have such other jurisdiction, whether supervisory, original, appellate, or concurrent, as may be prescribed by law.

7. The Supreme Court of Appeals shall consist of three judges, any two of whom shall be a quorum. They shall be elected by the voters of the State, and shall hold their offices for the term of twelve years; except that of those first elected, one, to be designated by lot in such manner as they may determine, shall hold his office for four years; another, to be designated in like manner, for eight years; and the third for twelve years; so that one shall be elected every four years after the first election.

8. The Supreme Court of Appeals shall have original jurisdiction in cases of habeas corpus, mandamus, and prohibition. It shall have appellate jurisdiction in civil cases where the matter in controversy, exclusive of costs, is of greater value or amount than two hundred dollars; in controversies concerning the title or boundaries of land, the probate of wills, the appointment or qualification of a personal representative, guardian, committee, or curator, or concerning a mill, road, way, ferry, or landing, or the right of a corporation or county to levy tolls or taxes; and also in cases of habeas corpus, mandamus, and prohibition, and cases involving freedom, or the constitutionality of a law. It shall have appellate jurisdiction in criminal cases where there has been a conviction for felony or misdemeanor in a circuit court, and such other appellate jurisdiction in both civil and criminal cases as may be prescribed by law.

9. When a judgment or decree is reversed or affirmed by the Supreme Court of Appeals, every point made and distinctly stated in writing in the cause, and fairly arising upon the record of the case, shall be considered and decided, and the reasons therefor shall be concisely and briefly stated in writing, and preserved with the records of the case.

10. When any Judge of the Court of Appeals is so situated in regard to any case pending before it, as to make it improper for him to aid in the trial of the same, or is under any other disability, the remaining Judges may call to their assistance a Judge of the circuit court, who shall act as a Judge of the Court of Appeals in the cases to which such disability relates.

11. Judges shall be commissioned by the Governor. The salary of a Judge of the Supreme Court of Appeals shall be two thousand, and that of a Judge of a circuit court eighteen hundred dollars per annum, and each shall receive the same allowance for necessary travel, as members of the Legislature.

12. No Judge, during his term of service, shall hold any other office, appointment, or public trust, under this or any other government, and the acceptance thereof shall vacate his judicial office; nor shall he, during his continuance therein, be eligible to any political office.

13. Judges may be removed from office for misconduct, incompetence, or neglect of duty, or on conviction of an infamous offense, by the concurrent vote of a majority of all the members elected to each branch of the Legislature, and the cause of removal shall be entered on the journals. The Judge, against whom the Legislature may be about to proceed, shall receive notice thereof, accompanied by a copy of the causes alleged for his removal, at least twenty days before the day on which either branch of the Legislature shall act thereon.

14. The officers of the Supreme Court of Appeals shall be appointed by the Court, or by the Judges thereof in vacation. Their duties, compensation, and tenure of office, shall be prescribed by law.

15. The voters of each county shall elect a Clerk of the Circuit Court, whose term of office shall be four years. His duties and compensation, and the mode of removing him from office, shall be prescribed by law; and when a vacancy shall occur in the office, the Judge of the Circuit Court shall appoint a Clerk, who shall discharge the duties of the office until the vacancy is filled. In any case, in respect to which the Clerk shall be so situated as to make it improper for him to act, the Court shall appoint a substitute.

16. At every regular election of a Governor, an Attorney General shall also be elected. He shall be commissioned by the Governor; shall perform such duties, and receive such compensation as may be prescribed by law, and be removable in the same manner as the Judges.

17. The Legislature may establish courts of limited jurisdiction within any incorporated town or city, subject to appeal to the Circuit Courts.

ARTICLE VII.

Counties and Townships.

1. Every County shall be divided into not less than three, nor more than ten townships, laid off as compactly as practicable, with reference to natural boundaries, and containing, as nearly as practicable, an equal number of white population, but not less than four hundred. Each township shall be designated "The Township of _____ in the County of _____," by which name it may sue and be sued.

2. The vote of each Township, assembled in stated or special Township meeting, shall transact all such business relating exclusively to their Township as is herein, or may be by law, required or authorized. They shall annually elect a Supervisor, Clerk of the Township, Surveyor of Roads for each precinct in their Township, Overseer of the Poor, and such other officers as may be directed by law. They shall also, every four years, elect one Justice; and if the white population of their Township exceeds twelve hundred in number, may elect an additional Justice; and every two years shall elect as many Constables as Justices. The Supervisor, or in his absence, a voter chosen by those present, shall preside at all Township meetings and elections, and the Clerk shall act as clerk thereof.

3. The Supervisors chosen in the Townships of each county shall constitute a Board, to be known as "The Supervisors of the County of _____," by which name they may sue and be sued, and make and use a common seal, and enact ordinances and by-laws not inconsistent with the laws of the State. They shall meet statedly at least four times in each year at the Court House of their county, and may hold special and adjourned meetings. At their first meeting after the annual Township election, and whenever a vacancy may occur, they shall elect one of their number President of the Board; and appoint a Clerk, who shall keep a journal of their proceedings, and transact such other business pertaining to his office as may be by them or by law required, and whose compensation they shall fix by ordinance, and pay from the county treasury.

4. The Board of Supervisors of each county, a majority of whom shall be a quorum, shall, under such general regulations as may be prescribed by law, have the superintendence and administration of the internal affairs and fiscal concerns of their County, including the establishment and regulation of roads, public landings, ferries, and mills; the granting of ordinary and other licenses; and the laying, collecting, and disbursement of the county levies; but all writs of ad quod damnum shall issue from the Circuit Courts. They shall from time to time appoint the places for holding elections in the several Townships of their County; and shall be the judges of the election, qualifications, and returns of their own members, and of all County and Township officers.

5. The voters of every county shall elect a Sheriff, Prosecuting Attorney, Surveyor of Lands, Recorder, one or more Assessors, and such other county officers as the Legislature may from time to time direct or authorize; the duties of all of whom shall be prescribed and defined, as far as practicable, by general laws. All the said county officers shall hold their offices for two years, except the Sheriff, whose term of office shall be four years. The same person shall not be elected Sheriff for two consecutive full terms, nor shall any person who has acted as deputy of any Sheriff be elected his successor, nor shall any Sheriff act as the deputy of his successor; but the retiring Sheriff shall finish all business remaining in his hands at the expiration of his term, for which purpose his commission and official bond shall continue in force. The duties of all the said officers shall be discharged by the incumbents thereof in person, or under their superintendence. The Board of Supervisors shall designate one or more constables of their respective counties to serve process and levy executions, when the Sheriff thereof is a party defendant in a suit instituted therein, or is under any other disability.

6. The Recorder, in addition to the duties incident to the recording of inventories, and other papers relating to estates, and of deeds and other writings, the registering of births, marriages, and deaths, and the issuing of marriage licenses, shall have authority, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law, to receive proof of wills and admit them to probate, to appoint and qualify personal representatives, guardians, committees, and curators, to administer oaths, take acknowledgments of deeds and other writings, and relinquishments of dower.

7. The Legislature shall, at their first session, by general laws, provide for carrying into effect the foregoing provisions of this article. They shall also provide for commissioning such of the officers therein mentioned as they may deem proper, and may require any class of them to give bond with security for the faithful discharge of the duties of their respective offices, and for accounting for and paying over, as required by law, all money which may come to their hands by virtue thereof. They shall further provide for the compensation of the said officers by fees, or from the county treasury; and for the appointment, when necessary, of deputies and assistants, whose duties and responsibilities shall be prescribed and defined by general laws. When the compensation of an officer is paid from the county treasury, the amount shall be fixed by the Board of Supervisors, within limits to be ascertained by law.

8. The civil jurisdiction of a justice shall extend to actions of assumpsit, debt, detinue, and trover, if the amount claimed, exclusive of interest, does not exceed one hundred dollars, when the defendant resides, or, being a non-resident of the State, is found, or has effects or estate within his township, or when the cause of action arose therein; but any other justice of the same county may issue a summons to the defendant to appear before the justice of the proper township, which may be served by a constable of either township. In case of a vacancy in the office of justice or constable in any township having but one, or of the disability to act of the incumbent, any other justice or constable of the same county may discharge the duties of their respective offices within the said township. The manner of conducting the aforesaid actions, and of issuing summonses and executions, and of executing and making returns of the same, shall be prescribed by law; and the Legislature may give to justices and constables such additional civil jurisdiction and powers, within their respective townships, as may be deemed expedient.

9. Every justice and constable shall be a conservator of the peace throughout his county, and have such jurisdiction and powers in criminal cases therein as may be prescribed by law. Jurisdiction of all misdemeanors and breaches of the peace, punishable by fine not exceeding ten dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than thirty days, may be, by law, vested in the Justices.

10. Either party to a civil suit brought before a Justice, where the value in controversy, or the damages claimed, exceeds twenty dollars; and the defendant, in such cases of misdemeanor or breach of the peace as may be made by law cognizable by a single Justice, when the penalty is imprisonment or a fine exceeding five dollars, shall be entitled to a trial by six jurors, if demanded, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law.

11. In all cases an appeal shall lie, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law, from the judgment or proceedings of a Justice or Recorder, to the Circuit Court of the County, excepting judgments of Justices in assumpsit, debt, detinue, and trover, and for fines, where the amount does not exceed ten dollars exclusive of interest and costs, and where the case does not involve the freedom of a person, the validity of a law, or the right of a corporation or county to levy tolls or taxes.

12. No new county shall be formed having an area of less than four hundred square miles; or if another county be thereby reduced below that area; or if any territory be thereby taken from a county containing less than four hundred square miles. And no new county shall be formed containing a white population of less than four thousand; or if the white population of another county be thereby reduced below that number; or if any county containing less than four thousand white inhabitants be thereby reduced in area. But the Legislature may, at any time, annex any county containing less than four thousand white inhabitants to an adjoining county or counties as part thereof.

13. The Board of Supervisors may alter the bounds of a Township of their county, or erect new Townships therein, with the consent of a majority of the voters of each Township interested, assembled in stated Township meeting, or in a meeting duly called for the purpose, subject to the provisions of the first section of this article.

14. Nothing contained in this article shall impair or affect the character of any municipal corporation, or restrict the power of the Legislature to create or regulate such corporations.

ARTICLE VIII.

Taxation and Finance.

1. Taxation shall be equal and uniform throughout the State, and all property, both real and personal, shall be taxed in proportion to its value.

to be ascertained as directed by law. No one species of property from which a tax may be collected, shall be taxed higher than any other species of property of equal value; but property used for educational, literary, scientific, religious, or charitable purposes, and public property, may, by law, be exempted from taxation.

2. A capitation tax of one dollar shall be levied upon each white male inhabitant who has attained the age of twenty-one years.

3. The Legislature shall provide for an annual tax, sufficient to defray the estimated expenses of the State for each year; and whenever the ordinary expenses of any year shall exceed the income, shall levy a tax for the ensuing year, sufficient, with other sources of income, to pay the deficiency, as well as the estimated expenses of such year.

4. No money shall be drawn from the Treasury but in pursuance of appropriations made by law, and an accurate and detailed statement of the receipts and expenditures of the public money shall be published annually.

5. No debt shall be contracted by this State, except to meet casual deficits in the revenue, to redeem a previous liability of the State, to suppress insurrection, repel invasion, or defend the State in time of war.

6. The credit of the State shall not be granted to, or in aid of, any county, city, town, township, corporation, or person; nor shall the State ever assume or become responsible for the debts or liabilities of any county, city, town, township, corporation, or person, unless incurred in time of war or insurrection for the benefit of the State.

7. The Legislature may at any time direct a sale of the stocks owned by the State in banks and other corporations, but the proceeds of such sale shall be applied to the liquidation of the public debt; and hereafter the State shall not become a stockholder in any bank. If the State become a stockholder in any association or corporation for purposes of internal improvement, such stock shall be paid for at the time of subscribing, or a tax shall be levied for the ensuing year, sufficient to pay the subscription in full.

8. An equitable proportion of the public debt of the Commonwealth of Virginia, prior to the first day of January in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-one, shall be assumed by this State; and the Legislature shall ascertain the same as soon as may be practicable, and provide for the liquidation thereof, by a sinking fund sufficient to pay the accruing interest, and redeem the principal within thirty-four years.

ARTICLE IX.

Forfeited and Unappropriated Lands.

1. All private rights and interests in lands in this State, derived from or under the laws of the State of Virginia, prior to the time this Constitution goes into operation, shall remain valid and secure, and shall be determined by the laws heretofore in force in the State of Virginia.

2. No entry by warrant on land in this State shall be hereafter made; and in all cases where an entry has been heretofore made and has been or shall be so perfected as to entitle the locator to a grant, the Legislature shall make provision by law for issuing the same.

3. The Legislature shall provide for the sale of all lands in this State heretofore forfeited to the State of Virginia for the non-payment of the taxes charged thereon for the year one thousand eight hundred and thirty-one, or any year previous thereto, or for the failure of the former owners to have the same entered on the land books of the proper county and charged with the taxes due thereon for the said or any year previous thereto, under the laws of the State of Virginia, and also of all waste and unappropriated lands, by proceedings in the Circuit Courts of the county where such lands are situated.

4. All lands within this State, returned delinquent for non-payment of taxes to the State of Virginia since the year one thousand eight hundred and thirty-one, where the taxes, exclusive of damages, do not exceed twenty dollars; and all lands forfeited for the failure of the owners to have the same entered on the land books of the proper county, and charged with the taxes chargeable thereon since the year one thousand eight hundred and thirty-one, where the tract does not contain more than one thousand acres, are hereby released and exonerated from forfeiture, and from the delinquent taxes and damages charged thereon.

5. All lands in this State heretofore vested in the State of Virginia by forfeiture, or by purchase at the sheriffs' sales for delinquent taxes, and not released or exonerated by the laws thereof, or by the operation of the preceding section, may be redeemed by the former owners, by payment to this State of the amount of taxes and damages due thereon at the time of such redemption, within five years from the day this Constitution goes into operation; and all such lands not so released, exonerated or redeemed, shall be treated as forfeited, and proceeded against and sold as provided in the third section of this article.

6. The former owner of any tract of land in this State sold under the provisions of this article, shall be entitled to receive the excess of the sum for which such tract may be sold over the taxes and damages charged and chargeable thereon, and the costs, if his claim be filed in the Circuit Court which decreed the sale, within two years thereafter.

ARTICLE X.

Education.

1. All money accruing to this State, being the proceeds of forfeited, delinquent, waste, and unappropriated lands; and of lands heretofore sold for taxes and purchased by the State of Virginia, if hereafter redeemed, or sold to others than this State; all grants, devises, or bequests that may be made to this State for the purposes of education, or where the purposes of such grants, devises, or bequests are not specified; this State's just share of the literary fund of Virginia, whether paid over or otherwise liquidated, and any sums of money, stocks, or property which this State shall have the right to claim from the State of Virginia for educational purposes; the proceeds of the estates of all persons who may die without leaving a will or heir, and of all escheated lands; the proceeds of any taxes that may be levied on the revenues of any corporation hereafter created; all monies that may be paid as an equivalent for exemption from military duty; and such sums as may from time to time be appropriated by the Legislature for the purpose, shall be set apart as a separate fund, to be called the School Fund, and invested under such regulations as may be prescribed by law, in the interest bearing securities of the United States, or of this state: and the interest thereof shall be annually applied to the support of free schools throughout the State, and to no other purpose whatever. But any portion of said interest remaining unexpended at the close of a fiscal year, shall be added to, and remain a part of, the capital of the School Fund.

2. The Legislature shall provide, as soon as practicable, for the establishment of a thorough and efficient system of free schools. They shall provide for the support of such schools by appropriating thereto the interest of the invested school fund; the net proceeds of all forfeitures, confiscations, and fines accruing to this State under the laws thereof; and by general taxation on persons and property, or otherwise. They shall also provide for raising in each township, by the authority of the people thereof, such a proportion of the amount required for the support of free schools therein as shall be prescribed by general laws.

3. Provision may be made by law for the election and prescribing the powers, duties, and compensation of a General Superintendent of free schools for the State, whose term of office shall be the same as that of the Governor; and for a County Superintendent for each county; and for the election, in the several townships, by the voters thereof, of such officers, not specified in this Constitution, as may be necessary to carry out the objects of this article; and for the organization, whenever it may be deemed expedient, of a State Board of Instruction.

4. The Legislature shall foster and encourage moral, intellectual, scientific, and agricultural improvement; they shall, whenever it may be practicable, make suitable provisions for the blind, mute, and insane, and for the organization of such institutions of learning as the best interests of general education in the State may demand.

ARTICLE XI.

Miscellaneous.

1. No lottery shall be allowed by law; and the buying, selling, or transferring of tickets or chances in any lottery shall be prohibited.

2. No charter of incorporation shall be granted to any church or religious denomination. Provision may be made by general laws for securing the title to church property, so that it shall be held and used for the purposes intended.

3. The Circuit Courts shall have power, under such general regulations as may be prescribed by law, to grant divorces, change the names of persons, and direct the sales of estates belonging to infants and other persons under legal disabilities, but relief shall not be granted by special legislation in such cases.

4. Laws may be passed regulating or prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors within the limits of this State.

5. The Legislature shall pass general laws whereby any number of persons associated for mining, manufacturing, insuring, or other purposes useful to the public, excepting banks of circulation and the construction of works of internal improvement, may become a corporation, on complying with the terms and conditions thereby prescribed; and no special act incorporating, or granting peculiar privileges to any joint stock company or association, not having in view the issuing of bills to circulate as money or the construction of some work of internal improvement, shall be passed. No company or association, authorized by this section, shall issue bills to circulate as money. No charter of incorporation shall be granted under such general laws, unless the right be reserved to alter or amend such charter at the pleasure of the Legislature, to be declared by general laws. No act to incorporate any bank of circulation or internal improvement company, or to confer additional privileges on the same, shall be passed, unless public notice of the intended application for such act be given under such regulations as shall be prescribed by law.

6. For the election of representatives to Congress, the State shall be divided into districts, corresponding in number with the representatives to which it may be entitled; which districts shall be formed of contiguous counties and be compact. Each district shall contain, as nearly as may be, an equal federal number, to be determined according to the rule prescribed in the second section of the first article of the Constitution of the United States.

7. The children of slaves born within the limits of this State after the fourth day of July, eighteen hundred and sixty-three, shall be free; and all slaves within the said State who shall, at the time aforesaid, be under the age of ten years, shall be free when they arrive at the age of twenty-one years and all slaves over ten and under twenty-one years, shall be free when they arrive at the age of twenty-five years; and no slave shall be permitted to come into the State for permanent residence therein.

8. Such parts of the common law and of the laws of the State of Virginia as are in force within the boundaries of the State of West Virginia, when this Constitution goes into operation, and are not repugnant thereto, shall be and continue the law of this State until altered or repealed by the Legislature. All offences against the laws of Virginia heretofore committed within the boundaries of this State shall be cognizable in the courts of this State, in the same manner they would be if hereafter committed within this State. All civil and criminal suits and proceedings pending in the County or Circuit Courts of the State of Virginia, held within the said boundaries, shall be docketed and thereafter proceeded in before the Circuit Court of the proper county; and all such suits and proceedings pending in the Supreme and District Courts of Appeals of the State of Virginia, if the defendant in the court below resides within the said boundaries, or the subject of the suit is land or other property situated or being therein, and the plaintiff is en-

9. The records, books, papers, seals, and other property and appurtenances of the former Circuit or County Courts, within the State of West Virginia, shall be transferred to, and remain in, the care and custody of the Circuit Courts of the respective counties, to which all process outstanding at the time this Constitution goes into operation shall be returned, and by which new process in suits then pending, or previously determined, in the said former Courts, may be issued in proper cases. Copies and transcripts of the records and proceedings of the said former Courts shall be made and certified by the Courts having the care and custody of such records and proceedings, or the proper officers thereof, and shall have the same force and effect as if they had been heretofore properly made and certified by the said former Courts.

ARTICLE XII.

Amendments.

1. No Convention shall be called, having authority to alter the Constitution of the State, unless it be in pursuance of a law passed by the affirmative vote of a majority of the members elected to each branch of the Legislature, and providing that polls shall be held throughout the State, on some day therein specified, which shall not be less than three months after the passage of such law, for the purpose of taking the sense of the voters on the question of calling a Convention. And such Convention shall not be held unless a majority of the votes cast at such polls be in favor of calling the same; nor shall members be elected to such Convention, until at least one month after the result of the polls shall be duly ascertained, declared and published. And all acts and ordinances of said Convention shall be submitted to the voters of the State for ratification or rejection, and shall have no validity whatever, until they are ratified, and in no event shall they, by any shift or device, be made to have any retrospective operation or effect.

2. Any amendment to the Constitution of the State may be proposed in either branch of the Legislature; and if the same, being read on three several days in each branch, be agreed to on its third reading, by a majority of the members elected thereto, the proposed amendment, with the yeas and nays thereon, shall be entered on the journals, and referred to the Legislature at the first session to be held after the next general election; and shall be published, at least three months before such election, in some newspaper in every county in which a newspaper is printed. And if the proposed amendment be agreed to during such session, by a majority of the members elected to each branch, it shall be the duty of the Legislature to provide by law for submitting the same to the voters of the State, for ratification or rejection. And if a majority of the qualified voters, voting upon the question at the polls held pursuant to such law, ratify the proposed amendment, it shall be in force from the time of such ratification, as part of the Constitution of the State. If two or more amendments be submitted at the same time, the vote on the ratification or rejection shall be taken on each separately.

DIVISION OF STATE RECOMMENDED BY GOVERNOR PIERPONT.

Extracts From His Message Convening the General Assembly in Extraordinary Session May 6, 1862.

"I have convened you in extra session, the principal object of which is, to take final action in the proposed division of the State of Virginia as far as the Legislature is concerned." After reviewing the history of the Convention that framed the Constitution, the Governor added: "The Constitution of the United States provides that no new State shall be formed or erected within the jurisdiction of any other State, without the consent of the Legislature of the State concerned, as well as of the Congress. Therefore to complete the work which has been commenced, of the division of the State, it requires the consent of the Legislature of Virginia and the assent of Congress. Of course your honorable body will take such action in the premises as shall seem meet to you.

Perhaps. I have performed my duty in submitting the matter to you without saying more. But I am not willing to leave the question here. It is urged by some that the movement is revolutionary. Those who urge this objection, do not understand the history, and geography and social relations of our State. Geographically, the East is separated from the West by mountains which form an almost impassable barrier, as far as trade is concerned. The barrier is so great that no artificial means of intercourse has ever been made beyond a mud turnpike road. All trade and commerce of the West is with other States, and not with Eastern Virginia. The two sections are entirely dissimilar in their social relation and institutions. While the East is largely interested in slaves, the West has none and all the labor is performed by free men. The mode and subjects of taxation in the State have been a source of irritation and indeed of strife and vexation, between the two sections for many years past, as well as that of representation in the Legislature. The subject of the division of the State has been agitated at one time and another ever since I can remember."

AN ACT FOR ADMISSION INTO THE UNION.

Passed by Congress December 10, 1862; Approved by President Lincoln
December 31, 1862.

Whereas, the people inhabiting that portion of Virginia, known as West Virginia did, by Convention, in the city of Wheeling on the 26th day of November, 1861, frame for themselves a Constitution with a view of becoming a separate and independent State; and

Whereas, at a general election held in the counties composing the territory aforesaid on the third day of May last, the said Constitution was approved and adopted by the qualified voters of the proposed State; and

Whereas, the Legislature of Virginia by an act passed on the thirteenth day of May, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, did give its consent to the formation of a new State within the jurisdiction of the State of Virginia, to be known by the name of West Virginia, and to embrace the following named counties, to-wit: Hancock, Brooke, Ohio, Marshall, Wetzel, Marion, Monongalia, Preston, Taylor, Tyler, Pleasants, Ritchie, Doddridge, Harrison, Wood, Jackson, Wirt, Roane, Calhoun, Gilmer, Barbour, Tucker, Lewis, Braxton, Upshur, Randolph, Mason, Putnam, Kanawha, Clay, Nicholas, Cabell, Wayne, Boone, Logan, Wyoming, Mercer, McDowell, Webster, Pocahontas, Fayette, Raleigh, Greenbrier, Monroe, Pendleton, Hardy, Hampshire, and Morgan; and

Whereas, both the Convention and the Legislature aforesaid have requested that the new State should be admitted into the Union, and the Constitution aforesaid being republican in form, Congress does hereby consent that the said forty-eight counties may be formed into a separate and independent State. Therefore—

Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the State of West Virginia be, and is hereby, declared to be one of the United States of America, and admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original States in all respects whatever, and until the next general census, shall be entitled to three members in the House of Representatives of the United States; Provided, always, That this act shall not take effect until after the proclamation of the President of the United States hereinafter provided for.

It being represented to Congress that since the Convention of the twenty-sixth of November, eighteen hundred and sixty-one, that framed and proposed the Constitution for the said State of West Virginia, the people thereof have expressed a wish to change the seventh section of the eleventh article of said Constitution by striking out the same and inserting the following in its place, viz.: "The children of slaves born within the limits of this State after the fourth day of July, eighteen hundred and sixty-three, shall be free; and that all slaves within the said State who shall, at the time aforesaid, be under the age of ten years, shall be free when they arrive at the age of twenty-one years; and all slaves over ten and under twenty-one years shall be free when they arrive at the age of twenty-five years; and no slave shall be permitted to come into the State for permanent residence therein." Therefore—

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, That whenever the people of West Virginia shall, through their said Convention, and by a vote to be taken at an election to be held within the limits of the said State, at such time as the Convention may provide, make and ratify the change aforesaid, and properly certify the same under the hand of the president of the Convention, it shall be lawful for the President of the United States to issue his proclamation stating the fact, and thereupon this act shall take effect and be in force from and after sixty days from the date of said proclamation.

AN HISTORICAL NOTATION.

Excerpt From President Lincoln's Memorandum Attached to the Act of Admission.

"More than on anything else, it (the expediency of admitting West Virginia into the Union) depends on whether the admission or rejection of the new state would, under all the circumstances, tend to the restoration of national authority throughout the Union. That which helps most in this direction is the most expedient at this time. Doubtless those in remaining Virginia would return to the Union, so to speak, less reluctantly without the division of the old state than with it, but I think we could not save as much in this quarter by rejecting the new state as we should lose by it in West Virginia. WE CAN SCARCELY DISPENSE WITH THE AID OF WEST VIRGINIA IN THIS STRUGGLE; MUCH LESS CAN WE AFFORD TO HAVE HER AGAINST US IN CONGRESS AND IN THE FIELD.

"Her brave and good men regard her admission into the Union as a matter of life and death. They have been true to the Union and under very severe trials. We have so acted as to justify their hopes, and we cannot fully retain their confidence and co-operation if we seem to break faith with them. In fact, they could not do so much for us, if they would. Again, the admission of the new state turns that much slave soil free, and thus is a certain and irrevocable encroachment upon the cause of the rebellion. The division of a state is dreaded as a precedent. But a measure made expedient by a war is no precedent for times of peace. It is said that the admission of West Virginia is secession and tolerated only because it is our secession. Well, if we call it by that name, THERE IS STILL DIFFERENCE ENOUGH BETWEEN SECESSION AGAINST THE CONSTITUTION AND SECESSION IN FAVOR OF THE CONSTITUTION. I believe the admission of West Virginia into the Union is expedient."

TRANSFER OF PROPERTY AND CLAIMS.

Provided for by an Act of the Restored Government, Passed February 3, 1863.

1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Virginia. That all property, real, personal and mixed, owned by or appertaining to this state, and being within the boundaries of the proposed state of West Virginia, when the same becomes one of the United States, shall thereupon pass to and become the property of the state of West Virginia, and without any other assignment, conveyance, transfer or delivery than is herein contained; and shall include among other things not herein specified, all lands, buildings, roads and other internal improvements, or parts thereof situated within the said boundaries, and now vested in this state, or in the president and directors of the board of the literary fund, or the board of public works thereof, or in any person or persons, for the use of this state to the extent of the interest and estate of this state therein; and shall also include the interest of this state, or of the said president and directors, or of the said board of public works, in any parent bank or branch doing business within the said boundaries; and all stocks of any other company or corporation, the principal office or place of business whereof is located within the said boundaries standing in the name of this state or of the said president or directors, or of the said board of public works, or of any person or persons, for the use of this state.

2. Be it further enacted. ARTICLE I.

Relations to the Government of the United States.

1. The State of West Virginia is, and shall remain, one of the United States of America. The Constitution of the United States of America, and the laws and treaties made in pursuance thereof, shall be the supreme law of the land.

2. The government of the United States is a government of enumerated powers, and all powers not delegated to it, nor inhibited to the States, are reserved to the States or to the people thereof. Among the powers so reserved to the States is the exclusive regulation of their own internal government and police; and it is the high and solemn duty of the several departments of government, created by this Constitution, to guard and protect the people of this State from all encroachments upon the rights so reserved.

3. The provisions of the Constitution of the United States, and of this State, are operative alike in a period of war as in time of peace, and any departure therefrom, or violation thereof, under the plea of necessity, or any other plea, is subversive of good government, and tends to anarchy and despotism.

4. For the election of representatives to congress, the State shall be divided into districts, corresponding in number with the representatives to which it may be entitled; which districts shall be formed of contiguous counties, and be compact. Each district shall contain, as nearly as may be, an equal number of population, to be determined according to the rule prescribed in the Constitution of the United States.

ARTICLE II.

The State.

1. The territory of the following counties, formerly parts of the Commonwealth of Virginia, shall constitute and form the State of West Virginia, viz.:

The counties of Barbour, Berkeley, Boone, Braxton, Brooke, Cabell, Calhoun, Clay, Doddridge, Fayette, Gilmer, Grant, Greenbrier, Hampshire, Hancock, Hardy, Harrison, Jackson, Jefferson, Kanawha, Lewis, Lincoln, Logan, Marion, Marshall, Mason, McDowell, Mercer, Mineral, *Mingo, Monongalia, Monroe, Morgan, Nicholas, Ohio, Pendleton, Pleasants, Pocahontas, Preston, Putnam, Raleigh, Randolph, Ritchie, Roane, Summers, Taylor, Tucker, Tyler, Upshur, Wayne, Webster, Wetzel, Wirt, Wood and Wyoming. The State of West Virginia includes the bed, bank and shores of the Ohio river, and so much of the Big Sandy river as was formerly included in the Commonwealth of Virginia; and all territorial rights and property in, and jurisdiction over the same, heretofore reserved by and vested in the Commonwealth of Virginia, are vested in and shall hereafter be exercised by the State of West Virginia. And such parts of the said beds, banks and shores, as lie opposite, and adjoining the several counties of this State, shall form parts of said several counties, respectively.

* Mingo county created by an act of 1895.

2. The powers of government reside in all the citizens of the State, and can be rightfully exercised only in accordance with their will and appointment.

3. All persons residing in this State, born, or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, shall be citizens of this State.

4. Every citizen shall be entitled to equal representation in the government, and, in all apportionments of representation, equality of numbers of those entitled thereto, shall as far as practicable, be preserved.

5. No distinction shall be made between resident aliens and citizens, as to the acquisition, tenure, disposition or descent of property.

6. Treason against the State shall consist only in levying war against it, or in adhering to its enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason, unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court. Treason shall be punished, according to the character of the acts committed, by the infliction of one, or more of the penalties, of death, imprisonment or fine, as may be prescribed by law.

7. The present seal of the State with its motto, "Montani Semper Liberi," shall be the great seal of the State of West Virginia, and shall be kept by the Secretary of State, to be used by him officially, as directed by law.

8. Writs, grants and commissions, issued under the authority of this State shall run in the name of, and official bonds shall be made payable to the State of West Virginia. Indictments shall conclude, "Against the peace and dignity of the State."

ARTICLE III.

Bill of Rights.

1. All men are, by nature, equally free and independent, and have certain inherent rights, of which when they enter into a state of society, they cannot, by any compact, deprive or divest their posterity, namely: the enjoyment of life and liberty, with the means of acquiring and possessing property, and of pursuing and obtaining happiness and safety.

2. All power is vested in, and consequently derived from, the people. Magistrates are their trustees and servants, and at all times amenable to them.

3. Government is instituted for the common benefit, protection and security of the people, nation or community. Of all its various forms that is the best, which is capable of producing the greatest degree of happiness and safety, and is most effectually secured against the danger of maladministration; and when any government shall be found inadequate or contrary to these purposes, a majority of the community has an indubitable, inalienable, and indefeasible right to reform, alter or abolish it in such a manner as shall be judged most conducive to the public weal.

4. The privilege of a writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended. No person shall be held to answer for treason, felony or other crime not cognizable by a justice, unless on presentment or indictment of a grand jury. No bill of attainder, ex-post facto law, or law impairing the obligation of a contract, shall be passed.

5. Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishment inflicted. Penalties shall be proportioned to the character and degree of the offense. No person shall be transported out of, or forced to leave the State for any offense committed within the same; nor shall any person, in any criminal case, be compelled to be a witness against himself, or be twice put in jeopardy of life or liberty for the same offense.

6. The right of citizens to be secure in their houses, persons, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated. No warrant shall issue except upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, particularly describing the place to be searched, or the person or thing to be seized.

7. No law abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press, shall be passed; but the Legislature may by suitable penalties, restrain the publication or sale of obscene books, papers or pictures, and provide for the punishment of libel, and defamation of character, and for the recovery in civil actions, by the aggrieved party, of suitable damages for such libel, or defamation.

8. In prosecutions, and civil suits for libel, the truth may be given in evidence; and if it shall appear to the jury that the matter charged as libelous, is true; and was published with good motives, and for justifiable ends, the verdict shall be for the defendant.

9. Private property shall not be taken or damaged for public use, without just compensation; nor shall the same be taken by any company, incorporated for the purpose of internal improvements, until just compensation shall have been paid or secured to be paid, to the owner; and when private property shall be taken, or damaged, for public use, or for the use of such corporations, the compensation to the owner shall be ascertained in such manner, as may be prescribed by general law; Provided, that when required by either of the parties, such compensation shall be ascertained by an impartial jury of twelve freeholders.

10. No person shall be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law, and the judgment of his peers.

11. Political tests requiring persons, as a pre-requisite to the enjoyment of their civil and political rights, to purge themselves by their own oaths, of past alleged offenses, are repugnant to the principles of free government, and are cruel and oppressive. No religious or political test oath shall be required as a pre-requisite or qualification to vote, serve as a juror, sue, plead, appeal, or pursue any profession or employment. Nor shall any person be deprived by law, of any right, or privilege, because of any act done prior to the passage of such law.

12. Standing armies in time of peace, should be avoided as dangerous to liberty. The military shall be subordinate to the civil power; and no citizen unless engaged in the military service of the State, shall be tried or punished by any military court, for any offense that is cognizable by the civil courts of the State. No soldier shall, in time of peace, be quartered in any house, without the consent of the owner; nor in time of war, except in the manner to be prescribed by law.

13. In suits at common law, where the value in controversy exceeds twenty dollars exclusive of interest and costs, the right of trial by jury, if required by either party, shall be preserved; and in such suit before a justice a jury may consist of six persons. No fact tried by a jury shall be otherwise re-examined in any case than according to the rules of the common law.

[The amendment of this section was proposed by joint resolution of March 7, 1879, Acts 1879, p. 182, and adopted at the next election.]

14. Trial of crimes, and of misdemeanors, unless herein otherwise provided, shall be by a jury of twelve men, public, without unreasonable delay, and in the county where the alleged offence was committed, unless upon petition of the accused, and for good cause shown, it is removed to some other county. In all such trials, the accused shall be fully and plainly informed of the character and cause of the accusation, and be confronted with the witnesses against him, and shall have the assistance of counsel, and a reasonable time to prepare for his defence; and there shall be awarded to him compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor.

15. No man shall be compelled to frequent or support any religious worship, place or ministry whatsoever; nor shall any man be enforced, restrained, molested or burthened, in his body or goods, or otherwise suffer, on account of his religious opinions or belief, but all men shall be free to profess, and by argument, to maintain their opinions in matters of religion; and the same shall, in no wise, affect, diminish or enlarge their civil capacities; and the legislature shall not prescribe any religious test whatever, or confer any peculiar privileges or advantages on any sect or denomination, or pass any law requiring or authorizing any religious society, or the people of any district within this State, to levy on themselves, or others, any tax for the erection or repair of any house for public worship, or for the support of any church or ministry, but it shall be left free for every person to select his religious instructor, and to make for his support, such private contract as he shall please.

16. The right of the people to assemble in a peaceable manner, to consult for the common good, to instruct their representatives, or to apply for redress of grievances, shall be held inviolate.

17. The courts of this state shall be open, and every person, for an injury done to him, in his person, property or reputation, shall have remedy by due course of law; and justice shall be administered without sale, denial or delay.

18. No conviction shall work corruption of blood or forfeiture of estate.

19. No hereditary emoluments, honors, or privileges shall ever be granted or conferred in this State.

20. Free government and the blessings of liberty can be preserved to any people only a firm adherence to justice, moderation, temperance, frugality and virtue, and by a frequent recurrence to fundamental principles.

ARTICLE IV.

Elections and Officers.

1. The male citizens of the State shall be entitled to vote at all elections held within the counties in which they respectively reside; but no person who is a minor, or of unsound mind, or a pauper, or who is under conviction of treason, felony, or bribery in an election, or who has not been a resident of the State for one year, and of the county in which he offers to vote, sixty days next preceding such offer, shall be permitted to vote while such disability continues; but no person in the military, naval or marine service of the United States shall be deemed a resident of this State by reason of being stationed therein.

2. In all elections by the people, the mode of voting shall be by ballot; but the voter shall be left free to vote by either open, sealed or secret ballot, as he may elect.

3. No voter, during the continuance of an election at which he is entitled to vote, or during the time necessary and convenient for going to and returning from the same, shall be subject to arrest upon civil process, or be compelled to attend any court, or judicial proceeding, as suitor, juror or witness; or to work upon the public roads; or, except in time of war or public danger, to render military service.

4. No person, except citizens entitled to vote, shall be elected or appointed to any State, county or municipal office; but the Governor and Judges must have attained the age of thirty, and the Attorney General and Senators the age of twenty-five years, at the beginning of their respective terms of service; and must have been citizens of the State for five years next preceding their election or appointment, or be citizens at the time this Constitution goes into operation.

5. Every person elected or appointed to any office, before proceeding to exercise the authority, or discharge the duties thereof, shall make oath or affirmation that he will support the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of this State, and that he will faithfully discharge the duties of his said office to the best of his skill and judgment, and no other oath, declaration or test shall be required as a qualification, unless herein otherwise provided.

6. All officers elected or appointed under this Constitution, may, unless in cases herein otherwise provided for, be removed from office, for official misconduct, incompetence, neglect of duty, or immorality, in such manner as may be prescribed by general laws, and unless so removed they shall continue to discharge the duties of their respective offices, until their successors are elected, or appointed and qualified.

The general elections of State and county officers, and of members of the legislature, shall be held on the Tuesday next after the first Monday in November, until otherwise provided by law. The terms of such officers not elected, or appointed to fill a vacancy, shall, unless herein otherwise provided, begin, on the first day of January; and of the

[†By the provisions of the reappointment act of 1901. (Acts 1901, ch. 10), the number of senatorial districts was increased to fifteen, and the counties constituting each district changed.]

House of Delegates, shall, at each apportionment, be attached to some contiguous county or counties, to form a †Delegate District.

7. After every census the Delegates shall be apportioned as follows: The ratio of representation for the House of Delegates shall be ascertained by dividing the whole population of the State by the number of which the House is to consist and rejecting the fraction of a unit, if any, resulting from such division. Dividing the population of every Delegate District, and of every county not included in a Delegate District, by the ratio thus ascertained, there shall be assigned to each a number of Delegates equal to the quotient obtained by this division, excluding the fractional remainder. The additional Delegates necessary to make up the number of which the House is to consist, shall then be assigned to those Delegate Districts, and counties not included in a Delegate District, which would otherwise have the largest fractions unrepresented, but every Delegate District and county not included in a Delegate District shall be entitled to at least one Delegate.

8. Until a new apportionment shall be declared, the counties of Pleasants and Wood shall form the first Delegate District, and elect three Delegates; Ritchie and Calhoun the second, and elect two Delegates; Barbour, Harrison and Taylor the third, and elect one Delegate; Randolph and Tucker the fourth, and elect one Delegate; Nicholas, Clay and Webster the fifth, and elect one Delegate; McDowell and Wyoming the sixth, and elect one Delegate.

9. Until a new apportionment shall be declared the apportionment of Delegates to the counties not included in Delegate Districts, and to Barbour, Harrison and Taylor counties, embraced in such Districts, shall be as follows:

To Berkeley, Harrison, Jefferson, Marion, Marshall, Mason, Monongalia and Preston counties, two Delegates each.

To Kanawha county, three Delegates.

To Ohio county, four Delegates.

10. The arrangement of the Senatorial and Delegate Districts, and apportionment of Delegates, shall hereafter be declared by law, as soon as possible after each succeeding census, taken by authority of the United States. When so declared they shall apply to the first general election for members of the Legislature, to be thereafter held, and shall continue in force unchanged, until such Districts shall be altered, and Delegates apportioned, under the succeeding census.

11. Additional territory may be admitted into, and become part of this State, with the consent of the Legislature and a majority of the qualified voters of the State, voting on the question. And in such case provision shall be made by law for the representation thereof in the Senate and House of Delegates, in conformity with the principles set forth in this Constitution. And the number of members of which each house of the Legislature is to consist, shall thereafter be increased by the representation assigned to such additional territory.

[†By the provisions of the Acts of 1901, ch. 10, the House of Delegates consists of eighty-six members, each county having at least one member. After the general election of 1916, the House of Delegates will consist of ninety-four members, each county having at least one member. See Ch. 20, p. 270, Acts 1915, Regular Session.]

12. No person shall be a Senator or Delegate who has not for one year next preceding his election, been a resident within the District or county from which he is elected; and if a Senator or Delegate remove from the District or county for which he was elected, his seat shall be thereby vacated.

14. No person who has been, or hereafter shall be convicted of bribery, perjury, or other infamous crime, shall be eligible to a seat in the Legislature. No person who may have collected or been entrusted with public money, whether state, county, township, district, or other municipal organization, shall be eligible to the Legislature, or to any office of honor, trust or profit in this State until he shall have duly accounted for and paid over such money according to law.

15. No Senator or Delegate, during the term for which he shall have been elected, shall be elected or appointed to any civil office of profit under this State, which has been created, or the emoluments of which have been increased during such term, except offices to be filled by election by the people. Nor shall any member of the Legislature be interested, directly or indirectly, in any contract with the State, or any county thereof authorized by any law passed during the term for which he shall have been elected.

16. Members of the Legislature, before they enter upon their duties, shall take and subscribe the following oath or affirmation: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support the Constitution of the United States, and the Constitution of the State of West Virginia, and faithfully discharge the duties of Senator (or Delegate) according to the best of my ability;" and they shall also take this further oath, to-wit: "I will not accept or receive, directly or indirectly, any money or other valuable thing, from any corporation, company, or person, for any vote or influence I may give or withhold, as Senator (or Delegate); or any bill, resolution or appropriation, or for any act I may do or perform as Senator (or Delegate)." These oaths shall be administered in the hall of the house to which the member is elected, by a Judge of the Supreme Court of Appeals, or of a Circuit Court, or by any other person authorized by law to administer an oath; and the Secretary of State shall record and file said oaths subscribed by each member; and no other oath or declaration shall be required as a qualification. Any member who shall refuse to take the oath herein prescribed shall forfeit his seat; and any member who shall be convicted of having violated the oath last above required to be taken, shall forfeit his seat and be disqualified thereafter from holding any office of profit and trust in this State.

17. Members of the Legislature shall, in all cases except treason, felony, and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during the session, and for ten days before and after the same; and for words spoken in debate, or any report, motion or proposition made in either house, a member shall not be questioned in any other place.

18. The Legislature shall assemble at the seat of Government, biennially and not oftener, unless convened by the Governor. The first session of the Legislature, after the adoption of this Constitution, shall commence on the third Tuesday of November, 1872, and the regular biennial session of the Legislature shall commence on the second Wednesday of January, 1875, and every two years thereafter, on the same day.

19. The Governor may convene the Legislature by proclamation whenever, in his opinion, the public safety or welfare shall require it. It shall be his duty to convene it, on application in writing, of three-fifths of the members elected to each house.

20. The seat of Government shall be at Charleston, until otherwise provided by law.

21. The Governor may convene the Legislature at another place, when, in his opinion, it can not safely assemble at the seat of Government, and the Legislature may, when in session, adjourn to some other place, when in its opinion, the public safety or welfare, or the safety of the members, or their health shall require it.

22. No session of the Legislature, after the first shall continue longer than forty-five days, without the concurrence of two-thirds of the members elected to each House.

23. Neither House shall, during the session, adjourn for more than three days, without the consent of the other. Nor shall either, without such consent, adjourn, to any other place than that in which the Legislature is sitting.

24. A majority of the members elected to each House of the Legislature, shall constitute a quorum. But a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and shall be authorized to compel the attendance of absent members, as each House may provide. Each House shall determine the rules of its proceedings and be the judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its own members. The Senate shall choose, from its own body, a President; and the House of Delegates, from its own body, a Speaker. Each House shall appoint its own officers, and remove them at pleasure. The oldest Delegate present shall call the House to order, at the opening of each new House of Delegates, and preside over it until the Speaker thereof shall have been chosen, and have taken his seat. The oldest member of the Senate present at the commencement of each regular session thereof, shall call the Senate to order, and preside over the same until a President of the Senate shall have been chosen and have taken his seat.

25. Each House may punish its own members for disorderly behavior, and with the concurrence of two-thirds of the members elected thereto, expel a member, but not twice for the same offense.

26. Each House shall have power to provide for its own safety, and the undisturbed transactions of its business, and may punish by imprisonment, any person not a member, for disrespectful behavior in its presence; for obstructing any of its proceedings, or of its officers in the discharge of his duties, or for any assault, threat or abuse of a member, for words spoken in debate. But such imprisonment shall not extend beyond the termination of the session, and shall not prevent the punishment of any offense, by the ordinary course of law.

27. Laws shall be enacted and enforced, by suitable provisions and penalties requiring sheriffs, and all other officers, whether State, county, district or municipal, who shall collect or receive, or whose official duty it is or shall be, to collect, receive, hold or pay out any money belonging to, or which is, or shall be, for the use of the State or of any county, district, or municipal corporation, to make annual account and settlement therefor. Such settlement, when made, shall be subject to exceptions, and take such direction, and have only such force and effect, as may be provided by law; but in all cases, such settlement shall be recorded, and be open to the examination of the people at such convenient place or places as may be appointed by law.

28. Bills and resolutions may originate in either House, but may be passed, amended or rejected by the other.

29. No bill shall become a law until it has been fully and distinctly read, on three different days, in each House, unless in case of urgency, by a vote of four-fifths of the members present, taken by yeas and nays on each bill, this rule be dispensed with; Provided, in all cases, that an engrossed bill shall be fully and distinctly read in each House.

30. No act hereafter passed shall embrace more than one object, and that shall be expressed in the title. But if any object shall be embraced in an act which is not so expressed, the act shall be void only as to so much thereof as shall not be expressed, and no law shall be revived, or amended, by reference to its title only; but the law revived, or the section amended, shall be inserted at large, in the new act. And no act of the Legislature, except such as may be passed at the first session under this Constitution, shall take effect until the expiration of ninety days after its passage, unless the Legislature shall by a vote of two-thirds of the members elected to each House, taken by yeas and nays, otherwise direct.

31. When a bill or joint resolution passed by one House, shall be amended by the other, the question on agreeing to the bill, or joint resolution, as amended, shall be again voted on, by yeas and nays, in the House by which it was originally passed, and the result entered upon its journals; in all such cases the affirmative vote of a majority of all the members elected to such House shall be necessary.

32. Whenever the words, "a majority of the members elected to either House of the Legislature," or words of like import, are used in this Constitution, they shall be construed to mean a majority of the whole number of members to which each House is, at the time, entitled, under the apportionment of representation, established by the provisions of this Constitution.

33. The members of the Legislature shall each receive for their services the sum of four dollars per day and ten cents for each mile traveled in going to and returning from the seat of government by the most direct route. 35. The State of West Virginia shall never be made defendant in any court of law or equity.

36. The Legislature shall have no power to authorize lotteries or gift enterprises for any purpose, and shall pass laws to prohibit the sale of lottery or gift enterprise tickets in this State.

37. No law shall be passed after the election of any public officer, which shall operate to extend the term of his office.

38. No extra compensation shall be granted or allowed to any public officer, agent, servant or contractor, after the services shall have been rendered or the contract made; nor shall any Legislature authorize the payment of any claim or part thereof, hereafter created against the State, under any agreement or contract made, without express authority of law; and all such unauthorized agreements shall be null and void. Nor shall the salary of any public officer be increased or diminished during his term of office, nor shall any such officer, or his or their sureties be released from any debt or liability due the State; Provided, The Legislature may make appropriations for expenditures hereafter incurred in suppressing insurrection, or repelling invasion.

39. The Legislature shall not pass local or special laws in any of the following enumerated cases; that is to say for:

The Legislature shall provide, by general laws, for the foregoing and all other cases for which provision can be made; and in no case shall a special act be passed, where a general law would be proper, and can be made applicable to the case, nor in any other case in which the courts have jurisdiction, and are competent to give the relief asked for.

40. The Legislature shall not confer upon any court, or judge, the power of appointment to office, further than the same is herein provided for.

41. Each House shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and cause the same to be published from time to time, and all bills and joint resolutions shall be described therein, as well by their title as their number, and the ayes and nays on any question, if called for by one-tenth of those present, shall be entered on the journal.

42. Bills making appropriations for the pay of members and officers of the Legislature, and for salaries for the officers of the Government, shall contain no provision on any other subject.

43. The Legislature shall never authorize or establish any board or court of registration of voters.

44. In all elections to office which may hereafter take place in the Legislature, or in any county, or municipal body, the vote shall be viva voce, and be entered on its journals.

[This section, prior to its amendment, read as follows: "Laws may be passed regulating or prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors within the limits of this State." The amendment as above set forth was proposed by joint resolution of February 9, 1911, Acts 1911, p. 289, (see also Acts 1911, ch. 15), and was adopted at the general election of 1912. Chapter 32-A, Hogg's Code of 1913, was enacted pursuant to this section, as amended.]

48. Any husband or parent, residing in this State, or the infant children of deceased parents, may hold a homestead of the value of one thousand dollars and personal property to the value of two hundred dollars, exempt from forced sale subject to such regulations as shall be prescribed by law. Provided, That such homestead exemption shall in no wise affect debts or liabilities existing at the time of the adoption of this Constitution; and provided further, That no property shall be exempt from sale for taxes due thereon, or for the payment of purchase money due upon said property, or for debts contracted for the erection of improvements thereon.

49. The Legislature shall pass such laws as may be necessary to protect the property of married women from the debts, liabilities and control of their husbands.

50. ARTICLE VII.

Executive Department.

1. The Executive Department shall consist of a Governor, Secretary of State, State Superintendent of Free Schools, Auditor, Treasurer and Attorney-General, who shall be ex-officio, Reporter of the Court of Appeals. Their terms of office, respectively, shall be four years, and shall commence on the fourth day of March, next after their election. They shall, except the Attorney-General, reside at the seat of government during their term of office, and keep there the public records, books and papers pertaining to their respective offices and shall perform such duties as may be prescribed by law.

Election.

2. An election for governor, secretary of state, state superintendent of free schools, auditor, treasurer and attorney general, shall be held at such times and places as may be prescribed by law.

[The amendment of this section was proposed by Joint resolution of February 15, 1901, Acts 1901, p. 459, and adopted at the next election.]

3. The returns of every election for the above named officers shall be sealed up and transmitted by the returning officers to the secretary of state, directed to the speaker of the house of delegates, who shall immediately after the organization of the house, and before proceeding to business, open and publish the same, in the presence of a majority of each house of the legislature, which shall for that purpose assemble in the hall of the house of delegates. The person having the highest number of votes for either of said offices, shall be declared duly elected thereto; but if two or more have an equal and the highest number of votes for the same office, the Legislature shall, by joint vote, choose one of such persons for said office. Contested elections for the office of Governor shall be determined by both houses of the Legislature by joint vote, in such manner as may be prescribed by law.

Eligibility.

4. None of the executive officers mentioned in this article shall hold any other office during the term of his service. The Governor shall not be eligible to said office for the four years next succeeding the term for which he was elected.

[The amendment of this section was proposed by Joint resolution of February 15, 1901, Acts 1901, p. 459, and adopted at the next election.]

5. The chief executive power shall be vested in the Governor, who shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed.

6. The Governor shall at the commencement of each session give to the Legislature information by message of condition of the State, and shall recommend such measures as he shall deem expedient. He shall accompany his message with a statement of all money received and paid out by him, from any funds, subject to his order with vouchers therefor; and at the commencement of each regular session present estimates of the amount of money required by taxation for all purposes.

7. The Governor may, on extraordinary occasions, convene at his own instance, the Legislature; but when so convened it shall enter upon no business except that stated in the proclamation by which it was called together.

8. The Governor shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate (a majority of all Senators elected concurring by yeas and nays), appoint all officers whose offices are established by this Constitution, or shall be created by law, and whose appointment or election is not otherwise provided for; and no such officers shall be appointed or elected by the Legislature.

9. In case of a vacancy, during the recess of the Senate, in any office which is not elective, the Governor shall, by appointment, fill such vacancy, until the next meeting of the Senate, when he shall make a nomination for such office, and the person so nominated, when confirmed by the Senate (a majority of all the Senators elected concurring by yeas and nays), shall hold his office during the remainder of the term, and until his successor shall be appointed and qualified. No person, after being rejected by the Senate, shall be again nominated for the same office, during the same session unless at the request of the Senate; nor shall such person be appointed to the same office during the recess of the Senate.

10. The Governor shall have power to remove any officer whom he may appoint, in case of incompetency, neglect of duty, gross immorality, or malfeasance in office; and he may declare his office vacant and fill the same as herein provided in other cases of vacancy.

11. The Governor shall have power to remit fines and penalties in such cases and under such regulations as may be prescribed by law; to commute capital punishment and, except where the prosecution has been carried on by the House of Delegates, to grant reprieves and pardons after conviction; but he shall communicate to the Legislature at each session the particulars of every case of fine or penalty remitted, of punishment commuted and of reprieve or pardon granted, with his reasons therefor.

12. The Governor shall be commander-in-chief of the military forces of the State (except when they shall be called into the service of the United States), and may call out the same to execute the laws, suppress insurrection and repel invasion.

13. When any State officer has executed his official bond, the Governor shall, for such causes and in such manner as the Legislature may direct, require of such officer reasonable additional security; and if the security is not given as required his office shall be declared vacant, in such manner as may be provided by law.

14. Every bill passed by the Legislature shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the Governor. If he approve he shall sign it, and thereupon it shall become a law; but if not, he shall return it, with his objections, to the House in which it originated, which House shall enter the objections at large upon its journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, a majority of the members elected to that House, agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other House, by which it shall be reconsidered, and if approved by a majority of the members elected to that House it shall become a law, notwithstanding the objections of the Governor. But in all such cases the vote of each House shall be determined by yeas and nays to be entered on the journal. Any bill which shall not be returned by the Governor within five days (Sunday excepted), after it shall have been presented to him, shall be a law, in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Legislature shall, by their adjournment prevent its return, in which case, it shall be filed with his objections, in the office of the Secretary of State, within five days after such adjournment, or become a law.

15. Every bill passed by the Legislature making appropriations of money, embracing distinct items, shall before it becomes a law, be presented to the Governor; if he disapproves the bill, or any item or appropriation therein contained, he shall communicate such disapproval with his reasons therefor to the House in which the bill originated; but all items not disapproved shall have the force and effect of law according to the original provisions of the bill. Any item or items so disapproved shall be void, unless re-passed by a majority of each House according to the rules and limitations prescribed in the preceding section in reference to other bills.

16. In case of the death, conviction on impeachment, failure to qualify, resignation, or other disability of the Governor, the President of the Senate shall act as Governor until the vacancy is filled, or the disability removed; and if the President of the Senate, for any of the above named causes, shall become incapable of performing the duties of Governor, the same shall devolve upon the Speaker of the House of Delegates; and in all other cases where there is no one to act as Governor, one shall be chosen by joint vote of the Legislature. Whenever a vacancy shall occur in the office of Governor before the first three years of the term shall have expired, a new election for Governor shall take place to fill the vacancy.

17. If the office of secretary of state, auditor, treasurer, state superintendent of free schools, or attorney general, shall become vacant by death, resignation or otherwise, it shall be the duty of the governor to fill the same by appointment, and the appointee shall hold his office until his successor shall be elected and qualified in such manner as may be prescribed by law. The subordinate officers of the executive department and the officers of all public institutions of the State shall keep an account of all moneys received or disbursed by them, respectively, from all sources, and for every service performed, and make a semi-annual report thereof to the Governor under oath or affirmation; and any officer who shall wilfully make a false report shall be deemed guilty of perjury.

[The amendment of this section was proposed by joint resolution of February 15, 1901, Acts 1901, p. 459, and adopted at the next election.]

18. The subordinate officers of the Executive Department and the officers of all the public institutions of the State, shall at least ten days preceding each regular session of the Legislature, severally report to the Governor, who shall transmit such report to the Legislature and the Governor, may at any time require information in writing, under oath, from the officers of his department, and all officers and managers of State institutions, upon any subject relating to the condition, management and expenses of the respective offices.

Sec. 19. The officers named in this article shall receive for their services a salary to be established by law; which shall not be increased or diminished during their official terms, and they shall not, after the expiration of the terms of those in office at the adoption of this amendment, receive to their own use any fees, costs, perquisites of office or other compensation, and all fees that may hereafter be payable by law, for any service performed by any officer provided for in this article of the constitution, shall be paid in advance into the State treasury.

Judicial Department.

1. The judicial power of the State shall be vested in a supreme court of appeals, in circuit courts and the judges thereof, in such inferior tribunals as are herein authorized and in justices of the peace.

[The amendment of this entire article was proposed by joint resolution of March 6, 1879, Acts 1879, p. 175, and adopted at the next election.]

Supreme Court of Appeals.

2. The supreme court of appeals shall consist of *four judges, any three of whom shall be a quorum for the transaction of business. 3. It shall have original jurisdiction in cases of habeas corpus, mandamus, and prohibition. It shall have appellate jurisdiction in civil cases where the matter in controversy, exclusive of costs, is of greater value or amount than one hundred dollars; in controversies concerning the title or boundaries of land, the probate of wills, the appointment or qualification of a personal representative, guardian, committee or curator, or concerning a mill, roadway, ferry or landing; or the right of a corporation or county to levy tolls or taxes; and also, in cases of quo warranto, habeas corpus, mandamus, certiorari and prohibition, and in cases involving freedom or the constitutionality of a law. It shall have

No decision rendered by the supreme court of appeals shall be considered as binding authority upon any of the inferior courts of this State, except in the particular case decided, unless such decision is concurred in by at least three judges of said court.

5. When a judgment or decree is reversed or affirmed by the supreme court of appeals, every point fairly arising upon the record of the case shall be considered and decided; and the reasons therefor shall be concisely stated in writing and preserved with the record of the case, and it shall be the duty of the court to prepare a syllabus of the points adjudicated in such case concurred in by three of the judges thereof, which shall be prefixed to the published report of the case.

6. A writ of error, supersedeas, or appeal shall be allowed only by the supreme court of appeals, or a judge thereof, upon a petition assigning error in the judgment or proceedings of the inferior court and then only after said court or judge shall have examined and considered the record and assignment of errors, and is satisfied that there is error in the same, or that it presents a point proper for the consideration of the supreme court of appeals.

7. If from any cause a vacancy shall occur in the supreme court of appeals the Governor shall issue a writ of election to fill such vacancy at the next general election for the residue of the term, and in the meantime he shall fill such vacancy by appointment until a judge is elected and qualified. But if the unexpired term be less than two years the Governor shall fill such vacancy by appointment for the unexpired term.

8. The officers of the supreme court of appeals, except the reporter, shall be appointed by the court, or in vacation by the judges thereof, with the power of removal; their duties and compensation shall be prescribed by law.

9. There shall be at least two terms of the supreme court of appeals held annually at such times and places as may be prescribed by law.

Circuit Courts.

10. The state shall be divided into *thirteen circuits. For the circuit hereinafter called the first, two judges shall be elected, and for each of the other circuits one judge shall be elected by the voters thereof. A vacancy in the office of a judge of the circuit court shall be filled in the same manner as is provided for in the case of a vacancy in the office of a judge of the supreme court of appeals. During his continuance in office the judge of a circuit court shall reside in the circuit of which he is judge. The business of the first circuit may be apportioned between the judges thereof, and such judges may hold courts in the same county or in different counties within the circuit at the same time or at different times as may be prescribed by law.

11. A circuit court shall be held in every county in the State at least three times in each year, and provisions may be made by law for holding special terms of said court. A judge of any circuit may hold the courts in another circuit.

General Provisions.

16. All judges shall be commissioned by the Governor. The *salary of a judge of the supreme court of appeals shall be two thousand two hundred dollars per annum, and that of a judge of the circuit court shall be one thousand eight hundred dollars per annum; and each shall receive the same mileage as members of the Legislature; Provided, that Ohio county may pay an additional sum per annum to the judges of the circuit court thereof; but such allowance shall not be increased or diminished during the term of office of the judges to whom it may have been made. No judge, during his term of office, shall practice the profession of law or hold any other office, appointment or public trust, under this or any other government, and the acceptance thereof shall vacate his judicial office. Nor shall he during his continuance therein, be eligible to any political office.

17. Judges may be removed from office by a concurrent vote of both houses of the Legislature, when from age, disease, mental or bodily infirmity or intemperance, they are incapable of discharging the duties of their office. But two-thirds of all the members elected to each House must concur in such vote, and the cause of removal shall be entered upon the journal of each house. The judge against whom the Legislature may be about to proceed shall receive notice thereof, accompanied with the cause alleged for his removal, at least twenty days before the day on which action is proposed to be taken therein.

18. The voters of each county shall elect a clerk of the circuit court, whose term of office shall be six years; his duties and compensation and the manner of removing him from office shall be prescribed by law, and when a vacancy shall occur in the office, the circuit court or the judge thereof in vacation shall fill the same by appointment until the next general election. In case in respect to which the clerk shall be so situated as to make it improper for him to act, the said court shall appoint a clerk to act therein. The clerks of said courts in office when this article takes effect, shall remain therein for the term for which they were elected, unless sooner removed in the manner prescribed by law.

19. The Legislature may establish courts of limited jurisdiction within any county, incorporated city, town or village, with the right of appeal to the circuit court, subject to such limitations as may be prescribed by law; and all courts of limited jurisdiction heretofore established in any county, incorporated city, town or village, shall remain as at present constituted until otherwise provided by law. The municipal court of Wheeling shall continue in existence until otherwise provided by law, and said court and the judge thereof, shall exercise the powers and jurisdiction heretofore conferred upon them; and appeals in civil cases from said court shall lie directly in the supreme court of appeals.

20. No citizen of this State who aided or participated in the late war between the government of the United States and a part of the people thereof, on either side, shall be liable in any proceeding, civil or criminal; nor shall his property be seized or sold under final process issued upon judgments or decrees heretofore rendered, or otherwise, because of any act done in accordance with the usage of civilized warfare in the prosecution of said war. The Legislature shall provide, by general laws, for giving full force and effect to this section.

21. Such parts of the common law, and of the laws of this State as are in force when this article goes into operation, and are not repugnant thereto, shall be and continue the law of the state until altered or repealed by the Legislature. 22. There shall be in each county of the State a county court, composed of three commissioners, and two of said commissioners shall be a quorum for the transaction of business. It shall hold four regular sessions in each year, and at such times as may be fixed upon and entered of record by the said court. Provisions may be made by law for holding special sessions of said court.

23. The commissioners shall be elected by the voters of the county, and hold their office for the term of six years, except at the first meeting of said commissioners they shall designate by lot, or otherwise, in such manner as they may determine, one of their number, who shall hold his office for the term of two years, one for four years and one for six years, so that one shall be elected every two years. But no two of said commissioners shall be elected from the same magisterial district. And if two or more persons residing in the same district shall receive the greater number of votes cast at any election, then only the one of such persons receiving the highest number shall be declared elected, and the person living in another district who shall receive the next highest number of votes shall be declared elected. Said commissioners shall annually elect one of their number as president, and each shall receive two dollars per day for his services, in court, to be paid out of the county treasury.

24. They shall, in all cases of contest, judge of the election, qualification and returns of their own members, and of all county and district officers, subject to such regulations, by appeal or otherwise, as may be prescribed by law. Such courts may exercise such other powers, and perform such other duties, not of a judicial nature, as may be prescribed by law. And provision may be made, under such regulations as may be prescribed by law, for the probate of wills and for the appointment and qualification of personal representatives, guardians, committees and curators during the recess of the regular sessions of the county court. Such tribunals as have been heretofore established by the Legislature under and by virtue of the thirty-fourth section of the eighth article of the Constitution of one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two for police and fiscal purposes, shall, until otherwise provided by law, remain and continue as at present constituted in the counties in which they have been respectively established, and shall be and act as to police and fiscal matters in lieu of the county court created by this article until otherwise provided by law. And, until otherwise provided by law, such clerk as is mentioned in the twenty-sixth section of this article, shall exercise any powers and discharge any duties heretofore conferred on, or required of, any court or tribunal established for judicial purposes under the said article and section of the constitution of one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two, or the clerk of such court or tribunal respectively, respecting the recording and preservation of deeds and other papers presented for record, matters of probate, the appointment and qualification of personal representatives, guardians, committees, curators and the settlement of their accounts, and in all matters relating to apprentices.

25. All actions, suits and proceedings not embraced in the next preceding section, pending in a county court when this article takes effect, together with the records and papers pertaining thereto, as well as all records and papers pertaining to such actions, suits and proceedings, as have already been disposed of by said courts, shall be transmitted to and filed with the clerk of the circuit court of the county to which office all process outstanding at the time this article goes into operation shall be returned; and said clerk shall have the same power and shall perform the same duties in relation to such records, papers and proceedings as were vested in and required of the county court on the day before this article shall take effect. All such actions, suits and proceedings so pending as aforesaid, shall be docketed, proceeded in, tried, heard and determined in all respects by the circuit court, as if such suits and proceedings had originated in said court.

26. The voters of each county shall elect a clerk of the county court, whose term of office shall be six years. His duties and compensation and the manner of his removal shall be prescribed by law. But the clerks of said courts, now in office, shall remain therein for the term for which they have been elected, unless sooner removed therefrom, in the manner prescribed by law.

27. Each county shall be laid off into districts, not less than three nor more than ten in number, and as nearly equal as may be in territory and population. There shall be elected in each district containing a population not exceeding twelve hundred, one justice of the peace, and if the population exceeds that number, two justices shall be elected therein. Every justice shall reside in the district for which he was elected and hold his office for the term of four years, unless sooner removed in the manner prescribed by law. The districts as they now exist shall remain till changed by the county court.

28. The civil jurisdiction of a justice of the peace shall extend to actions of assumpsit, debt, detinue and trover, if the amount claimed, exclusive of interest, does not exceed three hundred dollars. The jurisdiction of justices of the peace shall extend throughout their county; they shall be conservators of the peace and have such jurisdiction and powers in criminal cases as may be prescribed by law. And justices of the peace shall have authority to take the acknowledgement of deeds and other writings, administer oaths, and take and certify depositions. And the Legislature may give to justices such additional civil jurisdiction and powers within their respective counties as may be deemed expedient, under such regulations and restrictions as may be prescribed by general law, except that in suits to recover money or damages their jurisdiction and powers shall in no case exceed three hundred dollars. Appeals shall be allowed from judgments of justices of the peace in such manner as may be prescribed by law.

29. The Legislature shall, upon the application of any county, reform, alter or modify the county court established by this article in such county, and in lieu thereof, with the assent of a majority of the voters of such county voting at an election, create another tribunal for the transaction of the business required to be performed by the county court created by this article; and in such case all the provisions of this article in relation to the county court shall be applicable to the tribunal established in lieu of said court. And when such tribunal has been established it shall continue to act in lieu of the county court until otherwise provided by law.

30. The office of commissioner and justice of the peace shall be deemed incompatible. Vacancies in the office of commissioner, clerk of the county court and justices of the peace shall be filled by the county court of the county until the next general election.

ARTICLE XIII.

1. All private rights and interests in lands in this State derived from or under the laws of the State of Virginia, and from or under the constitution and laws of this State prior to the time this constitution goes into operation, shall remain valid and secure and shall be determined by the laws in force in Virginia, prior to the formation of this State, and by the constitution and laws in force in this State prior to the time this constitution goes into effect.

2. No entry by warrant on land in this State shall hereafter be made.

3. actual continuous possession of, under color or claim of title for ten years and who, or those under whom he claims, shall have paid the State taxes thereon for any five years during such possession; or if there be no such person, then to any person (other than those for whose default the same may have been forfeited, or returned delinquent, their heirs or devisees), for so much of said land as such person shall have title or claim to, regularly derived, mediately or immediately from, or under a grant from the Commonwealth of Virginia or this State, not forfeited, which but for the title forfeited would be valid, and who, or those under whom he claims has, or shall have paid all State taxes charged or chargeable thereon for five successive years, after the year 1865, or from the date of the grant, if it shall have issued since that year; or if there be no such person, as aforesaid, then to any person (other than those for whose default the same may have been forfeited, or returned delinquent, their heirs and devisees,) for so much of said land as such person shall have had claim to and actual continuous possession of, under color of title for any five successive years after the year 1865, and have paid all State taxes charged or chargeable thereon for said period.

ARTICLE XIV.

Amendments.

1. No convention shall be called, having the authority to alter the Constitution of the State, unless it be in pursuance of a law, passed by the affirmative vote of a majority of the members elected to each House of the Legislature and providing that polls shall be opened throughout the State, on the same day therein specified, which shall not be less than three months after the passage of such law, for the purpose of taking the sense of the voters on the question of calling a convention. And such convention shall not be held unless a majority of the votes cast at such polls be in favor of calling the same; nor shall the members be elected to such convention until, at least, one month after the result of the vote shall be duly ascertained, declared and published. And all acts and ordinances of the said convention shall be submitted to the voters of the State for ratification or rejection, and shall have no validity whatever until they are ratified.

2. Any amendment to the Constitution of the State may be proposed in either House of the Legislature; and if the same, being read on three several days in each House, be agreed to on its third reading, by two-thirds of the members elected thereto, the proposed amendment, with the yeas and nays thereon, shall be entered on the journals, and it shall be the duty of the Legislature to provide by law, for submitting the same to the voters of the State for ratification or rejection at the next general election thereafter, and cause the same to be published at least three months before such election in some newspaper in every county in which a newspaper is printed. And if a majority of the qualified voters, voting on the question at the polls held pursuant to such law, ratify the proposed amendment, it shall be in force from the time of such ratification, as part of the Constitution of the State. If two or more amendments be submitted at the same time, the vote on the ratification or rejection shall be taken on each separately.

AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION.The Judicial Amendment.

That the following be proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of this State:

The Supreme Court of Appeals shall consist of five judges. Those judges in office when this amendment takes effect shall continue in office until their terms shall expire, and the Legislature shall provide for the election of an additional judge of said court at the next general election, whose term shall begin on the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and five, and the Governor shall, as for a vacancy, appoint a judge of said court to hold office until the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and five. The judges of the supreme court of appeals and of the circuit courts shall receive such salaries as shall be fixed by law, for those now in or those hereafter to come into office.

The Irreducible School Fund Amendment.

That the following be proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State:

The accumulation of the school fund provided for in section four of article twelve, of the Constitution of this State, shall cease upon the adoption of this amendment, and all money to the credit of said fund over one million of dollars, together with the interest on said fund, shall be used for the support of the free schools of this State. All money and taxes heretofore payable into the treasury under the provision of said section four, to the credit of the school fund, shall be hereafter paid into the treasury to the credit of the general school fund for the support of the free schools of the State.

THE GREAT SEAL OF THE STATE.

The words "seal" and "coat-of-arms" in the United States have practically the same meaning. When the design is impressed upon state papers or public documents, it is referred to as a "seal," and when it is used for illustrative purposes or on flags, it is usually called a "coat-of-arms."

Coat-of-Arms, State of West Virginia.

The joint committee on state seal, appointed by the first West Virginia legislature, in 1863, was composed of Peter G. Van Winkle of Wood County, L. E. Davidson of Taylor County, William L. Crawford of Hancock County, Daniel D. T. Farnsworth of Upshur County, Edwin Maxwell of Harrison County, and Greenbury Slack of Kanawha County. This committee employed Mr. Joseph H. Diss Debar, of Doddridge County, to make drawings in compliance with their suggestions. The design agreed upon was finally adopted in September, 1863.

The report of the committee designated a seal with an obverse and a reverse side, to be used when the coat-of-arms is made in the form of a medallion. As a matter of fact, the seal used for state purposes shows only the obverse side.

The description given by the committee is as follows:

"The disc of the Great Seal is to be two and one-half inches in diameter; the obverse to bear the legend 'The State of West Virginia,' the constitutional designation of our Republic, which with the motto, 'Montani Semper Liberi'—'Mountaineers always free'—is to be inserted in the circumference. In the center a rock with ivy, emblematic of stability and continuance, and on the face of the rock the inscription, 'June 20, 1863,' the date of our foundation, as if graven with a pen of iron in the rock forever. On the right of the rock a farmer clothed in the traditional hunting garb, peculiar to this region, his right arm resting on the plow handles, and his left supporting a woodman's axe, indicating that while our territory is partly cultivated, it is still in process of being cleared of the original forest. At his right hand a sheaf of wheat and a cornstalk; on the left hand of the rock, a miner, indicated by a pick-axe on his shoulder, with barrels and lumps of mineral at his feet. On his left an anvil, partly seen, on which rests a sledge hammer, typical of the mechanic arts, the whole indicating the principal pursuits and resources of the state. In front of the rock and the hunter, as if just laid down by the latter and ready to be resumed at a moment's notice, two hunters' rifles, crossed and surmounted at the place of contact by the Phrygian cap, or cap of liberty, indicating that our freedom and liberty were won and will be maintained by the force of arms.

The reverse of the Great Seal is to be encircled by a wreath composed of laurel and oak leaves, emblematical of valor and strength, with fruits and cereals, productions of the State. For device, a landscape. In the distance, on the left of the disc, a wooded mountain, and on the right a cultivated slope with the log farmhouse peculiar to this region. On the side of the mountain, a representation of the viaduct on the line of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad in Preston county, one of the great engineering triumphs of the age, with a train of cars about to pass over it. Near the center a factory, in front of which a river with boats, on the bank and to the right of it nearer the foreground, a derrick and a shed, appertaining to the production of salt and petroleum. In the foreground a meadow with cattle and sheep feeding and reposing, the whole indicating the leading characteristics, productions and pursuits of the State at this time. Above the mountain, etc., the sun merging from the clouds, indicating that former obstacles to our prosperity are now disappearing. In the rays of the sun the motto 'Libertas et Fidelitate'—Freedom and Loyalty—indicating that our liberty and independence are the result of faithfulness to the Declaration and the National Constitution."

Mr. Diss Debar, the designer of the seal and coat-of-arms, was an educated Frenchman who brought a Swiss colony to Santa Clara, Doddridge county, West Virginia. He was appointed by Governor Boreman to act as Commissioner of Immigration, and prepared, compiled and published the first "Hand Book of West Virginia." He was a member of the Legislature of 1864, from Doddridge county.

THE STATE FLOWER.

On the 23rd day of January, 1903, during the administration of Governor Albert Blakesley White, the legislature of West Virginia adopted the following joint resolution:

"WHEREAS, Many of our sister states have adopted some floral emblem; and

WHEREAS, Our present chief executive, the governor of the State, and his immediate predecessor, have each recommended the rhododendron, or big laurel, and the pupils of the public schools of the State, under direction of the state superintendent, have voted for this flower; therefore be it Resolved, by the Legislature of West Virginia:

That said rhododendron, or big laurel, be and it is hereby designated as the official State flower, to be used as such at all proper times and places."

THE STATE FLAG.

The Legislature of West Virginia, on the 25th day of February, 1907, during the administration of Governor W. M. O. Dawson, by joint resolution, adopted a State flag of the following design and proportions:

"The State flag shall be in length and breadth in proportion the same as the flag of the great American Republic, of which West Virginia forms a part; the field thereof shall be pure white, upon the center of which on the obverse side shall be the great seal or coat-of-arms of the State, beneath which shall appear the legend, 'State of West Virginia,' in a scroll; on the reverse side shall appear a sprig or sprigs of the rhododendron maximum, or big laurel, our State flower, having blossoms and leaves; the field of pure white shall be bordered by a band or strip of blue, and this in turn shall be bordered by a strip or fringe of old gold; and said flag shall be regarded and used as the West Virginia State flag on all occasions where a special display of the State's individuality shall become necessary, or be regarded as appropriate."

THE STATE FLOWER.

(Rhododendron maximum, or Big Laurel.)

HISTORICAL SKETCH.

Prepared by HENRY S. GREEN, State Historian and Archivist.

The beginnings of any general history of the people of West Virginia must reach well back into colonial days, even though we leave out of the reckoning altogether the story of those Indian tribes that claimed our hills and valleys as their hunting grounds before Columbus crossed the Atlantic, and though we take no account of the mystery of the race of mound builders who are supposed to have dwelt within our borders as the prehistoric predecessors of the Indians. In a historical sketch suitable for the purposes of this manual, it is the opinion of the writer that little should be attempted except a brief outline of those political movements and events which have had a prominent part in creating the conditions by which the West Virginians of today find themselves environed.

Those social and political movements and events which transformed the people of colonial Virginia into citizens of the United States are marked on the pages of history by certain great state papers. Likewise another series of movements and events which culminated in the dismemberment of the Commonwealth of Virginia and the creation of the state of West Virginia is recorded in a remarkable group of state papers. These great public documents, beginning with the Declaration of Independence and ending with the West Virginia constitution of 1872, with its amendments to date, contain so much that is fundamental in our history and government that they are properly included in this manual. Each one of them relates to a link in a chain of great events, as that chain has been forged into the history of the United States and of the state of West Virginia. No attempt will be made in this sketch to give a detailed chronicle of those events or to present an adequate historical account of the honorable part played in many of them by West Virginians.

Such a work would greatly transcend the limits assigned to this article, in which it is proposed to give a brief outline of certain phases of the state's development, with a somewhat more detailed account of the events and conditions of our historical yesterday and today. Naturally such a work will be largely a compilation of statements of fact which have already been made at various times and places by others.

Early Colonial Settlements.

White men began to make settlements in the eastern parts of the territory now embraced within the boundaries of West Virginia as early as the second quarter of the eighteenth century. Some of the incidents of those earliest settlements are thus related by Professor Virgil A. Lewis in a sketch prepared for a previous edition of this manual:

"In 1725 John Van Metre, an Indian trader from the Hudson river, traversed the lower Shenandoah, Upper Potomac and South Branch Valleys, but the honor of fixing the first home in the state was reserved for another. This was Morgan op Morgan who, in 1727, reared his cabin on the site of the present village of Bunker Hill, in Mill Creek magisterial district in Berkeley county. He was a native of Wales who came early in life to Pennsylvania and thence removed to the Shenandoah Valley. He was soon followed by some German people from Pennsylvania, whose ancestral home was old Mecklenberg in the Fatherland; they crossed the Potomac at the 'Old Pack Horse Ford' in 1727, and a mile above, on its southern bank, built a little village which they called New Mecklenberg. This is now Shepherdstown, the oldest town in West Virginia. In 1730, Isaac Van Metre, son of the explorer received from Governor William Gooch a grant for a large body of land chiefly in what is now Berkeley and Jefferson counties. A part of this he sold to Joist Hite, who, in 1732, brought sixteen families from York, Pennsylvania, all of whom settled in the Lower Shenandoah Valley.

The Fairfax Land Grant.

"What is known as the 'Fairfax Land Grant' was an important factor in the settlement of West Virginia. In 1681, King Charles II. granted to Lord Hopton and others what has long since been known as the 'Northern Neck of Virginia', including all the region lying between the Potomac and Rappahannock rivers in Virginia, and extending west of the Blue Ridge where it embraced all of the West Virginia counties of Jefferson, Berkeley, Morgan, Hampshire, Hardy, Grant, Mineral, and part of Tucker. The title of this property passed from one to another until it became the property of Thomas, Sixth Lord Fairfax. He resolved to have its boundaries ascertained, and, after ten years of effort on his part, his surveyors followed up the Potomac to the first fountain of its North Branch, where, on the 17th day of October, 1746, they erected the famous 'Fairfax Stone', the first monument marking a boundary of real estate in West Virginia. Then he resolved to sell these lands in quantities to suit purchasers, and, in 1747, he sent young George Washington, and his nephew, William Fairfax, to survey and locate these lands. The boy surveyors crossed the Blue ridge; William Lindsey piloted them into the Upper Potomac wilderness; Henry Ashby and Richard Taylor were chainmen, and Robert Ashby, marker. More than three hundred tracts were surveyed and thus it was that the leader of the American armies in the Revolution and the first President of the United States, surveyed the first farms in West Virginia. Later, the 'South Branch Manor', containing 55,000 acres in Hardy county; and the 'Patterson's Creek Manor' of 10,000 acres and the 'Fairfax Manor', both in Hampshire county, were laid out by other surveyors for Lord Fairfax.

Over the Mountains.

"In 1742, four years before the planting of the 'Fairfax Stone,' other explorers entered the southern part of the state. This year, John Peter Salley, accompanied by Charles St. Clair, John Howard, and his son Josiah Howard, left his home at the base of the Blue Ridge in Augusta county and proceeding through the Greenbrier Valley, reached New River, which the party descended to Richmond Falls; thence over the mountains to the westward of Coal River; down to its mouth; and thence descended the Great Kanawha to the Ohio, where they arrived May 6th, 1742.

"In 1749, Jacob Marlin and Stephen Sewell built a cabin on Marlin's Bottom, at the mouth of Knapp's creek, now in Pocahontas county and were thus the first white settlers on Greenbrier river. Here they were found in 1751 by John Lewis and his son Andrew, who this year came over the mountains as the surveyors of the Greenbrier Land Company, which had a grant for 100,000 acres on Greenbrier river.

Christopher Gist's Explorations.

"The Ohio Company, which was to be prominent in the early settlement of West Virginia, without actual results, was formed in 1748. Its stockholders were John Hanbury, Thomas Lee, then Governor of Virginia, Arthur Dodds, Samuel Smith, James Wardrop, Capel Hanbury, Robert Dinwiddie, John Taylor, Presley Thornton, Augustus Washington, Richard Lee, Nathaniel Chapman, Jacob Giles, Thomas Cresap, John Mercer, James Scott, Robert Carter, George Mason, and the executors of the estate of Lawrence Washington. All were residents of Virginia and Maryland except the Hanburys, who were merchants of London. The King granted the Company 500,000 acres, of which 200,000 were to be largely located in the Northern Pan-Handle of West Virginia. Later, the company desired to obtain a grant for the region between the Great Kanawha and Monongahela rivers. Christopher Gist, an eminent surveyor of North Carolina was employed to make exploration of this region.

"Gist made his report and a petition went over-sea to 'the King's Most Excellent Majesty,' praying for a grant for the lands thus explored, and for permission to form a separate government in the region between the Allegheny mountains and the Ohio river. Then began years of waiting and negotiation which finally resulted in the merging of the Ohio and Walpole companies into the Grand Ohio Company, which continued its efforts to found a new government on the Ohio, until they were terminated by the Revolution. This proposed province was to have been called Vandalia; with Samuel Wharton, Governor, and the capital at the mouth of the Great Kanawha—now Point Pleasant in Mason county.

Other Early Settlements.

"Meantime, exploration and settlement continued. In the year 1750, Doctor Thomas Walker with five companions went from Virginia into the Kentucky wilderness, whence the party journeyed northward; crossed the Big Sandy river, and on the 28th of June of the last mentioned year, reached the mouth of Greenbrier. These were the first white men that traversed that part of West Virginia south of New River. In 1754, the old French and Indian War began; the next year Braddock's army was disastrously defeated on the fatal field of Monongahela. Thereafter, many West Virginia pioneers fell victims to savage barbarity, and numbers of those who escaped were for years shut up in frontier forts. But notwithstanding the storm of barbarian war, brave men pushed on into the wilderness. In 1756, Thomas Eckarly and his two brothers built cabins on Dunkard's Bottom on Cheat river, now in Preston county. Two years later, Thomas Decker and others began a settlement at the mouth of Decker's creek, on the Monongahela, where Morgantown now stands. In 1761, several families found homes on Muddy creek and elsewhere in what is now Greenbrier county. But the Indians soon broke up the Dunkard's Bottom and Decker's settlements, and in 1763 massacred the settlers on Muddy creek. In this year the French and Indian War terminated with the English in possession of the Ohio Valley; and in 1764, General Boquet marched an army into the Ohio wilderness, and in the Muskingum Valley made a treaty with the Indians who there gave up their captives. Ninety of those thus delivered had been carried away from the West Virginia settlements.

Ten Years of Peace.

"There were now ten years of a nominal peace, during which the settlements were widely extended. In 1764, John and Samuel Pringle settled on Buckhannon river, now in Upshur county, and John Simpson built a cabin where Clarksburg now stands. Four years thereafter, Zackwell Morgan and others made a permanent settlement at Morgantown, now in Monongalia county. In 1769, white settlers again returned to the Greenbrier Valley, and at the same time James Clark and John Judy reared their cabins on Big Sandy Creek and thus became the pioneer settlers of Preston county. In two years, too, John Wetzel and the Siverts and Calverts found homes in the hill country about the source of Grave creek now in Marshall county. On a bright spring morning, in 1770, Ebenezer Zane stood at the mouth of Wheeling creek and looked upon the panorama of hill, island, and river spread out before him. The founder of a future city was then upon its site, and he and his brothers, Jonathan and Silas, planted the first acre of corn ever grown where the city of Wheeling now stands. While they were thus engaged, Joseph Tomlinson built his cabin on the Grave Creek flats, where Moundsville in Marshall county now stands; and a daring frontiersman of the name of Tygart found a home at the mouth of Middle Island creek now in Pleasants county. In 1772, James Booth and John Thomas became the first settlers of Marion county, they having established themselves at Booth's creek in that year. In 1773, James and Thomas Parsons came from the South Branch Valley and fixed their habitations at the Horse-shoe bend of Cheat river, now in Tucker county. The next year Leonard Morris brought his family to the present site of Marmet—old Brownstown—on the Great Kanawha river, and was thus the first permanent settler in Kanawha county.

The Dunmore War.

"The era of peace now ended; the Indians began hostilities, and the din of preparation for war was heard in the West Virginia settlements. Lord Dunmore, Governor of Virginia, crossed the Blue Ridge, mustered an army in the Lower Shenandoah Valley and marched it to the banks of the Scioto river in the Ohio wilderness. Another army was collected in the Upper Shenandoah Valley and, under General Andrew Lewis, marched by way of the Great Kanawha, and at its mouth, on the 10th day of October, 1774, defeated the warriors of the Confederated Nations of the Ohio wilderness. With Dunmore, there were men from the South Branch of the Potomac, and others from the Greenbrier Valley were with General Lewis. Fort Henry at Wheeling and Fort Randolph at the mouth of the Great Kanawha river were now built and were the most western outposts of civilization.

War of the Revolution.

"Then came the Revolution, and West Virginia pioneers were ready. The first body of troops which joined Washington at Boston from the South side of the Potomac, was Colonel Hugh Stevenson's company from Berkeley—now Jefferson—county. West Virginians served in the north and in the south in that struggle, and there are more graves of Revolutionary soldiers in West Virginia than in any other American state,—the thirteen original colonies alone excepted. The struggle for Independence ended, but the Indian wars continued until General Wayne broke the savage power at the battle of Fallen Timbers in 1794. This forever put an end to savage warfare on the south side of the Ohio, and West Virginia pioneers were henceforth safe in their cabin homes.

"At the close of the year 1800, men were felling the forests on the hills and in the valleys of West Virginia. Homes of thrift and industry gave evidence of long years of settlement in the Eastern Pan-Handle, while from the Allegheny mountains to the Ohio, cabin homes dotted the landscape. Thirteen of the present West Virginia counties then had an existence; Wheeling, Clarksburg, Wellsburg, Parkersburg, Point Pleasant and Charleston were at that time frontier villages, and the people continued to make history."

The Beginnings of Discord.

The steady streams of pioneer migration toward the Ohio Valley that found their way through the mountain gaps and along the water courses continued to increase the population of the older settlements, to add to the total number of settlements and to extend the area of occupied lands west of the Mountains.

While these new settlements were organized as counties and subdivisions of the state of Virginia, there developed from very early days a clash of economic interests and a divergence of political ideals between the people of the eastern and western sections of the state which culminated in the sixties in the dismemberment of the Old Dominion. The earlier stages of that controversy are graphically portrayed in the following paragraphs quoted from "The Two Virginias" by Granville Davisson Hall, first secretary of state of West Virginia:

"As the population increased and spread westward great inequalities in representation grew up. Around Williamsburg, the seat of government, counties and settlements were subdivided into small precincts, to each of which two members of the House of Delegates were allowed, while no more was allotted to the larger counties farther removed from the executive influence. No more was allowed to all West Augusta. Representation was distributed in double, triple or even quadruple proportions around Williamsburg, to the great dissatisfaction of people farther west.

The Earliest Agitation.

"In 1816, a large and intelligent population having grown up in the valleys west of the Blue Ridge, a serious agitation for a fairer basis of representation in the Assembly, was started at Winchester. Frederick Cook, General Boyd and Edmund Pendleton prepared and sent out circulars in May, which gave the first decided impulse to the cause of constitutional reform west of the Blue Ridge. These brought together at Winchester, twenty-five to thirty gentlemen, by whom the grievances of Middle and Western Virginia, and means of redress were discussed.

"July fourth following, a convention of delegates from thirty-six counties was held at Staunton, who memorialized the Assembly to equalize representation among the free white people of Virginia according to numbers, and to equalize the land tax; to which was added, on motion of a member from Fairfax, to extend the suffrage to all white male citizens twenty-one years of age who 'have evidence of common interest with and attachment to the community' (this being the language of the Bill of Rights). A bill in this form was passed in the House of Delegates. In the Senate a motion was made to introduce a representation for slaves. It did not pass the Senate, but a bill was passed to equalize representation in the senatorial districts; and this was the law when the Convention of 1829-30 was called.

The Staunton Convention.

"Another convention gathered at Staunton, in 1825. More than a hundred delegates were present. They had come from all parts of the state,—from the Potomac and Tidewater to the Ohio River,—to demand representation in the House of Delegates based on the white population; reduction of the number of delegates in the House; enlargement of the right of suffrage; abolishment of the executive council, and the creation of a more responsible executive. Their object was to bring their grievances before the public. They sat with open doors and kept a journal, which was published in all the gazettes of the day and communicated to the Assembly with a memorial.

"As the result of this convention, an act of Assembly was passed submitting (but to freeholders only) the question of calling a convention. The act proposed to base representation on what was called the 'Federal Number'—that is, three-fifths of the slaves to be counted in the basis. This was called the 'black basis.' Under discussion, the proposition was made so odious that it was abandoned. It was found if the argument justified basing representation on any part of the slaves, it justified including them all.

"The bill as passed based representation in the convention on white population and taxation combined—that is, persons and property. As slaves were property, this element was an offset against free citizens.

“The convention was called by a vote of 21,896 in favor, to 16,646 against. In the West, the vote was almost unanimous in favor of the convention; in the East, almost half of the vote was against it.

First Representative Convention.

“This was the first constitutional convention ever assembled in Virginia, with the authority of the people behind it; and even then, only a minority of them, for none but freeholders were allowed to vote. It had taken nearly fifty-four years to make this much progress; and even yet, the unlanded white people were denied a share in the selection of the delegates. Nearly two generations had passed under the iron rule made for them by the ex-burgesses, and the East still resisted the assemblage of any body which might take down the bars that hedged in their landed and slave domination and excluded the free white element lacking these requisites of Virginia citizenship.

“The convention of 1829-30 embraced ninety-six members. In the personal distinction of many of the delegates, the ex-burgesses' gathering in 1776, cannot have equalled this. Ex-President Monroe was a delegate from Loudon county and president of the convention. Ex-President Madison was delegate from Orange. Chief Justice Marshall represented the city of Richmond. John Randolph, Benjamin Watkins Leigh, and numerous other names scarcely less distinguished in that period, figured in the roll-call. Philip Doddridge, Lewis Summers and Alexander Campbell were among the eminent members from the West. Monroe, Madison, Doddridge, Marshall and Summers constituted the most important committee,—on the executive and legislative departments and on the fundamental principles of government. Yet even this array of heavy metal did not result in battering down the barriers raised by their predecessors in 1776, against participation in the government by the unendowed white citizen.

Masterly Inactivity.

“A masterly inactivity was clearly the plan of those who controlled this convention. The report of the committee named was in favor of basing representation in the House of Delegates on the white population exclusively. But nothing came of it. In the discussion ‘exclusively’ was stricken out and the words ‘and taxation’ substituted. This simply continued the existing basis. On this issue was founded most of the debate which occupied the convention; but it had been fore-ordained that it should result in nothing.

“Memorials demanding a more liberal suffrage were presented from eastern as well as western counties. Chief Justice Marshall presented one, appealing to the Bill of Rights and quoting from its declarations as their justification. Philip Doddridge went back to the organization in 1776 and showed that it utterly lacked the authority of the people, having nothing behind it save the initiative of the gentlemen who had been burgesses under the Colony, who simply usurped the functions of the people, without asking their consent.

Westerners Angered.

"There was in this convention a good deal of restlessness—even anger—among the western members over the unwillingness of the East to let down the bars to a wider suffrage and a fairer basis of representation; and eastern members realized that the seed had already been sown for a division of the state. Ex-President Monroe—true to his ancient fame as a peacemaker—addressed the convention in an endeavor to pour oil on the angry waters. He deprecated the possibility of a severance of East and West as the greatest calamity which could befall the commonwealth. He admitted frankly that the East, with its larger slave and landed interests to protect might be excused for an unwillingness to give up the advantages those interests enjoyed under existing limitations on suffrage and legislative representation, or to risk these advantages by granting increased political power to classes unfriendly to the existing discriminations. Mr. Monroe expressed solicitude for the promotion of lines of communication and commerce with the distant West, one crossing the mountains on the line of the Potomac, another from the line of the James River, for national reasons. Like other statesmen of his time, he was afraid there might develop a line of cleavage north and south between the original states and the Mississippi Valley, from lack of commercial facilities between East and West, which would result in a movement for a separate government in the Mississippi region, such as it is believed Burr contemplated when he organized his expedition to the Southwest. Such lines, while reaching beyond Virginia, would also promote settlements in western Virginia and strengthen the ties between the outlying region and the tidewater.

"But in the matter of a broader suffrage or a fairer basis of representation in the General Assembly, the East had the votes and were unwilling to make the concessions demanded by the West.

Freehold Suffrage.

"At that period Virginia was the only State which still adhered to a strictly freehold suffrage. She had 143,000 free white male citizens, of whom 100,000 paid taxes to the state; of whom, again, only 40,000 were freeholders. This minority, with three-fifths representation for their slaves held control of all State legislation.

"The odium attaching to this aristocratic system in Virginia was not confined within her own boundaries. That it was a matter of criticism elsewhere is shown by the incident in the United States House of Representatives in January, 1805. Mr. Dawson of Virginia had introduced resolutions to retrocede to Maryland and Virginia the territory each had given for the District of Columbia. The advocates of retrocession laid stress upon the hardship imposed upon the people in the District within the lines of the states from which they had been taken because they were deprived of the political representation in local government enjoyed by the citizens of the states from which they had been withdrawn. They were declared to be the veriest 'political slaves.'

"Mr. Dennis, of Pennsylvania, replying, remarked that if the citizens of that portion of the District west of the Potomac should be retroceded, it would not relieve them from their political slavery, because a large portion of the people of Virginia were already denied representation in the state government; and the only effect of giving back this territory to Virginia would be to add to the number of the 'political slaves' already there.

New Constitution Adopted.

"The constitution submitted by the convention of 1829-30 was adopted by the people. The vote was 41,618 for, and 15,563 against. Within the bounds of what is now West Virginia 8,365 votes were cast against the constitution and only 1,383 in favor of it. Philip Doddridge was especially emphatic and influential in his denunciation of it. Doddridge, who died in 1832, was recognized as one of the ablest men in Virginia—or in the United States.

"Thus this long-contested vital issue—whether citizenship or property should shape the legislation of the state, and whether the burden of taxation should be borne equitably by all interests—was again referred to the growing future. The Westerners looked hopefully to the growth west of the mountains to strengthen their cause. The Easterners apparently were weakening on some points of the old and bitter controversy, and recognized that in time western growth might vanquish them.

"It had taken more than fifty years to get one convention—how far away was the next? In the twenty years that followed, Virginia could not but feel the impulses of national progress all around her, desperately as she might resist it for the protection of the semi-barbaric system of breeding human chattels for the cane and cotton fields of the South; but twenty years brought around provision for a convention to be held in the winter of 1850-51. The whole number of delegates was to be 135, of whom the territory now in West Virginia was allowed thirty-four.

The Constitution of 1851.

"The convention met in October, 1850, and adjourned to January, to await census data. The foremost and absorbing question when they got to work was, once more, equality of representation and equal suffrage. The attitude of the western men was firmer than ever, and the feeling on both sides more bitter.

"On the 10th of May, the convention was in such temper it could not do business and adjourned over.

"In the first West Virginia constitutional convention, Mr. Van Winkle stated, in the hearing of the writer, that in the Virginia convention of 1850-51, of which he had been a member, the western members had reached complete concert of action and determined that if the East would not agree to concede the white basis for the House of Delegates, they would withdraw in a body from the convention. The crisis seems to have been reached May 10th, when that day's adjournment occurred; for upon reassembling, the East was ready to come to terms. The eastern majority did yield the white basis for the House and made other important concessions, one being the election of governor by the people and another a move in the direction of fairer taxation. The constitution as submitted declared taxation should be 'equal and uniform' except that slaves should be taxed on only $300 value at the rate laid on land, and those under twelve years old should not be taxed at all. The West fought hard to keep out this exception, but in vain.

"The victory was, after all, a rather barren one for the West; for the East continued in the Senate its representation for three-fifths of its slaves—then numbering near a half million—and thus controlling the Senate, it could effectually check any reformatory legislation which might be attempted by the House.

"The constitution was ratified, in a three-days' election, by a vote about seven to one. The only counties giving majorities against it were in the East.

"This was the end of the struggle in Virginia for democratic government. For a hundred years, while a colony under the British crown, and seventy-five years as a state in the American Union, Virginia had been an aristocracy denying equal part in the government to the majority of its white citizens.

The End Was Not Yet.

"And the end was not yet. The ancient wrong, so deeply rooted in the whole history of Virginia, was carried forward for one more decade, with its unequal representation and its discriminative taxes; with a great population held as chattels yet used to control the legislative policy of the state; with the growing national issue of universal slavery or disunion rising like a black storm-cloud in the South and steadily growing in political menace.

The Slave-Breeding Industry.

"During the greater part of the three-quarters of a century through which Virginia had been an American State she was absorbed in the industry of breeding negro laborers for the planting states around the Gulf and in the domestic traffic of marketing them. If the men who designed the seal prescribed in her first constitution had been gifted with prophetic ken and the true artistic sense, instead of the amazon with spear and sword standing with one foot on the prostrate tyrant and uttering the legend 'Sic semper tyrannis,' the design would have been a typical 'nigger trader' armed with the tools of his trade—a black-snake whip and 'horse pistol', hand-cuffs and chain—with an auction block and a collection of unhappy chattels in the foreground.

"For more than half the nineteenth century, while the rest of the world was waxing in civilization and humane amelioration, the commonwealth of Virginia was given over to the system which would have been typified by such a seal; all the while denying equal rights to white citizens who did not approve of nor participate in the profits of breeding or trafficking in this human commodity.

The Evil That Men Do.

"This was 'legitimacy' in old Virginia; rooted away back in the unspeakable cruelty and corruption of English royalty; founded in usurpation and denial of civil rights; maintained in implacable discrimination; ending in treason and war to maintain this semi-barbaric anthropophagic cult, against the growing protest of the whole enlightened world.

"What is to be the future of the African crop planted by Virginia in the states bordering the Atlantic and the Gulf, may well give our wisest statesmen pause. It is a heritage of evil already grown so great as to cast an immense shadow athwart the future. Fixed and inexorable as eternal justice it is, that 'the evil that men do lives after them'.

Deliverance With Secession.

"The revolt in the mountains of West Virginia against the bargain made by the Richmond convention in 1861 with the emissary of the Montgomery League, to turn over Virginia for purposes of rebellion to the Southern Confederacy, was a deliverance—as far as it could reach—from the infamous system described and the visible head of that revolt was a deliverer, not a usurper. The restoration with which his name is linked only restored the Virginia municipality as it existed before the rebellion. The division of the commonwealth afterwards was the logical aftermath of the crop of treason and rebellion gathered at Richmond.

"There is nothing in the long history of Virginia which we can be prouder of than the uprising west of the mountains in 1861—nothing approaching it in patriotism or moral heroism, unless we go back to the rebellion of Nathaniel Bacon, against the incapacity or cowardice of Berkeley, to save the people of the colony from the savages.

A Freedom Loving People.

"There were then west of the Alleghenies a resolute and intelligent people numbering between three and four hundred thousand. Most of them were native to the soil and inured to the hardships long suffered in the West under the harrow of Virginia aristocratic rule. A majority of them were of the freedom-loving Scotch-Irish stock, whose ancestors had been driven from European homes in the eighteenth century; who pouring through the intervals of the Appalachian range in Pennsylvania, Virginia and the Carolinas, planted in those regions the rich blood and rugged virtues which have characterized that hardy and virtuous stock wherever it springs. Not much of the Cavalier element, which found congenial conditions in the tidewater region, ever made its way across the mountains in Virginia. Indeed, it was a hundred years after the early settlements in the tidewater before those people had crossed the fifty miles of forest which separated them from the Blue Ridge. The people who settled the Shenandoah Valley and the valleys between that and the Ohio River, whatever else they lacked, had one sterling virtue found in all mountain peoples; they were vigilant to resist encroachment upon their liberties."

The Restored Government.

The restoration of the government of which Mr. Hall speaks was accomplished at Wheeling. With the adoption at Richmond of the ordinance of secession, the state government of Virginia, as one of the United States, fell into a condition of suspended animation. Acting on the fundamental principles of popular sovereignty, as set forth in the Declaration of Independence and in the Bill of Rights of their own state constitution, the people of the western counties, still firm in their allegiance to the government and constitution of the United States, proceeded to restore their state government under the constitution and laws of Virginia. The ordinance of secession was adopted at Richmond April 17th, 1861. Five days later, there went out from Clarksburg a call for a convention to be held at Wheeling, "to consider and determine upon such action as the people of Northwestern Virginia should take in the present fearful emergency." That convention assembled May 13th and after three days of debate and deliberation adopted resolutions, proclaiming loyalty to the federal government and calling for the election of delegates to a second convention to be held June 11th. These delegates were to be chosen June 4th, and it was provided that members elected May 23rd to the general assembly, "who concur in the views of this convention" should be entitled to seats in the convention of June 11th as members thereof.

Secession Ordinance Repudiated.

The June convention in a "Declaration of Rights" repudiated the ordinance of secession and the action of the convention which had adopted it. The declaration repudiated also the "usurped power of the state executive" and declared "that the offices of all who adhere to the said convention and executive, whether legislative, executive or judicial are vacated."

On June 19th an ordinance was adopted by the convention providing for the restoration of the state government, the selection of a governor and other officials. It directed the convening of a session of the legislature at Wheeling July 1st, and made all necessary provision for the regular receipt and disbursement of the public moneys by the officials of the restored government. The next day the convention elected Francis H. Pierpont Governor of Virginia, filled the other state offices as directed in the ordinances adopted, and adjourned to meet on the first Tuesday of August following.

At the general election of May 23rd, 1861, three members of congress had been chosen from districts embracing the western counties, and these members William G. Brown, Jacob B. Blair and Kellian V. Whaley, were promptly seated as Virginia representatives, their credentials having been furnished by the restored government. On July 9th the legislature in session at Wheeling elected as United States senators for Virginia Waitman T. Willey of Monongalia county and John S. Carlile of Harrison county. They were promptly seated in the United States senate.

Creating a New State.

While some few of the delegates participating in these conventions at Wheeling would, doubtless, have been willing to allow matters to rest with the restoration of the government of Virginia in the hands of men loyal to the federal government at Washington, an overwhelming majority of the members regarded that restoration merely as one of the necessary legal steps for the constitutional formation of a new state in which they might secure absolute assurance of freedom from an irksome domination. Reassembling at Wheeling on the first Tuesday of August, pursuant to adjournment, the convention which had accomplished the restoration of the government of Virginia proceeded to pass an "ordinance providing for the creation of a new state out of the territory of this state", and called a special election at which the people of the state should vote on the question of forming a new state and should choose delegates to a constitutional convention to be held in Wheeling in case the new state proposition carried. The election was held October 24th, 1861, and the returns showed 18,408 votes in favor of the new state and 781 against it. The constitutional convention therefore met at Wheeling November 26th and drew up the first constitution of the state of West Virginia, adjourning February 18th, 1862. In accordance with the ordinance adopted by the convention, the proposed constitution was submitted to popular vote and adopted by an overwhelming majority. Governor Pierpont announced the result of the election and called a special session of the legislature. That body met in Wheeling May 6th, 1862, and on the 12th of May passed an act giving its consent to the formation and erection of a new state within the jurisdiction of Virginia.

Recognized at Washington.

In due time the validity of the proceedings of the various conventions and of the Restored Government of Virginia was recognized by the executive, legislative and judicial branches of the federal government, and West Virginia entered upon her existence as one of the family of states, June 20th, 1863. The political history of the state during the war period and the reconstruction period that followed, with the events that led to the revision of the state constitution in 1872 are thus related in Callahan's Semi-Centennial History of West Virginia in a special article prepared by Hon. George E. Price of Charleston:

"The first legislature assembled in Wheeling June 20th, 1863, the day when the state government went into effect. The Senate was composed of twenty members. John M. Phelps of Mason County was elected President. The House of Delegates had fifty-one members. Spicer Patrick of Kanawha was elected Speaker. Among the members were Nathan Goff, father of the present United States Senator, Daniel Lamb, of Wheeling; J. C. McGrew, of Monongalia; J. M. McWhorter, Lewis Ruffner, P. G. VanWinkle and Chester D. Hubbard.

There was no division by political parties at this time. All were in favor of the maintenance of the Union, and outside of the measure necessary for putting the new government into operation, the legislature was chiefly concerned with measures relating to and growing out of the existing war. It remained in session until December 11th, 1863.

"This was also true of the legislature of 1864 and 1865. William E. Stevenson was elected President of the Senate at the session of 1864 over Daniel D. T. Farnsworth. Among the new members of this session was Edwin Maxwell of Harrison county. The Speaker of the House was Le Roy Kramer.

"At the session of 1865 William E. Stevenson was again elected President of the Senate. Among the new members of the House were James H. Ferguson of Cabell and H. C. McWhorter of Kanawha.

"At the session of 1865 an amendment to the constitution was proposed, providing in effect that no person who had participated in the rebellion or given aid or comfort to the Confederacy should be deemed a citizen of the state or allowed to vote at any election. This amendment was voted on and afterwards adopted. This brings us to the close of the war.

Post-Bellum Problems.

"It must not be inferred from what has been said that there was no division of sentiment among the people of the counties now composing the state of West Virginia on the question of secession and the formation of the state of West Virginia. On the contrary, there was a very great division of sentiment, especially in the more Eastern and central counties. Large numbers of the people believed in the doctrine of state rights, and that their first allegiance was to the state of Virginia as between it and the Federal government, and, although there were comparatively few who were originally in favor of the withdrawal of the state from the Union, yet when the alternative was presented of remaining in the Union and furnishing troops to fight against the Southern people who had withdrawn or attempted to withdraw from the Union, or going with the state of Virginia in confederation with the other Southern states, they chose the latter course and large numbers of men from these counties went into the Confederate Army, and, in many instances, their families followed them through the lines and remained as refugees until the close of the war. A considerable part of the territory of West Virginia was the scene of active military operations during the war, and was held, a large part of the time, by the Confederate Army. Quite a number of raids and expeditions were made into the territory within the Union lines by the Confederates, and the same sort of raids and expeditions were made by the Union Army into the territory held by the Confederates. Companies of home guards were formed among the Union men, and within this territory and a large part of the state there was a division of neighbor against neighbor—sometimes between members of the same family and between the people of one part of the county against those of another part. Men were killed; property was carried away; men were arrested and carried off to prison; armies were piloted by adherents of one side and the other, and advantage was taken of the situation by lawless men to commit violence and outrages of various kinds, and even in the legitimate prosecution of the war property of various kinds and stock and supplies were taken first by one army and then by the other, the Confederates taking from Union men and the Federals from those who adhered to the Southern cause. Those who adhered to the Union considered those that went with the Confederacy as traitors to the Federal Government, while those that went with the South considered the Union men that refused to go with the state of Virginia as traitors to their state, each one looking at the question from his own standpoint, and this state of bitterness increased as the war went on, so that at the close of the war there was a very difficult and trying situation to deal with in the State of West Virginia. Those who had remained loyal to the Federal Government and had taken part in the formation of the new state, took the position that those who had gone with the Confederacy should not be allowed to participate in the Government, hold office or vote, or exercise the duties of any public position; that they should not be allowed to bring suits in the courts and that they should be responsible for the losses that occurred to the Union men in the way of property carried off and destroyed or personal imprisonment inflicted by the Confederate troops. In return, the Confederate soldiers and their friends and sympathizers claimed that they had accepted the result of the war in good faith; that they were entitled to belligerent rights for whatever had been done during the war; that these had been accorded to them by the terms of the surrender at Appomattox, and that they ought to be allowed to exercise all the rights of citizenship. These matters are not mentioned for the purpose of reviving the bitter and unpleasant memories and antagonisms of the war, but as furnishing an explanation of the political history and events which occurred in the years following immediately after the close of the war. In addition to the adoption of the amendment to the constitution above mentioned, which provided in effect that no one who had participated in the rebellion or aided it should be considered a citizen of the state or have a right to vote at any election, statutes were passed requiring attorneys-at-law, teachers in public schools, jurors, voters and all officers to take oath that they had not, since the 20th of June, 1863, borne arms against the United States, or the state of West Virginia, or voluntarily given aid or comfort to persons engaged in armed hostility thereto, etc. And the defendant in any suit brought could require the plaintiff to take such oath. The effect of this legislation was to prevent all Confederate soldiers and all persons who had aided, counselled, advised or assisted the Confederate cause from exercising any of the rights or functions above mentioned.

And a statute was also passed for the protection of the home guards, which provided that no suit should be maintained against any person for acts done in the suppression of the rebellion, and that it should be a sufficient defense to such suit or action to show that such act was done in obedience to the order or by the authority of any civil or military officer in this state, of the re-organized government of Virginia, or the government of the United States, or that said act was done in aid of the purposes and policy of said authorities in retarding, checking and suppressing the rebellion. Chapter 97, Acts 1866. At the same time the courts held that suits might be maintained by loyal persons against those who had been in the Confederate Army for injuries done by said Army to persons or property of loyal citizens, upon the theory that the Confederate Army was an unlawful conspiracy and enterprise; that all persons engaged in it were responsible for what was done whether they actually participated in the act or not, provided they were with the command by which the injury was done. Actions of trespass on the case were brought in many of the counties to recover damages on this theory against returned Confederate soldiers, and many judgments were obtained.

The Let-Up Party.

"At the election held in 1866, in many of the counties candidates were put forward by the Democratic, or what was known as the 'Let-up' Party, and some of these candidates were elected to the legislature, but in the case of Confederate soldiers or sympathizers they were not allowed to take their seats because they could not take the test oaths.

"At the session of this legislature of 1866, William E. Stevenson, of Wood county was elected President of the Senate. Among other members elected were Henry M. Mathews of Greenbrier and John S. Burdett. Mathews was not permitted to take his seat because he could not take the test oath.

"In his message to the legislature, Governor Boreman, spoke of the bad faith of the late rebels in standing for office and recommended more stringent laws, but he did recommend that suitors' test oaths be modified so as not to apply to any act since the war.

Relaxing the Rigors.

"An election for state officers was held in the Fall of 1866, Arthur I. Boreman being the candidate of the Republican party, and Benjamin H. Smith of Kanawha for the Democratic or 'Let-up' Party. Governor Boreman received 23,806 votes and Colonel Smith 17,144 votes, showing the growth of the sentiment in favor of relaxing the rigors of the legislation against the Southern sympathizers.

"At the session of 1867, David S. Pinnell was elected Speaker, and William P. Hubbard Clerk. Wesley Mollohan was a Committee Clerk. This legislature elected Peter G. Van Winkle and Waitman T. Willey United States Senators.

"The following members of Congress were elected in 1866: Chester

D. Hubbard from the First District. George R. Latham from the Second District and Kellian V. Whaley from the Third District.

"In 1869, Solomon S. Fleming was elected Speaker; William E. Stevenson continuing President of the Senate.

"Among the new members in 1869 were E. Willis Wilson of Jefferson, John J. Jacob of Hampshire. William H. H. Flick of Pendleton, in the House; in the Senate, Henry G. Davis of Mineral. At this session D. D. T. Farnsworth was elected President of the Senate, and during the session Governor Arthur I. Boreman was elected to the United States Senate for the term beginning March 4th, 1869; the Governorship devolving upon Mr. Farnsworth as President of the Senate for a short time. An election for Governor was held in 1869, and William E. Stevenson was elected.

Sentiment Against Test Oaths.

"At the session of the legislature of 1869, Governor Stevenson recommended the repeal of the attorneys' and teachers' test oaths, and stated that he thought the wisdom of the further continuance of the suitors' test oaths was questionable. He also suggested the amendment of the Constitution so as to restore the privilege of citizenship to those disfranchised. He uses this language:

"These restrictive measures were adopted during the time of great public peril. They were prompted by that instinct of self-preservation which impels every community to shield itself from present or impending danger. Under such circumstances prompt and decisive measures were imperatively demanded and those entrusted with authority did not hesitate to resort to them. These disabilities were not, however, intended to be perpetual, but only to remain in force until all danger to the public peace was past—until those upon whom they were imposed gave evidence that they accepted in good faith the result of the war, and until the permanency of the state was fixed beyond all question. These restrictions did not originate in a vindictive spirit, nor have they been adhered to by any considerable number of persons for unworthy purposes, etc.'

"At the session of the legislature of 1870, William M. Welch of Mineral county was elected Speaker.

"Among the new members of the House were John J. Davis, Benjamin H. Smith, Henry Brannon, F. H. Pierpont who had returned from Virginia to Marion county, and George C. Sturgiss.

Test Oath Acts Repealed.

"At this session bills were passed repealing the attorneys', teachers' and suitors' test oaths, and Mr. Flick, who was a Northern man and had come into the state after the war, offered an amendment to the constitution providing that all male citizens of the state should be entitled to vote, except the usual disqualified classes such as minors, persons of unsound mind, paupers, etc. This amendment was adopted by the legislature and submitted to a vote of the people, and was afterwards adopted. By this legislation, the returned Confederate soldiers and those who had aided and sympathized with the Confederate cause were admitted to vote and were relieved of other disabilities. The effect of this was to turn the State over to the Democrats; and at the general State election held in October, 1870, John J. Jacob, the Democratic or Let-up candidate for Governor was elected, receiving 28,093 votes over William E. Stevenson, Republican candidate, who received 26,683 votes."

The Democratic Regime.

A part of the aftermath of the war had been the maintenance in West Virginia of the civil disabilities imposed on all citizens of the state who had been in any way associated with the cause of the Confederacy. With the removal of those disabilities and the adoption of the constitution of 1872, political control of the state passed into the hands of Democratic leaders with a reliable and substantial majority of the voters behind them, and that regime remained unbroken during the next two decades. These were years of rapid development of the means of transportation in the state, and that development opened the way for the captains of industry and their followers to come in and possess the land. With the rapid growth of the industries and the population of the state, the relation of numbers between the political parties changed gradually. till in the fall election of 1888, the vote on the face of the returns stood 78,714 for Goff, Republican, and 78,604 for Fleming, Democrat. The election was contested, however, and, after a contest lasting nearly a year, Governor Fleming was seated in the gubernatorial chair. With the administration of his successor, Governor MacCorkle, the line of Democratic governors was broken, and in 1896, the political control of the state passed again to the Republican party with the election of Governor George W. Atkinson. A. B. White, Republican, was elected in 1900. He was succeeded by W. M. O. Dawson, Republican, in 1904. William E. Glasscock was elected in 1908, and the present Governor, Henry D. Hatfield, was the choice of the people of the state in 1912.

Republicans at the Helm.

During the period of the state's history covering the last two decades there has been a remarkable growth and development of our great industries. Markets have been opened up for the products of our fields and forests and mines, for our coal, oil, gas, salt, lumber and other commodities, and a tremendous tonnage has been developed by the great railway systems that cross our state. This industrial development has brought to the front new problems of government, and certain great economic questions relating to taxation and finance, to the control of public service corporations, to the conservation of our natural resources, to safeguarding the rights of working men and women, to the development of an adequate educational system, have occupied the thought of each successive administration. An agitation and controversy which raged with more or less disregard and disarrangement of party lines throughout the administrations of Governor White and Governor Dawson greatly modified our methods of raising revenue for state purposes and resulted in a much needed overhauling of our machinery for assessing, levying and collecting taxes. During the administration of Governor Glasscock arose a disastrous conflict between organized labor and organized capital engaged in the great coal industry, and throughout the three administrations preceding the inauguration of Governor Hatfield, there has been up for discussion, in West Virginia as throughout the nation, the question of the control of public service corporations by the state through suitable governmental agencies. With some stage of the solution of all these great modern problems of government the present administration has had something to do, and it is a part of the purpose of this sketch to give a brief account of the more important executive and legislative activities of Henry D. Hatfield's first three years in office as Governor of West Virginia.

Present Day Problems of Statesmanship.

Every other regular session of the West Virginia legislature covers a period of forty-five days during the interval between the election and the inauguration of a new governor. It is natural that at this session the governor-elect should take a deep interest in the proceedings of the lawmakers and that his counsel should be sought by the leaders of both houses in the shaping of important legislative measures. In the session of 1913 Governor Hatfield was keenly interested in several important propositions before the two houses, and he took a conspicuous part in framing and championing such important acts as those which gave the state its prohibition law, its public service commission, its workmen's compensation law, and a measure for the regulation of hydro-electric companies. The legislative work of the session was more or less impeded because of the engrossment of the attention of the members in a stubborn three-cornered contest for the United States senatorship, and because of the further fact that a tied senate gave to neither party a full measure of power; nor did this condition tend to develop on either side a proper sense of responsibility. In spite of these untoward conditions, the acts referred to and several other laws of great importance to the people of the state were placed on the statute book during the session which ended just previous to Governor Hatfield's inauguration.

Abnormal and Menacing Conditions.

The new governor was almost immediately confronted with abnormal and menacing conditions. During the first month of his administration one of the most destructive floods that ever swept down the Ohio Valley brought loss and suffering and the peril of death to many citizens along the banks of the rivers. The prompt organization of relief for those who were in danger and distress from the effects of the flood was one of the first of the unusual official tasks that fell to the lot of Governor Hatfield. Another menace which had been handed down from the previous administration was the strike situation. Certain districts of the state were under martial law. The great coal industry in that region was paralyzed. The operation of the courts of justice in regard to a certain class of cases was in abeyance; and a military commission was exercising the functions of the court. Scores of men were imprisoned, and drastic sentences inflicted on them by the commission were only awaiting the approval of the governor before being executed. Other trials by court martial were in prospect. Meanwhile the state was maintaining a large military force in the field at a ruinous expense, and the outlook for industrial peace was anything but encouraging.

Governor Hatfield promptly made a careful personal investigation of the situation. One of his first official acts was the discharge of the men who had been convicted by the military court and sentenced to long terms in the Penitentiary. This was a stepping stone to the settlement of the strike that had terrorized the Paint and Cabin Creek section of the Kanawha mining district. Within a month the governor had the situation so well in hand that the military forces were withdrawn, and peace was restored in the disturbed area, and the foundation had been laid for a restoration of workable conditions between employers and employes in the great coal industry.

As "Final Arbitrator."

Following the settlement of the Paint and Cabin Creek strike situation, a serious difficulty was confronted in the New River and Winding Gulf district, where 30,000 men were affected. The operators and miners were unable to come to terms upon a new wage contract, and Governor Hatfield was asked to use his good offices to bring about a settlement. This he was able to do within a few days, and by this act he brought to a termination the threatened difficulty in the New River and Winding Gulf district. One of the provisions of the contract entered into by the miners and operators of the New River district was that the Governor should act as final arbitrator in all disputes between the miners and operators that could not be settled by the joint board, composed of two representatives of the operators and two representatives of the miners. Governor Hatfield served in this capacity for some two years and gave much time to the consideration of cases that could not be settled by the arbitration board. In this capacity he gave eminent satisfaction to both sides as evidenced by the fact that he was tendered the thanks of the miners and operators for his services. As soon as the contract was brought about between the New River and Winding Gulf operators and miners, the scene of the industrial conflict was changed from West Virginia to Colorado where there has raged a constant turmoil ever since.

Virginia Debt Controversy.

Another menace of long standing that had become acute when Governor Hatfield took up the reins of government was the Virginia debt litigation in the supreme court of the United States. The history of that controversy reaches back to the time of the creation of the state, and many of the questions involved have to do with transactions of the government of Virginia in the ante-bellum period.

Elsewhere in this manual the main facts of that long controversy between the two Virginias are set forth in the form of a series of digests of decisions and state papers. It is necessary to take up in this sketch only the part played by Governor Hatfield's administration in the conduct of the case since its reopening in the supreme court subsequent to the tentative decision of the matter announced in 1911. By that decision West Virginia's share of the principal of the ancient obligation was definitely fixed at $7,182,507.49. Nothing was done about it till 1913, when Virginia asked the court for a final judgment which would include interest on the principal debt of more than seven million dollars, this accumulated interest amounting to far more than the original debt.

A Layman's View.

Governor Hatfield made a careful personal study of the case as it had been conducted by those in charge of West Virginia's defense. To his layman mind it seemed that, perhaps, the able counsel for West Virginia had placed too much stress on the merely legalistic and technical points raised in the course of the litigation, and that they had not made an adequate study of the historical aspects of the financial relations existing between the eastern and western districts of Virginia when the old partnership was dissolved in the sixties.

This view of the situation the governor urged on the commission which he had been authorized by the legislature of 1913 to appoint. It was difficult for him to convince the members of the commission, apparently, that there was any room whatever for further defense of West Virginia's case before the court. However, the governor urged his point and began the campaign of historical and statistical research which resulted in the reopening of the case and the further reference of it to Master Littlefield for a reinvestigation and restatement of the facts. This restatement sustained the contention of our counsel that West Virginia is entitled to a share of the assets that were in the possession of Virginia in 1861. In a decision handed down June 14, 1915, the court confirmed the statement of the Master, reducing the principal of the debt to $4,215,622.28.

Mulcted for the Interest.

The further decision of the court that West Virginia must pay interest on the principal sum brings the total of the obligation to $12,393,929.50, as of July 1, 1915.

As the grounds on which the court has mulcted West Virginia for interest would have been in every respect the same had the final decision been rendered on the seven million instead of the four million principal basis, it is entirely fair to say that Governor Hatfield's success in securing a rehearing of the case has resulted in reducing the judgment against West Virginia by some nine million dollars, for interest reckoned on the original finding of the court at the same rate as its final decision would have brought the total amount of the debt to about $21,000,000.

As to the Future.

Whether or not it may be possible for the state to make further resistance to the payment of what many of our people still regard as an unjust claim is a question that must be decided with due reference to the great principles of justice and with a proper regard for the credit and reputation of the commonwealth. Among men of profound learning in the law and of the utmost integrity there is a difference of opinion as to what the next step of West Virginia should be. Whatever may be the ultimate outcome, the people of the state cannot fail to look with satisfaction upon the important results that have grown out of the sturdy efforts put forth by the Hatfield administration for a more equitable recognition by the supreme court of West Virginia's side of the case, so far as relates to the principal of the debt.

The Revenue Situation.

Another difficult situation which confronted the Hatfield administration at the outset was in the field of state finances. Liberal appropriations had been made by the legislature of 1913 to meet the growing needs of many state institutions, and no adequate provision had been agreed upon to make good the losses incident to the costly strike campaign and to the approaching end of the period during which revenues from the liquor traffic would be available. The governor foresaw the fiscal situation which must inevitably result. In the face of hostile criticism he pointed out to the voters the fact that the needs of the state and its institutions called for larger revenues, and the issue was clearly defined in the campaign of 1914. An encouraging victory at the polls was the result of that campaign and a legislature was elected strongly Republican in both branches. Before this body Governor Hatfield laid the most ambitious and progressive program of proposed legislation ever submitted to any West Virginia legislature, a program which aroused strenuous opposition, but when the smoke of the conflict rolled away there had been added to the statute book of the state a series of acts of transcendent importance. Not all had been accomplished that the governor had desired, but no legislative session in the history of the state has come nearer to making a clean record in the fulfillment of pre-election pledges than the legislative session of 1915.

Party Promises Redeemed.

Again and again in previous political campaigns the leading parties in their platforms had promised the enactment of a statewide primary election law, but those promises had never been redeemed. The legislature of 1915 enacted such a law and reinforced it with a stringent corrupt-practices act. It greatly strengthened the act creating the public service commission and the workmen's compensation law.

It made a thorough revision of the mine inspection laws and the laws relating to sanitation and the conservation of the public health. A series of up-to-date laws relating to the development and protection of our farming interests has given the commissioner of agriculture powers and facilities for safeguarding live stock and orchards from invasion by contagious diseases, for the protection of purchasers of seeds and feeds and fertilizers from the fraudulent practices of dishonest dealers, and for the legitimate encouragement of scientific progress in farm management throughout the state. Changes were made in the laws governing our hospitals and asylums providing for a more enlightened and humane treatment of the state's wards. This legislation was the direct result of a personal investigation made by Governor Hatfield, in which he was able to bring to bear on this problem the professional knowledge and experience of a successful physician and surgeon.

Progressive Laws Enacted.

Another important measure championed by the governor was the juvenile court law which permits the courts of the state to deal with delinquent children along the lines approved by modern thought instead of herding them in our jails with adult criminals. The weights and measures law is another piece of legislation which should make for better living conditions among all people. The hydro-electric law hastily enacted by the legislature of 1913, was amended and further guaranties of protection to the public were made a part of that act. An efficient barrier was erected against the monopolization of our last great public asset remaining in the hands of the people, and protection assured to the inhabitants of our river valleys from the menace of high and insecure dams on the upper waters of those rivers.

Proposed legislation looking to the conservation of supplies of fuel by regulating the practices of oil and gas well drillers and exploring companies was unfortunately defeated, though urged by the governor; but something was accomplished along conservation lines in the protection of our forested areas and the wild game of the state and in establishing some degree of control over the abuses which have led to the pollution of our rivers and streams.

On the question of the state's need of additional revenues which Governor Hatfield had made one of the issues of the previous campaign, and the further question as to the best means of raising that revenue, the administration encountered a solid Democratic opposition in the senate, leagued with a sufficient number of the men of the governor's own party to defeat all measures of taxation passed by the house of delegates during the regular session and the first extraordinary session. Soon after adjournment of the latter, the fact of a failure of revenues to meet expenditures became apparent to the entire state through the suspension of payment of warrants drawn on the state treasury. To meet this intolerable situation a second extraordinary session of the legislature was called May 18th and an act providing additional revenue was passed.

Storm Center of Criticism.

In the administration of the affairs of state under this program of new legislation the executive office has been more or less of a storm center of criticism from interests variously affected thereby. One of the early acts of the public service commission was to exercise its powers to fix rates paid by gas consumers in the northern part of the state. The public service corporation whose profits were likely to be thus curtailed took the matter into court and made a vicious attack on the state's new agency of government and upon the governor himself.

The case is still in court, and Governor Hatfield has shown at every stage of it a disposition to stand courageously for the rights of the people of the state, notwithstanding the hostility this course of action had directed against him and his administration from one of the most powerful corporate and financial interests in the United States.

Reform in Legislative Procedure.

One of Governor Hatfield's most useful recommendations to the legislature, and one that was only partly carried out, was contained in a special message submitted on the first day of the regular session. This suggested new rules and methods for the handling of bills in their passage through the two houses. The governor called attention to the fact that "more than one-third of all acts passed in recent years went into effect from passage, but it was several months before judges and those in whose keeping the law was left for execution, were able to secure a copy of the laws, on account of the complex system of publishing these acts." The method of handling bills proposed by the message was adopted and resulted in a vastly improved service. It opens the way for far-reaching changes in the matter of legislative procedure which should do away with certain long-standing abuses notoriously connected with the work of legislative sessions.

Makes Prohibition Prohibit.

Among the acts of the legislature which met with Governor Hatfield's hearty approval were some laws supplementary to the Yost prohibition law, and noteworthy among the achievements of the administration has been the vigorous enforcement of the acts forbidding the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages in West Virginia. The commissioner of prohibition has had the cordial and hearty support of the governor in his strenuous policy of law enforcement. Yet another new departure in government in West Virginia is the law providing for an annual audit of the state's finances, furnishing the basis for a properly constructed budget to be laid before each session of the legislature. The acts and activities here cited by no means constitute a comprehensive and detailed account of the steadfast progress made by the Hatfield administration in carrying out the promises made to the people by his party in various campaigns. They are sufficient to show a splendid record of achievement.

The Spirit of West Virginia.

West Virginia owes her existence as a state to the refusal of our fathers to leave the union. The spirit of those men of the mountains still survives among our people. We are fortunate in a leadership actuated by the same loyalty to principle that animated the men who launched our ship of state in the sixties.

West Virginia stands with her face toward the morning of a new day in the world's history. The consciousness of her people has been awakened to the call of the future to aid in the development of a higher and nobler type of civilization, a state in which there shall be the "sweeter manners, purer laws" that befit the "nobler modes of life" toward which we are earnestly striving.

* At the beginning of the session of 1899, protests were made against Harry C. Getzendanner and E. G. Pierson participating in the deliberations and proceedings of the Senate, they having served in the United States Army, in the Spanish-American war; the former as Captain of Company M, 2d Regiment West Virginia Infantry; and the latter as Second Lieutenant of Company H, Second Regiment West Virginia Infantry—both being lucrative offices under the United States Government—but the Senate, on January 24, 1899, decided that they should retain their seats.

† William R. B. Dent, of Taylor county, took his seat in the House, February 14, 1899, he having successfully contested the seat of Humphrey F. Brolhard.

‡ In the session of 1899, J. D. Logan of Monroe county, successfully contested the seat of Charles M. Via, and by decision of the House qualified January 16, 1899.

STATE INSTITUTIONS

The Legislature in 1909 made a radical change in the system of governing state institutions by creating the State Board of Control and the State Board of Regents, which were made to supersede and replace the various boards hitherto managing these institutions.

To the State Board of Control was given full power to manage, direct, control and govern all the state charitable, penal and reformatory institutions, now thirteen in number, and to manage the business and financial affairs of the State educational institutions, of which there are twelve.

To the State Board of Regents was given the power to select teachers and other employees, prescribe courses of study, and have general supervision of the professional side of the work in the state educational institutions.

The information contained in the following pages concerning the state institutions has been prepared by the State Board of Control. Although in very condensed form, it gives a very fair outline of the history and present equipment of the various institutions, and of the improvements in the way of new buildings and purchase of additional land since that Board took charge of the work July 1, 1909.

The statistical table given under each institution is as full as it can be made, owing to the fact that some of the features therein, such as per capita cost, were not inaugurated, nor records kept concerning same, until some time after the Board began its work.

The State Board of Control took charge of the institutions July 1, 1909, three months before the close of the fiscal year. For reasons of convenience these three months were combined with the full year following in ascertaining the total expenditures for the various institutions. The fiscal year of 1913 was only nine months in length, because of the fact that the 1913 legislature changed the end of the fiscal year from September 30 to June 30.

WESTON STATE HOSPITAL.

Weston, W. Va.

C. W. HALTERMAN, M. D., Superintendent.

This hospital is the oldest public institution of the state, having been established by the state of Virginia in 1858 as the Northwestern Asylum. It was taken over by West Virginia immediately after the admission of that state into the union, and when the main building was completed West Virginia insane patients then in hospitals at Staunton and Williamsburg, Virginia, were transferred to Weston.

The institution has about 335 acres of land, purchased from various persons at the time of its location. Because of its hilly nature, the greater part of it is suitable only for pasture, while the greatest need of the institution is land for truck gardening. A farm of 214 acres has been rented recently for a term of five years to meet this need.

The buildings consist of the main administration and ward building, 1290 feet long with several wings, fronting on the West Fork River, and a number of good sized buildings in the rear. There is now under construction a new building for congregate dining room, kitchen and storage, which will cost approximately $85,000.00.

At this hospital are admitted insane white patients from the northern and eastern counties of the state, and all insane colored patients in the state are sent here.

SPENCER STATE HOSPITAL.

Spencer, W. Va.

CHARLES A. BARLOW, M. D., Superintendent.

The hospital at Weston having reached its capacity, the Legislature of 1885 appointed a committee to investigate proposed sites for a new hospital. This committee reported to the Legislature of 1887 in favor of any one of three locations, but disregarding such report the Legislature located the new institution at Spencer.

The county court of Roane county executed deeds to the State for 184 acres of land, and the buildings were erected thereon. On July 18, 1893, the hospital was opened for the reception of patients. Only a comparatively small part of the land is suitable for gardening, the remainder being used for pasture, and the superintendent has found it advisable to rent adjacent land to give needed employment to the patients, and to raise vegetables and grain for the use of the institution.

The hospital buildings proper are of brick trimmed with stone, and while really three in number, are so located and connected as to make practically one building with a front of 940 feet. The congregate dining room building is a three-story structure of similar construction, located in the rear of the main buildings. In addition to the above are the laundry, power house, and within the last two years a modern dairy barn has been erected, largely by the labor of patients. Also within the same period there has been constructed a lake for a reservoir, with a storage capacity of six million gallons, which furnishes the institution with an abundant supply of good water.

To this institution are admitted insane white patients from the southern counties of the state.

HUNTINGTON STATE HOSPITAL.

Huntington, W. Va.

L. V. GUTHRIE, M. D., Superintendent.

Established by the Legislature in 1897 as "The West Virginia Asylum for Incurables," the name of the institution was changed in 1915 to the "Huntington State Hospital."

Originally intended and beginning its work as a home for physical as well as mental incurables. the scope of the institution's activities was limited by the Legislature of 1901 to the extent that at present there are admitted from all sections of the state "epileptics, idiots, and such other incurable mental defectives as the State Board of Control may deem eligible."

As an inducement for the location of the institution, the Chamber of Commerce of Huntington donated thirty acres of land to the State, which comprises the present site. The location is almost ideal from a sanitary and building point of view, but because of the hilly nature of the land and the small acreage, no extensive farming or trucking can be carried on.

The buildings, situated on top of a hill, are eight in number, those for the patients being erected on the cottage plan. At present there is under construction, largely by inmates' labor, a new building to be used as a home for the superintendent and for administrative offices.

WELCH HOSPITAL NO. 1.

Welch, W. Va.

C. F. Hicks, M. D., Superintendent.

In 1899 the Legislature provided for the establishment of three miner's hospitals, to be located in certain designated sections of the state.

The board of directors selected Welch as the location of Miners' Hospital No. 1. The citizens of Welch donated to the State the three and one-quarter acres of land comprising the site of the institution.

On account of the limited amount of the original appropriation the hospital building was of cheap construction, and has had to undergo extensive repairs. During the last two years there has been built a two story and basement brick addition for kitchen, dining rooms, storage rooms, and living quarters for domestic help, at a cost of about $14,000.00. Also there has recently been erected a nurses' home, the cost of the same being approximately $15,000.00. In addition to the above buildings there are a well equipped laundry building and power house.

STATE INSTITUTIONS.

In 1915 the legislature changed the name to "Welch Hospital No. 1," and the statute provides that the hospital shall "treat free of charge, persons accidentally injured in this state while engaged in their usual employment or occupation." In addition to the above, and because of lack of hospital facilities in the surrounding section of the state, this institution admits a considerable number of patients who pay for their treatment.

McKENDREE HOSPITAL NO. 2.

McKendree, W. Va.

B. B. WHEELER, M. D., Superintendent.

In accordance with the establishing act passed by the legislature in 1899, which required one miners' hospital to be located in the New River coal region, in either Fayette or Kanawha county, the board of directors, after considering a number of proposed sites, selected McKendree, where Col. Joseph C. Beury donated six and one-half acres of land to the State.

The location is almost ideal for a hospital, being on a hill far above and removed from the smoke and filth of mines and railroads and towns. The plant consists of one large two and a half story brick and stone building, and a few small out buildings.

The name "Miners' Hospital" being really a misnomer, the legislature of 1915 changed it to that given above. The same class of patients is admitted here as to Welch Hospital No. 1, and like the latter institution, this hospital admits and treats a number of pay patients.

FAIRMONT HOSPITAL NO. 3.

Fairmont, W. Va.

J. W. McDONALD, M. D., Superintendent.

This institution was established as "Miners' Hospital No. 3," by the legislature of 1899. In order to meet the provision of the above act requiring that the site should be furnished free of cost to the State, the citizens of Fairmont donated one acre of land in the first ward of Fairmont. No additional land has ever been purchased.

The building is a handsome structure of red brick with buff brick trimmings, and being situated on a small knoll shows to excellent advantage. It was opened for the admission of patients October 1, 1901. The legislature in 1915 changed the name to "Fairmont Hospital No. 3."

Owing to the fact that a number of private hospitals are located in the vicinity, this institution confines its work almost entirely to the treatment of persons who are accidentally injured and who under the statute are entitled to free treatment.

WEST VIRGINIA PENITENTIARY.

Moundsville, W. Va.

M. Z. WIRRE, Warden.

When the new state of West Virginia began doing business for itself it was unprovided with a penitentiary, so that for a few years all criminals were kept in county jails. In 1866 the legislature passed an act establishing the present penitentiary, directing that it be located at or near Moundsville, and appropriating $50,000.00 to begin the erection of necessary buildings. The administration building, one cell block and the enclosures were begun in 1867, and completed some time in the seventies. Ten acres of land were purchased, of which about six were enclosed, and four taken up by lawns and for other purposes. This site is on Jefferson Avenue, well within the corporate limits of the city. At different times in later years a farm of 212 acres was purchased, on which are raised considerable quantities of farm and garden products, all of which are consumed in the institution.

For a number of years no appropriations have been needed, as the proceeds of prison labor have been more than sufficient to meet all expenses of the institution. In this connection it might be said that under the law providing for labor of convicts on public roads, three different road camps have been established at different times during 1914 and 1915. The out door work has been beneficial to the prisoners, but at seventy-five cents per day for labor, which is the amount paid by the counties where work has been done, it has been a losing proposition for the state.

WEST VIRGINIA INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL FOR BOYS.

Grafton, W. Va.

H. E. FLESHER, Superintendent.

This institution was established as the "West Virginia Reform School" by an act of the legislature passed in 1889. The commission appointed to select a location decided upon Pruntytown, formerly the county seat of Taylor county, four miles west of Grafton, and two miles from the nearest railroad station. The county gave the state the old court house and site, and $5,000.00 cash for the purchase of additional land of which enough was purchased within a few years to make a total of about 170 acres.

The legislature of 1909 appropriated $30,000.00, for a farm, and with this amount 811 acres of land were purchased. Farming has now become the principal occupation of the boys in the school.

The buildings are on the cottage plan, and the boys are grouped as far as possible in regard to age and development. In all there are about a dozen buildings, the principal one of which is the Administration and Dormitory building for older boys, costing about $80,000.00.

Owing to the crowded conditions and lack of room, it has recently been impossible to keep the boys long enough to give them the thorough training they need. Boys not yet prepared to leave are forced out to make room for new arrivals. This condition will be remedied by the completion of two new cottages now being erected on the farm some distance from the main institution, in which it is the intention to house the more trustworthy boys.

This institution is for the care and training of male youths over ten and under eighteen years of age, who may be committed thereto by a justice of the peace on a charge of vagrancy or incorrigibility, or by the courts of the state when such youths are convicted of a crime punishable by imprisonment.

WEST VIRGINIA INDUSTRIAL HOME FOR GIRLS.

Industrial, W. Va.

MISS JENNIE F. SUTTON, Superintendent.

Realizing the need of a reformatory institution for wayward and delinquent girls, the legislature of 1897 passed an act establishing this Home, which was located at Industrial, one mile west of Salem, on the main line of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. The institution was open to receive inmates May 5, 1899.

The citizens of Salem donated about thirty-eight acres of land, to which have been added by subsequent purchases other tracts sufficient to make in all about sixty acres, a considerable portion of which can be cultivated.

At present there are three brick buildings, one of which, Silver Hall, a fire-proof structure, was completed within the last two years. In December, 1914, the school building was burned, and plans are now being prepared to replace it with a modern well equipped building.

To this institution are admitted girls between the ages of seven and eighteen years, who may be committed thereto by justices on the charge of vagrancy or incorrigibility, or by courts of the state upon conviction of any crime punishable by imprisonment.

WEST VIRGINIA SCHOOLS FOR THE DEAF AND THE BLIND.

Romney, W. Va.

PARLEY DE BERRY, Superintendent.

This institution was established by the legislature in 1870, and as an inducement for its location the Romney Classical Institute donated to the State the building and lot belonging to the Institute, to which the citizens of Romney added several acres of land as a gift. Subsequently additional purchases were made, until the institution now has about 150 acres of land, on which considerable amounts of grain, feed and garden truck are produced.

Most of the buildings, about ten in number, exclusive of some small out buildings, recently have been extensively repaired, and are in good condition.

To this institution are admitted deaf and blind youths between the ages of eight and twenty-five years, who receive board and instruction free of charge. During the present year the enrollment has reached 275, which is nearly the capacity of the institution.

STATE TUBERCULOSIS SANITARIUM.

Terra Alta, W. Va.

E. E. Clovis, M. D., Superintendent.

This is one of the youngest of the State's institutions, having been established in 1911. The location was selected in July, 1911, by the State Board of Control and the State Board of Health acting jointly, and in January, 1913, the first patients were received.

The Sanitarium is two miles east of Terra Alta, at a small station on the main line of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad called Hopemont. The farm originally purchased has an area of 535 acres, costing $17,500.00, of which $2,500.00, was contributed by the citizens of Terra Alta. Later purchases have increased the acreage to over 600, a considerable part of which is well adapted to cultivation.

The institution is on the cottage plan, the first buildings erected being a receiving building and two cottages. During 1915 there have been finished a residence for the superintendent, second receiving building, and two additional cottages, making the capacity of the institution at present one hundred and twenty. Already it is practically full to capacity.

The maximum charge for treatment is six dollars per week, and the minimum three dollars, the latter amount being paid by county courts, municipal councils, or benevolent organizations by whom persons unable to pay anything may be sent for treatment.

WEST VIRGINIA COLORED ORPHANS' HOME.

Huntington, W. Va.

JAMES L. HILL, Superintendent.

Originally incorporated as a private institution, this Home was purchased by the State Board of Control in 1911, in accordance with an act passed at the legislative session of that year.

The building is situated on a bluff overlooking the Guyandotte river. Having been erected largely by inmate labor it was in a very rough and unfinished condition when taken over by the State. Since then very extensive repairs have been made on it.

The farm on which the institution is located is some distance outside the city limits of Huntington, and contains one hundred and ninety acres, only a comparatively small part of which can be used for gardening.

Colored orphan and destitute children under sixteen years of age are received in this Home, where they are maintained and educated until they can be placed in suitable private homes.

WEST VIRGINIA CHILDREN'S HOME.

Elkins, W. Va.

MISS GERTRUDE SIMMONS, Superintendent.

There being urgent need for a place of temporary shelter or home for such children as came into the custody of the West Virginia Humane Society, the legislature of 1909, established "The West Virginia Children's Home," to be carried on in the buildings to be provided by the directors of the Humane Society, who were authorized to select and purchase the site, and cause the buildings to be erected, for the purpose of affording a temporary home to the white children surrendered to the care or committed to the custody of the society; the society to keep such children until they can be placed in suitable homes elsewhere. The society is authorized to make such rules and regulations relative to the management, government, instruction, discipline, employment and disposition of such children as they may deem proper, and to appoint such officers, agents, and servants as they deem necessary. The Home was located at the city of Elkins, and was open for the reception of children on May 9, 1911.

The institution owns about twenty acres of land, within the corporate limits of the city of Elkins, for which the State paid about $5,000.00. All of it can be cultivated, and a considerable amount of truck is raised each year.

The buildings consist of the Home proper, a two story brick and stone structure, costing about $11,700.00, and a two story brick barn. A substantial addition was made to the main building in 1915, at a cost of $3,000.00.

In this Home are kept, until suitable private homes may be secured for them, white children under sixteen years of age surrendered to the Humane Society by parents or guardians, and children under fourteen years of age who come into the custody of the Society under commitment of courts, upon complaint and due hearing of charges that such children are abandoned, neglected, ill treated, or that the parents of such children are unfit to care for them.

Educational Institutions

WEST VIRGINIA UNIVERSITY.

Morgantown, W. Va.

FRANK B. TROTTER, Acting President.

In 1867 the legislature established the "Agricultural College of West Virginia," which name was changed in 1868 to the "West Virginia University."

This institution, destined to become the leading educational institution of the state, was located at Morgantown, due no doubt largely to the fact that the trustees of the Monongalia Academy donated to the state the property of that school, valued at about $50,000.00, in consideration of such location.

At present the campus consists of about fifty acres of land, on which have been erected ten large buildings of brick and stone. There are now under construction a new building for the College of Medicine, and an addition to the Mechanical Hall, which will cost approximately $22,500.00, and $45,000.00, respectively. The legislature (session of 1915) appropriated $200,000.00 to be used in erecting an Agricultural Building and a Women's Building. During the same year the authorities of Monongalia county agreed to spend $75,000 for a farm for the College of Agriculture and Experiment Station. Under this agreement more than six hundred acres additional land will be secured.

The first faculty consisted of six members; now there are one hundred and twenty. At first there were three departments; now there are more than forty departments. In addition to the regular enrollment at the institution, the University reached 1446 persons who were enrolled in agricultural extension schools throughout the state, and in correspondence courses in agriculture. Within recent years the University has extended its usefulness very much by serving beyond its own campus. Within five years the Extension Division of the College of Agriculture has increased its annual expenditure from about $7,000 to about $85,000, and is reaching at least one hundred thousand citizens of the state. The College of Engineering is beginning similar work for the miners. Other valuable service is being rendered through the Road Bureau, the Hygienic Laboratory and the Weights and Measures Laboratory.

The University offers eight baccalaureate and seven masters degrees to students completing the work required in the courses leading up to such degrees.

WEST VIRGINIA AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATION.

Morgantown, W. Va.

JOHN LEE COULTER, Director.

The Experiment Station, which is closely connected with, and in fact is treated as a department of the West Virginia University, was instituted by the Legislature in 1889, by accepting the provisions of the Hatch act, which appropriated $15,000.00, per year for maintenance of the Station.

The building completed in 1894, is on a small triangular lot between two streets, and is two stories in height, built of red brick.

It is supported by the appropriations made by the Hatch and Adams acts of Congress, by state appropriations, and by income from examination of fertilizers and sale of farm and dairy products.

The work carried on by the Station is purely experimental, as indicated by its name, and is designated as Hatch projects, Adams projects, and State projects, each project taking its name from the appropriation, out of which is paid the expense of carrying on the project. The above work is carried on in the Station building, on the state farm of about one hundred acres, (soon to be increased to more than six hundred acres,) near Morgantown, and at various other places throughout the state, where projects have been started.

At present (1915-16) the Station is carrying on experiments on about seventy-five projects. From time to time the results of these experiments are published in bulletin form and distributed throughout the state. About ten thousand names are found on the mailing list.

PREPARATORY BRANCH WEST VIRGINIA UNIVERSITY.

Montgomery, W. Va.

A. S. THORN, Principal.

This institution was established and located at Montgomery by the legislature in 1895, the act carrying with it an appropriation of $10,000.44 for the purchase of land and the erection of a building. The Montgomery heirs donated two acres of land for a site, and the school was opened to receive students January 4, 1897. During the year 1915 citizens of Montgomery purchased and deeded to the State two additional acres of land.

The building is of brick, and having a terraced slope in front, planted in shrubbery and shade trees, it presents a very attractive appearance.

The school offers a course beginning with the eighth grade and including a full high school course, five years in all, thus preparing its graduates for entrance into college. Recently the school has established a commercial course, and is making plans to turn its attention more and more to industrial courses.

Keyser, W. Va.

JOSEPH W. STAYMAN, Principal.

The legislature in 1901 established this institution, locating it at Keyser. Trustees to whom Col. Thos. B. Davis had conveyed a tract of land to be used as a park or for school grounds, deeded to the State 7.67 acres of such land, on which site the school building was erected. In December, 1912, these trustees conveyed to the State an additional tract of 8.62 acres, on condition that a dormitory be erected thereon.

The buildings are two in number, the school building proper costing about $20,000.00, which was opened for students October 1, 1902, and a dormitory, just completed at a cost of approximately $43,000.00. The latter is a three-story structure, over two hundred feet in length. Situated on Fort Hill, at an elevation of 150 feet above the Potomac river level, they command a splendid view of the surrounding region.

In addition to the ordinary preparatory courses, this institution offers a "Short Course" leading to a first grade elementary teachers' certificate, and practical agricultural and commercial courses.

MARSHALL COLLEGE STATE NORMAL SCHOOL.

Huntington, W. Va.

O. I. WOODLEY, President.

Marshall College had its beginning in the early part of last century, in a log cabin on the present site of the school. The first known teacher was John N. Peck. In 1838 James Holderly sold to the school one and one-fourth acres of land, and about this time it was incorporated by the Virginia legislature as Marshall Academy, the name being selected in honor of Chief Justice John Marshall.

It was conducted as an institution of the Methodist church until 1858, when the legislature of Virginia passed an act changing the name to Marshall College. From this time until after the close of the Civil War it became deeply involved financially, and finally Cabell County paid off the indebtedness and turned the property over to the State, and in 1867 the Legislature passed an act making the institution a state normal school.

Additional grounds have been acquired, and at present they consist of an immensely valuable tract of sixteen acres in the heart of Huntington.

The school building and dormitory, although one continuous structure over 400 feet long, really consists of five different buildings, put up at different times. It is of brick, with stone trimmings. At present there is in process of erection a new science building, which when completed will cost approximately $58,000.00. This is a three-story, brick and stone structure, and will be known as the Northcott Science Hall.

FAIRMONT STATE NORMAL SCHOOL.

Fairmont, W. Va.

JOSEPH ROSIER, President.

As a result of the need for properly trained teachers, the citizens of Fairmont in 1865 established as a private enterprise the first normal school in the state.

In 1867 the legislature united with the town in constructing a building, which finally cost about $20,000.00, and which was used for the normal school until 1893, when the school was moved to the one now in use.

Dr. W. R. White, first superintendent of free schools of West Virginia, was the first principal after the school became a state institution in 1868, and he immediately introduced teacher training work, which later was abandoned, but in recent years has become firmly established as the most important work of the institution.

The legislature of 1913 authorized the State Board of Control to sell for $75,000.00, the land and building then in use, which was done. This amount, together with appropriations made for the purpose, has been used to secure a new site and erect a new building thereon, which will be completed sometime during 1916. The new building is located on a tract of eighteen and one-half acres recently purchased, and will cost approximately $128,000.00, and will be one of the most complete and up-to-date school plants in the state.

WEST LIBERTY NORMAL SCHOOL.

West Liberty, W. Va.

JOHN C. SHAW, Principal.

This school is located at West Liberty, which became the county seat of Ohio county in the second year of the Revolution, this being the first seat of justice in the Mississippi valley. The school is the outgrowth of the West Liberty Academy, a private school incorporated in 1838. The original building was built by popular subscriptions, was destroyed by fire in 1840, and in 1857 was rebuilt by similar contributions. This second structure forms the older part of the present building.

In 1870 the State purchased the property for $6,000.00, and established there a branch of the State Normal School. On May 2, 1870, the school began work, with F. H. Crago, A. M., as first principal, and since that time has continued as one of the State normals.

Until 1915 the grounds consisted of about four and one-half acres, but there have recently been purchased several tracts of land, aggregating ninety-four and one-half acres in all, which will make possible experimental agricultural work, as well as afford room for athletics.

At present there is only one building, a brick and stone structure, but appropriation was made by the Legislature in 1915 for a dormitory. Plans for this are under way, with the intention of beginning construction of same in the early spring of 1916.

GLENVILLE STATE NORMAL SCHOOL.

Glenville, W. Va.

E. G. ROUBOUGH, Principal.

In 1872 the legislature established a branch of the State Normal School at Glenville, Gilmer County, on condition that the citizens of the town and county provide suitable grounds and buildings.

School was opened in the old court house January 24, 1873, and subsequently a two-story frame dwelling house was acquired, which became the home of the school until 1885, at which time an appropriation was made for a new building. In 1893 another appropriation provided for enlarging the building, and in 1909 money was appropriated for a new building, which latter was completed in 1912.

In 1913 $37,000.00 was appropriated for a new dormitory which is now in course of construction.

The grounds consist of about six acres, purchased at various times, part in 1885, part in 1909, and the last in 1914.

This institution, although some miles from the railroad, has had a remarkable growth during the last ten years.

SHEPHERD COLLEGE STATE NORMAL SCHOOL.

Shepherdstown, W. Va.

THOS. C. MILLER, Principal.

Shepherd College took its name under an incorporation in 1872, and was given the name of the old family line that has been so prominent in Shepherdstown for nearly a century and a half.

When the county seat was taken back to Charles Town at the close of the civil war a group of progressive citizens of Shepherdstown organized a "Classical and Scientific Institute," which began its work in 1871. In 1872 it was incorporated as Shepherd College, and in 1873 under certain provisions, its use was transferred to the state in consideration of the location of one of the normal schools at that place, hence the title by which it is known. Since that time the school has been recognized as one of the branch normal schools of the State, carries on a course of study identical with the others, and its graduates enjoy the same privileges, receiving the number one certificates issued to all normal graduates. The real founder of the school and the man who gave it its reputation was Professor Joseph McMurrin, a born teacher and a leader among men. His thoroughness and his high character so impressed themselves upon the school and the students of the earlier days that these characteristics have been prominent ever since.

The institution owns three large lots, and has under twenty-five year lease another on which is located the original Shepherd College building.

In 1915 the State Board of Control purchased a lot containing about three and one-half acres, on which is being erected a new dormitory, which will cost about $25,000.00.

When this is completed the buildings will consist of the main school building, completed in 1904 on the site of another which was burned in 1901, the new dormitory, and a large hall built by citizens of Shepherdstown, and now under twenty-five year lease by the state.

Situated far from most of the other educational institutions of the state, this school has an important work to perform in its community.

CONCORD STATE NORMAL SCHOOL.

Athens, W. Va.

L. B. HILL, Principal.

The school was established in the town of Concord, now Athens, in Mercer county, by the legislature in 1872.

The conditions of the establishment were that a building and at least five acres of land should be donated to the State. Six acres were conveyed to the State by W. H. Martin in 1874, and May 10, 1875, the school opened in a small wooden building that had been erected on this tract. In 1885 and 1887 appropriations were made for a new building, which was used until 1901. This was replaced by another building erected in 1900 costing about $20,000.00. In the latter part of 1910 this building was burned, and later the building rented for school purposes was burned.

After this fire the legislature appropriated $36,000.00, for a new building, which with $14,000.00, insurance was used in erecting a two story brick and concrete building. Subsequently in 1913 an additional appropriation of $5,000.00 was made, with which an auditorium and additional wing are being added to the building at this time.

In addition to the above, there is a three story frame building used as a dormitory for girls.

After the burning of the building citizens of Athens purchased and conveyed to the State a tract of twenty-six acres of land at the eastern end of the town, on which tract the new school building is located. This affords ample room for experimental agriculture and a first class athletic field.

WEST VIRGINIA COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

BYRD PRILLERMAN, President.

The Act of Congress known as the Morrill Act provided that no state should obtain the benefits therefrom unless an equitable portion of the money appropriated thereby should be used to provide instruction for the colored race.

This resulted in the establishment of the "West Virginia Colored Institute" in 1891, and its location on the Great Kanawha eight miles below Charleston.

The land first purchased consisted of thirty-one acres, which has been increased by successive purchases to about seventy-seven acres, the greater part of which is practically level, and is used largely for experimental agricultural work.

The first building was Fleming Hall, in which school was opened May 3, 1892. Subsequently there were erected four other large brick buildings, some for school purposes and two for dormitories, and also two frame buildings. The latest to be built is a fireproof dining hall, storage and dormitory building, completed in 1915 at a cost of about $35,000.00.

This school is conducted somewhat after the Tuskegee plan, in that an attempt is made to furnish employment about the institution to poor students, thus aiding many to obtain an education who could not otherwise do so. In addition to the above, a number of trades are taught, thus preparing students for successful living after they leave school.

In 1915 the Legislature changed the name to the "West Virginia Collegiate Institute," and authorized the extension of the work given to college grade.

BLUEFIELD COLORED INSTITUTE.

Bluefield, W. Va.

R. P. SIMS, Principal.

This institution was established by the Legislature in 1895, the act carrying with it an appropriation of $8,000.00, for a building. This building, known as Mahood Hall, was completed in 1896, and school opened December 6, 1896.

A second building known as Lewis Hall, and used as a girls' dormitory, was built in 1897, and a third, known as West Hall, and used as a boys' dormitory was built in 1900. These three buildings, the first being brick, and the last two frame, constitute the school plant.

They are located on a tract of eight and one-half acres of land on the foot-hills of Stony Ridge mountain. Additional tillable land is greatly needed.

In the act establishing the institution it was provided that there should be taught "such branches of learning as are taught in the preparatory department of the West Virginia University, and in the normal schools in this state."

HIGH SCHOOLS.

The facts about the high schools of the state at the present time cannot be fully appreciated unless they are compared with the conditions as they were a few years ago. The following summary prepared by L. L. Friend, Supervisor of High Schools, shows the present status of our high schools and the unusual progress made within recent years.

Since 1909-10 the enrollment in the high schools of the state has increased 131 per cent.

88.9 per cent of the pupils enrolled in public high schools are in four-year high schools. 92.2 per cent of the pupils enrolled in all schools of high school grade are in four-year schools.

Since 1909-10 seventy-eight new high school buildings have been erected. The total cost of these buildings was $3,250,000.

The minimum high school term in West Virginia is thirty-six weeks.

There are nine colored high schools in the state; three of these are high schools of the first class, two are high schools of the second class, three are high schools of the third class and one is unclassified.

Since 1909-10 approximately $250,000 has been expended in the purchase of apparatus, libraries and other equipment for high schools.

No school is recognized as a high school that offers less than two years of standard high school work.

The state appropriation for the aid of classified high schools is $85,000 for 1915 and $88,000 for 1916.

BLUE SKY

State Fire Marshal.

This department, of which the auditor is the ex-officio head, has for its object the reduction of fire waste.

It works in conjunction with local officials, throughout the state, and has several expert representatives who are continually at work, either in the inspection of buildings with a view to reducing the fire hazard or in investigating suspicious fires with the object of prosecuting those who may be guilty of arson or incendiarism. It is continually engaged in educational work along fire prevention lines. A strong effort is being made to bring before the individual property owner, as well as the officials, the principal causes of fires, so that they may be influenced to guard against this ever present danger which a few simple precautions will often minimize. This work is already bearing fruit in reduced losses and in reduced fire insurance rates; it is the great remedy for high rates.

This department is supported by means of a special tax on the fire insurance companies, levied for this one purpose, hence its establishment placed no additional burdens on the State.

Sheriff's Department.

All the sheriffs, assessors and clerks report to this department and with it make settlement for all taxes and license fees collected for the state. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1915, it received from these sources $806,000.00, for state property tax; $241,000.00 for state capitation tax; $198,000.00 for various license privileges; and $34,000.00 for fines.

It also collects the tax from all public service corporations and distributes it to the state, counties, districts and municipalities. For the last fiscal year, the amount so collected and distributed was $2,955,000.00.

The total amount collected from all sources for this year was, therefore, $4,233,000.00, of which $1,584,000.00 was for state purposes.

Corporation Department.

This department keeps a record of the 6,000 corporations authorized to transact business in West Virginia, collects the charter license tax and statutory attorney fees, and accepts service for those desiring to bring action against non-resident and foreign corporations.

The amount of taxes and fees collected for the last fiscal year was $424,000.00.

Criminal Charges.

This department checks up and pays the state's costs in criminal cases, including juror and witness fees, allowances to special judges, transportation of prisoners, etc. The amount so disbursed is about $85,000.00 per year, and covers thousands of items, each of which must be carefully scrutinized and approved, or rejected if not authorized by law.

Warrant Department.

In this department warrants are issued covering every payment by the state, however small. The number issued averages about fifty-five hundred per month.

Under the constitution and statutes of West Virginia, the auditor is required to approve every claim presented to him for payment. This necessitates continual vigilance and deliberate care in the inspection and examination of requisitions. Upon the auditor falls the unpleasant but important duties of guarding the treasury and safeguarding the resources of the state.

Automobile Department.

This department registers automobile owners and chauffeurs, issues their licenses and collects the fees. In 1905 the total number of automobile licenses issued was 172; in 1915, (from July 1st to December 31st, only), the number issued was 13,243, and the fees collected, $129,000.00.

Land Department.

This department has in its charge all the land books of every county in the state, from the date of the formation of each of said counties; also the records of all grants made by the state of Virginia and West Virginia and is frequently required to make abstracts of title to different tracts of land, showing the payment or non-payment of taxes from the date of the grant of said lands by the state; every year it examines, compares and corrects all the delinquent lists of every county, and makes the redemptions of all delinquent lands, and makes up tabulated statements each year showing the value of the lands, the average value of land per acre, the total amount of personal property assessed and the average value of the live stock in each county.

Every year the records are much larger, and it is of the utmost importance that these records should be accurate, and that the original reports of assessors and sheriffs should be properly preserved. This is now done each year by adding to the records on hand, bound books for each county, containing these assessments and reports.

Insurance Department.

In order that the magnitude and importance of this department may be properly appreciated, attention is called to the following facts:

- (1) It has supervision over three thousand agents.
- (2) It has supervision over three hundred and fifty companies whose combined assets are nearly six thousand millions of dollars.
- (3) The citizens of West Virginia hold fire insurance policies for four hundred million dollars, life insurance policies for one hundred and seventy-five million dollars, fraternal benefit certificates for forty million dollars, and millions of dollars in miscellaneous lines of insurance.
- (4) The premiums collected in West Virginia by companies of all classes are nine millions of dollars per year.
- (5) The losses paid West Virginia citizens are four million dollars per year.
- (6) The taxes and fees collected by the insurance department are two hundred and forty thousand dollars per year.

And the amounts involved are steadily increasing.

Nearly every citizen is interested in insurance, either as policyholder or beneficiary. The provision for dependents made by the wage earner today, often through the sacrifice of comfort and pleasure, will have an important influence on the destinies of generations yet unborn. This provision may mean the difference between poverty and plenty, between education and ignorance, between crime and good citizenship.

How very important then is this department which is charged with the regulation and supervision of insurance companies and matters pertaining to insurance. Not only must the policyholders of the present generation be protected from fraudulent, weak and insolvent companies, but the future must be so guarded that the generous sacrifice of the family's protector will be not in vain; when the claim matures, it must be paid.

The first object is to bar from the state—to refuse license to—companies that are not financially responsible or which do not conduct their business along proper lines. To identify such companies requires technical knowledge and experience in order to properly analyze the affairs of the company and get a clear understanding of its financial condition, contracts, and methods of doing business.

If a company already licensed, begins to show signs of weakness or improper dealing, knowledge is likewise required to detect these signs and dictate appropriate action for the protection of its West Virginia policyholders.

The examination of complaints as to claim settlements is also an important function; to obtain for policyholders what they are legally and morally entitled to and in other instances, to avoid injustice to the company is often a delicate undertaking.

All of these things are a part of the daily work of the office. As the policyholder's representative, the insurance commissioner must often take the responsibility of making decisions affecting large groups without their knowledge or consent, and sometimes he is not in a position to make the facts known in defense of his action.

"Blue Sky" Department.

This department, charged with the administration of the "Blue Sky" law, has for its object the prevention of fraud as applied to promotions. It aims to lock the barn door before the horse is stolen rather than afterwards, by requiring the plans and financial condition of all companies (with a few exceptions) to be submitted to the auditor, and his permission received before stock may be sold.

Until a few years ago, salesmen of fake stock considered this state one of their richest fields.

Full publicity is required of the condition of the company which offers its securities for sale. The state does not in any way guarantee the value of stocks or securities sold by companies which have complied with the law, as the value of stocks, particularly, must always depend very largely upon the character of the management of the company. The law requires that the investor be given full information concerning the promotion. If he buys securities with such information before him, he understands what he is doing and takes his own risk. The law restricts promotion expense to ten per cent of the par value of stock.

Under the present "Blue Sky" law:

- (1) Very little is required of companies issuing well secured bonds or preferred stock.
- (2) Practically all undesirable foreign stock selling companies are eliminated by reason of the expense limitation.
- (3) The market for good legitimate home securities is improved because more money is available for investment, thus contributing to the development of our state.
- (4) The yearly saving of hundreds of thousands of dollars which had heretofore gone into worthless investments cannot fail to be an important element in the prosperity and welfare of our citizens.

THE STATE TREASURY.

E. L. LONG, Treasurer.

Offices: First Floor of the Capitol Annex.

In this department checks are drawn for the payment of all just claims against the state, and receipts are issued to all persons or companies paying moneys into the State Treasury.

The business of the State has so largely increased during the past few years that now nearly one hundred and twenty thousand items are handled in this office in a single year. This number is nearly seven times as great as the number handled in the year previous to the commencement of the present Treasurer's first term. The larger part of this increase has been due to the organization of the Workmen's Compensation Department, the business of which has been growing rapidly and whose receipts and disbursements are handled through the Treasury Department, in addition to the handling of other funds that have been longer established. Only by the adoption of efficient methods has this increase of work been taken care of without a corresponding increase of the clerical force.

The duties incidental to receipting for all moneys paid into the treasury, and making disbursements therefrom, is not done by departments but is divided among the three employees who make up the clerical force.

Accounts are kept with each of the one hundred and sixty-odd State depositories, and a separate account is also kept for each legislative appropriation.

Inheritance Taxes.

From 1887 to 1904 before the state tax commissioner's office took over the collection of inheritance taxes, and under the old law, there was collected for the seventeen years the sum of $55,765.00.

The act of 1905 and amendatory acts thereof broadened the scope of the inheritance tax law. Since the act of 1905 the state tax commissioner's office has collected inheritance taxes amounting to $1,142,616.52.

Penalty for Failure to Return Property for Taxation.

The act of 1904 provided penalties for failure to return property for taxation; under the provisions of this law there has been collected and disbursed through the state tax commissioner's office the sum of $279,-850.35. The disbursement of penalties under this provision is made according to the rates of levies in the districts or municipalities wherein the property should have been returned for taxation and pro rata to the various funds.

License Taxes.

P. H. ANDERSON, Field Deputy.

The legislature of 1909 (Sec. 42-A, chapter 68) passed an act authorizing the state tax commissioner to collect license taxes from persons engaged in a business requiring the payment of a license tax, and in certain cases issued licenses to them. Under this act the state tax commissioner appointed Mr. P. H. Anderson, of Friendly, and Mr. C. F. Rathbone, of Parkersburg, as field deputies to collect license taxes. Mr. P. H. Anderson, for the last year and a half, has carried this work on alone. Before the enactment of the law one desiring to engage in business requiring the payment of a federal government tax would generally pay the government tax; there was more respect for the federal revenue law than there was for the state revenue law, so far as the revenue came from license taxes. The act of 1909 has entirely changed this view of the state law respecting licenses. There is today as much respect for the license laws of the state as there is respect for the license laws of the federal government. Under the provisions of the act of 1909 the state tax commissioner's office has collected the total gross sum of $147,200.05.

Public Service Corporation Returns.

The state tax commissioner's office furnishes the blanks and forms for returns of public service corporations. From the returns the office works out, in detail, the statistical information shown by the returns of the several public service corporations. Such detail is exceedingly important and involves months of careful examination and compilation.

Clerk's and Assessors' Supplies.

The state tax commissioner's office prescribes the forms of licenses to be issued by clerks, the forms of assessment blanks to be used by the assessors, and the forms of land and personal property books. The office also supervises and distributes the blanks for licenses, assessments of property, land and personal property books.

ACCOUNTING BUREAU.

E. A. DOVER, Chief Accountant.

Under the provisions of chapter 33, special session of 1908, the State Tax Commissioner was made ex-officio the Chief Inspector and Supervisor of Public Offices and was given the power and authority to perform the duties required by chapter 33. This chapter provides for the inspection and supervision of public offices and the establishment of a uniform system of public accounting, auditing and reporting for all public offices, including county, district, and municipal offices. Audits made by this department of counties, districts and municipalities filed prior to July 1, 1914, showed findings due the counties, districts, and municipalities of $758,000.00. This act provides for the making of an examination of every public office at least once a year if practicable. A copy of the report of each examination is filed with the auditing department of the taxing body and with the prosecuting attorney, or other proper legal authority, so that the findings made may be carried into effect. The uniform system of keeping accounts is now followed by all county and district officers and an annual uniform settlement is made with each of the sheriffs of the fifty-five counties for all county, district, and school district money.

Chapter 15, special session 1908, which became effective January, 1909, provides that every sheriff, clerk of the county court, clerk of the circuit, criminal and intermediate court, and prosecuting attorney shall report to the State Tax Commissioner annually the earnings of their office and if the earnings exceed certain prescribed amounts a refund of fifteen per cent. shall be made to the county. An annual compilation of the earnings of the several county officers showed for the first time definite information as to the earnings of these officers, and resulting therefrom chapter 83, acts of 1915, was passed putting the county clerk, circuit clerk, sheriff, and prosecuting attorney of each county on a fixed salary and requiring all fees and earnings of the office to be paid into the county treasury. This act will not only equalize the salaries of the officers in the different counties but will provide an annual revenue to many of the counties of the state. The State Tax Commissioner, ex-officio Chief Inspector, is required to prescribe all forms and records necessary to carry out the provisions of the salary act and to see that the provisions of the act are being complied with. Every county officer is required to make reports to the chief inspector.

Chapter 84, acts of 1915, provides for the establishment of a county depository in each county, beginning July 1, 1916. All moneys on deposit shall bear the same rate of interest as that received by the state; to-wit: three per cent. on daily balances, which interest is credited to the general county fund of each county, and means a considerable annual revenue to each county of the state. It is the duty of the chief inspector to prescribe all necessary forms and blanks for carrying into effect the depository act.

Chapter 40, acts of 1915, requires that the State Tax Commissioner, ex-officio Chief Inspector, cause to be published and printed in pamphlet or book form a report showing the financial transactions of the state covering all state departments, officers and boards. This act also requires all the state officers, boards, and commissions to keep their financial accounts in records and forms approved or prescribed by the Chief Inspector. In conformity to the provisions of chapter 40 a system of records has been prescribed and installed. Such system together with the information contained in the annual examination and audit gives to the state the benefit of the budget system. Convenient information respecting the state's finances, the aggregate amount of revenue that will be raised under existing laws, the aggregate amount required for the maintenance of the several departments and institutions of the state will be available at all times. This state is among the first, if not the first, to provide for an annual examination and audit of all its financial transactions and the publication and distribution of such examinations and audits.

PROHIBITION BUREAU.

C. F. RATHBONE, Chief Deputy.

Chapter 13, acts of the legislature of 1913, known as the Yost law, is the state prohibition law. Section 15 of the Yost law provides that the state tax commissioner shall be ex-officio state commissioner of prohibition. In general, the duty of the state commissioner of prohibition is to superintend the enforcement of all provisions of the Yost law, and the laws of the state affecting the manufacture, sale, keeping, exposing or offering for sale, or soliciting or receiving orders for liquors, and laws connected in any way with the liquor traffic, etc. Respecting the enforcement of the law, the commissioner of prohibition is invested with powers vested in the prosecuting attorneys and the attorney general of the state. The enforcement of the prohibition law has resulted in many contests in the courts, including the attacks upon the law as unconstitutional under both state and federal constitutions. These legal contests have required the appearance of the commissioner in both the circuit and supreme courts of the state as well as the United States district courts, United States circuit court of appeals, and the Supreme Court of the United States. The statistics in the office of the commissioner clearly show that crime has largely decreased and that the general contentment and prosperity of the people are greatly enhanced since the prohibitory laws became effective.

To illustrate the improvement in the state's citizenship, the following extract from a letter from the president of a successful coal company in the state is given:

"About a week ago, two or three of our foreign miners came to the office and said that now that their whisky was taken away from them, they had nothing to do in the evenings; and wanted to know if we would not start a night school so they could learn to read and write our language. I can assure you we lost no time in arranging a night school for these men. The first meeting there were fourteen men attending, and indications are there will be twenty to twenty-five who, in the near future, will be benefiting themselves mentally and otherwise instead of injuring both body and mind."

EXCISE TAX BUREAU.

H. N. HUTCHINSON, Chief Deputy.

The legislature, second extraordinary session 1915, passed an act imposing a state excise tax on corporations and joint stock companies for the privilege of doing business in the state of West Virginia; sections 5 to 16 of said act, now said sections of chapter 3, acts second extraordinary session of the legislature 1915, constitute the special excise tax law. The administration of such law, by the act referred to, is vested in the state tax commissioner. The commissioner is required to furnish all blanks, receive all returns and make the assessments and collections. All information disclosed by the returns made to the commissioner or other information coming to him, relative to assessment of excise tax, must be treated strictly as confidential. The giving out of information received by the commissioner or those identified in connection with the enforcement of the excise law subjects the person offending to heavy fine, imprisonment and disqualification to hold office. In the absence of experience, it is not known the amount of revenue the act will produce. Estimates vary from a quarter of a million to $400,000. The law imposes a tax of one-half of one per cent upon the net income of the corporation. The corporation making the return may, under the provisions of the statute, designate a year other than the calendar year. If it does not designate the fiscal year, then, by provisions of law, the calendar year preceding the first day of March, to which date the return must be made, governs in determining the net income.

Establishment—General Provisions.

The law establishing The Public Service Commission of West Virginia and defining its powers and duties, is contained in two acts of the legislature—chapter 9 of the acts of 1913, passed February 21, 1913, and in effect May 21, 1913; and chapter 8 of acts of 1915 (regular session), passed February 10, 1915, and in effect May 10, 1915. (A slight amendment was made also to section 15 by chapter 4 of the acts of the second extraordinary session of 1915, passed May 24, 1915.)

The act of 1913, creating the Commission, made it to consist of four members, and committed to it the administration of the Workmen's Compensation Fund. The act of 1915 is a general revision of the first act, amending sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 9, 10, 14, 15, and 22 thereof, and adding thereto sections 23 to 28, and "enlarging the powers and duties of said public service commission, prescribing additional penalties and giving the commission power to punish for contempt." The act of 1915 reduces the members of the commission from four to three, and removes from its jurisdiction the administration of the Workmen's Compensation Fund.

The act of 1915 involved a reorganization of the Commission. The terms of office of the members then in office were made to expire the following 31st of May, and the terms of office of the three new members to be appointed to begin the following June 1st. The term of office is six years, the salary $6,000, and the members are appointed by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. The Governor annually names one of the members as Chairman. Two members constitute a quorum. No person is eligible to be a commissioner who holds any official relation to or is in the employ of any public service corporation, or who holds any stocks or bonds thereof, or who is pecuniarily interested therein. A member of the Commission cannot be a candidate for or hold any public office or be a member of any political committee. No commissioner or employee of the Commission can use any pass or free transportation, or other thing of value, from any public service corporation. The Commission is authorized to appoint a secretary and such other employees as may be necessary and fix their compensation. The office of the Commission must be kept at the capitol of the state, and kept open each working day between nine in the morning and five in the evening, but hearings and the taking of evidence may be had and done elsewhere. All fees collected, except witness' fees, which are payable to the person entitled thereto, must be paid into the state treasury monthly. The commission is required to have a seal, which is in the custody of the secretary, and to be affixed to all official papers. The Commission is authorized to prescribe the rules of procedure in all matters coming before it. It is not to be bound by strict technical rules of pleading and evidence, but "may exercise such discretion as will facilitate their efforts to understand and learn all the facts bearing upon the right and justice of the matters before them."

Jurisdiction.

The Commission has jurisdiction over all public service corporations. In section 3 a public service corporation is defined to "include all persons, associations of persons, firms, corporations, municipalities and agencies engaged or employed in any business herein enumerated, or in any other public service business whether above enumerated or not, whether incorporated or not." The several kinds of public service corporations enumerated in this section are common carriers, railroads, street railroads, express companies, sleeping car companies, freight lines, car companies, toll bridges, ferries and steam and other boats engaged in the transportation of freight and passengers; telegraph and telephone companies and pipe lines for the transportation of oil, gas or water; gas companies, electric lighting companies and municipalities furnishing gas or electricity for lighting, heating or power purposes; hydro-electric companies, water companies and municipalities furnishing water; and "all other public service corporations and all persons, associations, corporations, and agencies employed or engaged in any of the businesses hereinbefore enumerated." The Commission is charged with the duty of requiring all public service corporations to comply with the laws of the state.

Duties of Public Service Corporations.

Section 4 requires every public service corporation to maintain adequate and suitable facilities, safety appliances or other suitable devices, and perform reasonable service in respect thereto, safe and sufficient for the security and convenience of the public, and the safety and comfort of its employees and in all respects just and fair and without any unjust discrimination or preference. All charges, tolls, etc., must be just and reasonable.

Every railroad company shall permit switch connections for intrastate business upon terms and conditions prescribed by the Commission, whenever the business offered by the connecting company shipper, in the judgment of the Commission, justifies it. The Commission may require railroad and other transportation companies to maintain such suitable public service facilities and conveniences as may be reasonable and just, to make reasonable connections with trains on branch lines of such railroads and other connecting railroads; to require passenger trains to stop at junctions with other railroads. The Commission may prescribe the number of men necessary to constitute safe crews for handling trains on steam railroads. No steam railroad shall discontinue any regular passenger train, or any other public service facility, or change any regular passenger train schedule, without authority of the Commission.

Sections 6 and 7 prohibit all unjust discrimlnations. No public service corporation shall by means of any special rate or rebate, or any other device or method, charge, collect or receive from any party a greater or less compensation for any service rendered or to be rendered than it charges, collects or receives from any other party for doing a like and contemporaneous service under the same or substantially similar circumstances and conditions. Nor shall any public service corporation give any undue or unreasonable preference or advantage to any person or locality, or any particular character of traffic or service, or subject any particular person or locality to any undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage in any respect whatsoever.

Section 8, which should be read in connection with section 4, requires that all common carriers shall afford all reasonable and equal facilities for the interchange of traffic between their respective lines for the receiving, forwarding and delivering of passengers and property to and from their several lines, and those connecting therewith, and shall not discriminate between such connecting lines. But this provision does not require any common carrier to give the use of its tracks or terminal facilities to another carrier engaged in a like business.

Trunk lines shall, in the distribution of cars and the furnishing of facilities, treat industries and shippers located on and tributary to lateral, industrial or tap lines as if they were located directly on the track of the trunk line, and shall not discriminate between such industries and shippers and those which may be located in direct proximity to their own tracks. Trunk lines shall allow to lateral, industrial or tap lines a reasonable and equitable arbitrary or portion of the rate, consistent with the service rendered, giving due consideration to the fact that such lateral, industrial or tap lines originate and assemble the freight; but nothing out of the main line rate shall be allowed the shipper or owner for the use of what may be termed "plant facilities."

Section 10 provides that no public utility shall use any meter for measuring gas, electricity or water which shall not have been proved and stamped by the inspector of the Commission, except in cases of emergency, in which cases immediate notice shall be given to the Commission. Every gas, electric and water company is required to keep upon its premises approved apparatus for testing the accuracy of gas, electric and water meters furnished by it for use, and by which every meter shall be tested on a written request of the consumer to whom furnished and in his presence if he so desires.

On request in writing to the Commission by the person to whom a meter has been furnished the Commission shall have the same inspected and tested. If a meter be found to be 2% from being correct it must be removed and another one substituted. The expense of testing shall be borne by the owner if more than 2% against the consumer, and by the consumer if correct or within 2% of being correct. It is provided, however, that the Commission may change and modify the method of inspecting meters and adopt such rules and regulations therefor as it may deem just and proper.

Section 12 requires that every public service corporation shall file with the Commission and keep open to public inspection all schedules or rates and charges for service to be rendered by it to other persons. It is provided that in case of interstate carriers that this provision will be fulfilled by filing with the Commission the tariffs filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission; but the West Virginia Public Service Commission may require such interstate carriers to furnish information bearing upon any complaint or question pending before it with which it has a right to deal.

Section 20 permits a common carrier to furnish free transportation to its own officers, attorneys, agents and employes and their families, and to those of other common carriers, to mail clerks, expressmen and sleeping car conductors and porters; and reduced rates to persons engaged in religious, charitable and literary pursuits, for excursions, and for children and students attending schools, and for commutation tickets. Telephone, telegraph and sleeping car and express companies may enter into contracts with one another and with common carriers for exchange of services, for passes and franks for their officers, agents, employees and their families.

Powers of Commission.

By section 5 the Commission is given power to investigate all methods and practices of public service corporations, and to require them to conform to the laws of the state and to all rules, regulations and orders of the Commission not contrary to law, and to require copies of all reports, rates, classifications, schedules and time tables to be filed with it, as well as all other information desired by the Commission respecting such investigation and requirements. The Commission may change any intra-state rate or charge which is unjust or unreasonable, and prescribe a just and reasonable charge instead, and in order to prevent undue discrimination may change or prohibit any practice, device or method of service. It is provided, however, that no rate or toll shall be reduced within ten years after the completion of a railroad or plant below a point which would prevent the railroad or plant from making a net earning of 8 per cent. per annum on the cost of construction and equipment. And it is further provided that in no case shall the rate or toll be more than the service is reasonably worth, considering the cost thereof.

In section 10 there is given the Commission general supervision of all persons having authority under any charter or franchise of any municipality or county court to lay down and maintain wires, pipes, conduits or other fixtures, in, over or under streets; roads or public places, for furnishing gas, electricity and for water, telegraph and telephone purposes, and for oil and gas pipe lines. The Commission has the power to investigate the quantity, healthfulness and quality of water, and the quality and quantity of gas and electricity supplied by public service corporations, and to order such improvements as will best promote the public interests and preserve the public health.

The Commission has power, through its members or representatives, to enter upon and inspect the property of public service corporations and municipalities, to examine the books and affairs thereof; and as a commission or by one of its members to summons witnesses and take testimony in any proceeding before it. It has power to appoint inspectors of electric, gas and water meters.

The Commission is required annually to value the property owned and controlled by every public service corporation and to furnish such information to the Board of Public Works, which assesses the value of such property for taxation. (Sec. 14.)

The law (sec. 12) provides that every public service corporation must file with the Commission a schedule of its rates and charges and classifications before they go into effect; and section 9 provides that no modification or cancellation of any such rate, including joint rates, shall be made except on thirty days' notice to the Commission and the public. Whenever any such schedule, modification or cancellation of schedules is filed with the Commission, the Commission may make a written protest against the same, in which case it shall suspend the same until the Commission determines whether or not the proposed rate is just and reasonable. In lieu of the written protest the Commission may by order prohibit the putting of the proposed new order into effect pending the hearing and final decision of the matter. The Commission may, however, in its discretion, for good cause shown, allow changes in rates upon less than the thirty days' notice, or may modify the requirements of this section in respect to publishing, posting and filing of tariffs.

Whenever there is filed with the Commission any schedule of changes in rates or containing a new individual rate or classification or any practice affecting any rate the Commission may, upon complaint or upon its own initiative, and, if it so orders, without answer or other form of pleading by interested parties, but upon reasonable notice, enter upon a hearing concerning the propriety of such rate or classification or practice; and pending such hearing and decision the Commission, upon filing of such schedule and delivering to the public service corporation affected thereby, a statement in writing of its reason for such suspension may suspend the operation of such schedule classification or practice for a period of not longer than one hundred and twenty days beyond the time when such schedule would otherwise have gone into effect. After full hearing, whether completed before or after the schedule goes into effect, the Commission may make such order in reference thereto as would be proper in a proceeding initiated after the schedule had become effective. If any such hearing cannot be conducted within the period of suspension prescribed, the Commission may extend the time of suspension for a further period not exceeding six months.

At any hearing involving a rate sought to be increased or involving the change of any fare, charge, classification, regulation or practice, the burden of proof to show that the increased rate or proposed increased rate, or the proposed change of fare, charge, classification, regulation or practice is just and reasonable, shall be upon the public service corporation making application for such change. In any such case the Commission shall render a decision within three months after the evidence shall have been taken.

Not only has the Commission the power to change rates in effect, but by section 22 it is authorized "to enforce, originate, establish, modify, change, adjust and promulgate tariffs, rates, joint rates, tolls and schedules for all public service corporations, including municipalities supplying gas, electricity and water." Whenever the Commission shall find, after hearing, that any existing rates, etc., are unreasonable, unjust, insufficient or unjustly discriminatory, it shall fix others to be used instead. In fixing the rate of a railroad company the rate on a branch line may be fixed independent of the rate fixed for the main line.

It is provided in section 21 that the Commission may require public service corporations and municipalities to furnish it with any information which they may possess respecting their rates and practices and to furnish for inspection any books or papers or reports and statements required by the Commission, and the Commission may prescribe the form of all reports required under this act. The information gathered by the Commission it shall annually tabulate and publish, with its acts and proceedings.

Section 23 further provides that as to any regulations, measurements, practices, acts or service of a public service corporation found by the Commission to be unjust, unreasonable, insufficient or unjustly discriminatory, and that as to any service which can be reasonably demanded which cannot be obtained, the Commission may remedy the same by making such order as it shall deem to be just and reasonable.

Sections 24 and 25 confer upon the Commission the power to require, under certain circumstances and conditions, and upon terms, conditions, and for the compensation and at the rates prescribed by the Commission, the joint use of conduits, subways, poles or other equipment, by two or more public service corporations. and to require two or more telegraph or telephone companies to make physical connection in order to establish a continuous line of communication.

In section 26 the Commission is given authority to establish a system of accounts and to prescribe the form of accounts, records and memorandum to be kept by public service corporations. Such system and form as to interstate railroads and other corporations subject to the Federal act to regulate commerce, shall not be inconsistent with those prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The Commission may, after hearing, prescribe the form in which particular outlays and receipts shall be entered, etc.

Among the prime powers of the Commission is that of seeing that all public service corporations obey the laws of the state.

Complaints—Hearings by the Commission.

The matter of complaints to the Commission and hearings by it are provided for in sections 11 and 13. Complaints may be made to the Commission concerning any act or failure to act of a public service corporation by any person interested, including a public officer, a municipality or a county. The act provides that the complainant shall present a petition to the Commission which shall succinctly state the facts. For complaints to the Commission no specific form is required. The most of these complaints are contained in the form of a letter. It is required that a statement of the complaint shall be forwarded by the Commission to the corporation complained of, and which shall be called upon to satisfy the complaint or to answer the same in writing within a reasonable specified time. In the actual practice before the Commission the corporation complained of is furnished a copy of the complaint, and is asked to satisfy the same or make answer thereto within a specified time. If the public service corporation within the time specified shall make reparation for the alleged injury, or correct the practice complained of, obey the law and discharge its duties in the premises, it shall be relieved of further liability on such complaint. But if such corporation complained of shall not satisfy the complainant, or claims it is not guilty as alleged, a copy of its reply is furnished to the complainant, and he is advised that if he desires to pursue the matter further to file a formal complaint upon a blank which is furnished him for the purpose. After such formal complaint is made the party complained of is furnished with a copy of it and given ten days in which to answer it. A time for a hearing is then fixed, and the matter investigated, evidence taken and a decision given by the Commission.

In section 13 the law provides that in the hearings or proceedings before the Commission all evidence, oral or documentary, may be required at the designated place of hearing. It is provided elsewhere in the act that the Commission or any member may subpoena and take the evidence of witnesses. In case of disobedience to a subpoena or other process of the Commission, the Commission or any party to the proceedings may invoke the aid of any circuit court in requiring evidence and testimony of witnesses and the production of documents. The court is given full power in the premises, and a failure to obey its order may be punished as contempt. No witness can be excused from testifying by the claim that his evidence will incriminate himself, but a person giving such evidence shall not be prosecuted for any offense of which he is compelled to testify. It is provided in section 18 that any person claiming to be damaged by any violation of this act by a public service corporation shall make complaint to the Commission, and bring suit in his own behalf for the recovery of damages in any circuit court having jurisdiction. There seems to be nothing in the law which gives the Public Service Commission authority to pass upon the matter further than to entertain the complaint: it is given no power to find whether any damages were suffered or not.

Orders of the Commission—How Enforced.

Section 5 provides that the Commission may compel obedience to its lawful orders by proceedings of mandamus or injunction or other proper proceedings in any circuit court having jurisdiction of the parties or subject matter, or in the supreme court of appeals direct. Such proceedings shall have priority over all pending cases. Section 27 provides that the Commission shall have the power to punish a violation of any of its orders or findings by adjudging the delinquent corporation guilty of contempt, with the right of appeal to the supreme court of appeals. Section 23 provides that failure or refusal of any person or corporation to comply with a requirement of the Commission shall subject the party in default to a fine, if no other penalty is provided, of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars for each offense; and any person or officer of a corporation may be indicted for such failure or refusal and be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days, or both. Every day of such failure or refusal, or failure to perform any duty enjoined by this act, constitutes a separate violation. Section 23 provides that any person or corporation refusing to comply with an order of the Commission made in pursuance of sections 22 or 23 shall be subject to a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, in addition to all other penalties provided in the act.

Section 17 provides that "every officer, agent, employee, or stockholder of any such public service corporation, and every patron, passenger, shipper or consignee, or other person", violating any provision of this act, or who is accessory thereto, shall be subject to a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or be confined in jail not exceeding one year, or both; and it is provided that in case a person is so convicted and it appears that he has been before convicted of a violation of this act committed prior to the violation for which the indictment was found, or it appears that a person is convicted a second time of the violation of any provision of this act, he shall be subject to a fine, in the one case, of not less than two hundred dollars nor more than two thousand dollars, or imprisonment not less than thirty days nor exceeding one year, or both; and in the second case he shall be subject to a fine of not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and to imprisonment not less than three months nor more than one year. In section 26 a further penalty is provided in case any person, officer, agent or employee of a public service corporation wilfully makes false entries in the accounts, books of account, records or memorandum kept by any public service corporation, or who shall wilfully destroy, mutilate, alter or by any other means falsify the record or any such account, etc., or who shall wilfully neglect or fail to make full, true and correct entries of or in such account, book of accounts, record or memorandum or all facts and transactions appertaining to such corporation who shall falsely make any statement required to be made to the Commission. Any person found guilty of any such offense shall be subject to a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or confinement in jail not exceeding one year, or both.

Every order of the Commission shall continue in force until the expiration of the time, if any named in the order or until revoked or modified by the Commission, or suspended, modified or revoked by a court. (Sec. 5.)

Appeals.

The manner of appealing from the entry of the final order by the Commission is prescribed in section 16. Any person feeling aggrieved by such an order may present his petition in writing to the supreme court of appeals or to a judge thereof in vacation, within thirty days after the entry of the order, praying for a suspension thereof. The petitioner must deliver a copy of such petition to the secretary of the Commission before presenting the same to the court or the judge. The court or judge shall fix a time for a hearing on the application, which shall not be sooner than five days, unless by agreement. Notice of the time and place of hearing must be forthwith delivered to the secretary of the Commission, so that the Commission may be represented at such hearing by one or more of its members or by counsel. The court or the judge after such hearing may suspend the Commission's order and may require a bond and impose other terms and conditions upon the petitioner. The trial of the case shall take precedence over all other matters before the courts except corrections of assessments. The Commission is required to file with the clerk of the court all papers, documents, evidence and records which were before the Commission, or certified copies thereof. The Commission shall also file with the court before the day fixed for the final hearing a written statement of its reasons for the entry of such order. After the hearing and arguments of counsel the court "shall decide the matter in controversy as may seem to be just and right."

In General.

The only expense to the taxpayers of the state for the support of the Public Service Commission is that for the salaries of the commissioners. All the other expenses are payable out of the fund arising from fees fixed by the auditor upon the public service corporations, according to the value of their property, which fees shall be fixed so as to produce a revenue of $60,000 a year or so much thereof as may be necessary. This sum is appropriated by section 15 for the expenses of the Commission and the compensation of its employees. It is interesting to compare the annual total expenses in this state with that of some other states. Larger, about the same size, and smaller than West Virginia. In New York, where there are two commissions, $5,094,000; California, $700,000; Pennsylvania, $400,000. Massachusetts, $349,000; Washington, $335,900; New Jersey, $310,000; Missouri, $221,200; Ohio, $200,000; Virginia, $86,000; Oregon, $105,000; Oklahoma, $141,240 and $25,000 extra for the two-cent fare cases; Florida, $70,000; Connecticut, $125,000; Illinois, $120,000, excluding salaries; Indiana, $175,000; Iowa, $82,600; Kansas, $86,600; Nebraska, $104,840; New Hampshire, $63,400; Wisconsin, $366,000; Maryland, $175,000.

It may not be out of place to mention here the fact that the Public Service Commission of West Virginia is not given certain powers which are conferred upon the commissions of a number of other states. It has no supervision over the granting of franchises by municipalities, counties, or other like bodies. It has no authority to grant certificates of "convenience and necessity", by which authority in many states the commissions are given authority to prevent the duplication of public utilities. For instance, if there is a water works company in a certain town, or a telephone plant and line in a certain region, which is giving proper and adequate service, no other water works company may be permitted to be installed or operated in such town, or telephone company in such region. Nor has the Public Service Commission of West Virginia any authority, such as is given in Massachusetts, New York and elsewhere, and which seems to be of great benefit to the people of those states, to supervise, pass upon and approve the issuance of stocks, bonds or other forms of indebtedness by public service corporations. In those states where the commissions have this authority no stock, bond or note of indebtedness, or other form of indebtedness can be issued or put out by public service corporations until the same has been passed upon and approved by the commission.

There are very few states in the Union which have not a public service commission. They have grown into existence out of necessity. The ordinary court of law or of equity is not adapted or equipped to pass upon with celerity and to provide practical remedies for the matters and things that come before public service commissions. Nearly a century ago this was commented upon by one of the most distinguished of the English judges, who declared that the ordinary court was not competent or equipped to pass upon the matter of fixing rates of and in dealing with public service corporations in all of the phases in which they touch the people, and said there should be separate tribunals for such purposes. It was not until the year 1887 that the federal Interstate Commerce Commission was established, and its present jurisdiction and powers are the result of comparatively late acts of the Congress. Some of the states previous to this had commissions.

A public service commission is a court of the people. The technical rules of pleading and procedure do not obtain. Any citizen of West Virginia feeling himself aggrieved by any act of a public service corporation, or of its failure to act when it is its duty to act, can without cost to himself make complaint to the Commission, by simply writing a letter and stating the facts. The Commission meets every day except Saturday to pass upon such matters. It is just in this line of work that the Commission is of the greatest benefit to the people, but of this work the public seldom hears. The complaint so made is submitted to the public service corporation complained of, and in a great many cases the matter is adjusted satisfactorily—the complainant is satisfied and the corporation is satisfied. Justice and good feeling result. In some cases, where the Commission sees that the citizen is in error, his complaint is sent to one of the inspectors in the field, with instructions to see the complainant and explain the situation to him. The commission has three inspectors in the field, who constantly travel over the state inspecting all public service corporations—water, gas, electric and telephone companies, railroads, railroad trains and the like. It is the policy of the Commission to make its service free to the people and the corporations of the state. No costs are taxed; and in order to prevent expense to the complainants or corporations, hearings are held other than at the capital of the state, so as to prevent either party's having to bring their witnesses to the capital. The evidence produced is taken down in shorthand and written out, and a copy furnished to each party free of cost. The Commission is inclined to discourage formal complaints and formal hearings, that is, trials. It is its policy to settle matters otherwise where it can be justly done. Hence, the Commission does not hand down many opinions. Opinions are written only in cases of importance which come to a formal trial before the Commission. The Commission feels that it should use its powers in a persuasive way rather than in a commanding manner, but, of course, always so as to bring about a just, righteous and speedy termination of any matter before it. The Commission endeavors to promote the safety of employees and the public. Any accidents in connection with a railroad or other public service corporation, resulting in fatalities, or which is unusual, is promptly investigated by the Commission and a written report made thereof, showing its cause and results. If the accident were caused by some practice which should be abandoned, or by failure to use proper safeguards, the Commission takes up the matter of preventing similar future accidents with the proper class of corporations. It was in pursuance of this policy that the Commission has required fenders or wheel-guards on street railway cars and guard-rails in certain railway tunnels.

The Commission has its offices on the third floor of the capitol building, at Charleston. Copies of the Public Service Commission law and the rules and regulations issued by the Commission may be had on application to the Secretary. All communications should be addressed to Secretary Public Service Commission, Charleston, West Virginia.

The State Compensation Commissioner administers the West Virginia Compensation Fund as created and provided for in the amended Compensation Act passed at the regular and extraordinary sessions of the legislature of nineteen hundred and fifteen.

History.

Compensation laws of various kinds have been in force in Great Britain and nearly all of the European countries for a great many years—in some of them for half a century; but in the United States such legislation is of very recent origin. It is remarkable how many states have passed compensation laws since 1911, the year the first operative law was passed by any state, which proves the necessity and popularity of such legislation in lieu of the old system of "Liability Insurance" with its attendant damage suits, costly litigation, and its final failure to financially aid the injured employee or his dependents.

New York passed an Employer's Liability Law in 1909, but it was declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of the State. In 1911 compensation laws were passed in Kansas, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Ohio, Washington and Wisconsin; in 1912 in Arizona, Michigan and Rhode Island; in 1913 in California, Connecticut, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, Nevada, New York, Oregon, Texas and West Virginia; in 1914 in Louisiana and Maryland; in 1915 in Alaska, Colorado, Hawaii, Indiana, Maine, Montana, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Vermont and Wyoming,—a total of thirty-three.

The majority of the above mentioned states have Employers' Liability Acts. They fix a rule of liability and the civil courts are resorted to for the final decision in cases of dispute; but some of the states, such as Ohio, New York, Washington, Pennsylvania, California, Oregon and West Virginia, provide a quasi-judicial body to administer the act and also provide definite ways for the employer to insure to his injured employees or their dependents the payments specified in the law. The state insurance plan is incorporated in the laws of the above named states. In some of the states the acceptance of the compensation law is compulsory, while in others it is elective.

The West Virginia Compensation Act was passed by the Legislature of 1913 and became effective October 1, 1913. It was amended at the regular and at the first extraordinary sessions of the Legislature of 1915, and became effective as amended May 21, 1915.

A great deal of the credit for the passage of this law is due to Governor H. D. Hatfield, who, when a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, first advocated such a law in his personal platform, and as governor-elect was unceasing in his efforts to have such a law passed at the 1913 session of the legislature. The original law was really a compromise act, as the friends and advocates of a compensation law concluded that to accept a law of which they did not wholly approve would be wiser than to fail entirely in the passage of any legislation in this direction. The law as passed in 1913 was faulty in that the maximum and minimum amount of compensation payable per week was too low; in that it did not provide for permanent disability cases only in a few specified instances; that on account of the one dollar maximum, sufficient premiums could not be collected to provide for the losses; that a "flat" system of rating was used instead of a "merit" system, and in several other ways of less importance; but by the amendments made by the Legislature in 1915, these conditions have been remedied, and West Virginia today has one of the best, if not the best, compensation laws in the United States.

DIGEST OF THE AMENDED ACT.

Employment in Interstate Commerce.

Act applies to employer engaged in interstate or foreign commerce only to extent that his connection with work within the State is clearly distinguishable from his interstate work. Such employer and his employees may, with approval of Commissioner, accept provisions of Act on account of work done only within the State, which binds them irrevocably (Sec. 52).

Injuries Covered.

Personal injuries sustained within the State in the course of and resulting from employment (Sec. 25), unless self-inflicted or due to wilful misconduct, disobedience or intoxication (Sec. 28). Special restrictions as to hernia (Sec. 25).

Notice of Injury and Claim for Compensation.

Application for compensation must be made within six months after injury or death. Proof of dependency must be filed with Commissioner within nine months after death (Sec. 39).

Waiting Period.

First week of disability (Sec. 30).

Medical and Surgical Aid.

Unless employee is entitled to treatment from some other source. Commissioner must pay from State Fund for such medical, surgical or hospital treatment, etc., as may reasonably be required, maximum, $150, except that in certain cases of permanent disability, maximum may be $300 (Sec. 27). Similar obligation imposed on employers paying compensation directly (Sec. 54).

Total Disability.

If permanent, 50% of average weekly wage, maximum $8, minimum $4, weekly, to continue until death; if temporary, same rate, maximum $10, minimum $5, weekly, maximum period 26 weeks, but for certain specified injuries, 52 weeks (Sec. 31).

Partial Disability.

If temporary, 50% of loss of earning power, maximum $10 weekly, maximum period 26 weeks, but for certain specified injuries, 52 weeks. If permanent, 50% of average weekly wage for period ranging from 30 weeks to life, according to extent of disability, maximum $8, minimum $4, weekly (Sec. 31).

Death.

If death occurs within 26 weeks after injury, to dependent parent of single minor, 50% of weekly wage, maximum $6, until deceased would have reached age 21. To widow or invalid widower, $20 monthly until death or remarriage; plus $5 for each child under age of lawful employment, total maximum $35 monthly. To orphan children under 15 years, $10 monthly for each, maximum $30 monthly. Other total dependents, 50% of average monthly support during preceding year until 6 years after injury, maximum $20 monthly. To partial dependents, 50% of monthly support for such portion of 6 years as Commissioner may determine, maximum $20 monthly. In addition, funeral expenses in all cases, maximum $75 (Sec. 29, 33).

Average Wages—How Computed.

Average weekly wages for reasonable time prior to injury to be taken as basis upon which to compute benefits (Sec. 37).

Non-resident Alien Beneficiaries.

Non-resident alien beneficiaries entitled to compensation are limited to widow, invalid widower, child under fifteen, invalid child over fifteen or posthumous child, wholly or partly dependent on deceased at the time of injury (Sec. 33f.) Non-resident aliens may be represented by consular officers of their respective countries (Sec. 39).

Employers' or Insurers' Rights to Examinations.

Physical examinations are subject to reasonable and proper rules established by Commissioner (Sec. 8). Examinations for hernia subject to special regulations (Sec. 25).

How Compensation Settled and Disputes Determined.

Commission has full power to determine all questions relating to compensation (Sec. 43).

Right of Appeal.

Within 60 days after decision of Commissioner, claimant may appeal to Supreme Court of Appeals in case decision denies claim on ground going to basis of right (Sec. 43.)

Modification of Agreements and Awards.

Commissioner has continuing jurisdiction over each case, and may, from time to time, make such modifications therein as may be justified. (Sec. 40).

Commutations.

Under special circumstances Commissioner may commute periodical benefits to one or more lump sum payments (Sec. 41). In case of employer making payments directly, if possible to compute present value of future payments, Commissioner may permit or require amount thereof to be paid into State Fund, in trust for claimant, whereupon employer is discharged (Sec. 54).

Assignments and Exemptions.

Benefits before payment are exempt from all claims of creditors and from attachment or execution: and payable only to or for beneficiary specified (Sec. 42). Commissioner may, however, order repayment of any advances for necessities made by any person (Sec. 38).

How Compensation Is Secured.

By state insurance; employers being required to pay two months' premiums in advance (Sec. 19, 24). In lieu of such insurance, employers may elect to pay compensation directly, upon proof of financial responsibility, with bond or other security as required by Commissioner (Sec. 54).

Method of Payment and Proceedings to Collect.

Where employer contributes to State Fund, compensation is paid by Commissioner out of that fund (Sec. 25). Where employer makes payments directly, Commissioner may require payment of lump sum into State Fund, which discharges employer, and payments are then assumed by State Fund (Sec. 54).

Attorneys' Liens and Fees, etc.

No fees or expenses are payable out of any compensation award. On appeal, court must allow reasonable fee, maximum $100, as costs to claimant's attorney against unsuccessful party. (Sec. 43.)

When Assenting Employer is Liable for Damages.

Continuation in service with notice of employer's election to pay compensation is deemed a waiver by employee and by parents of minor employee of right of action which employee or parents would otherwise have (Sec. 22, 54). But if employer having elected to contribute to Compensation Fund is in default for premiums he is liable for damages with defenses removed (Sec. 26.) If injury results from deliberate intention of employer, employee or dependent may, in addition to claim for compensation, sue for excess damages (Sec. 28).

Accident Prevention.

Commissioner may require employers to adopt and post conspicuously at places of business, rules for protection and safety of employees; such rules to be submitted to Commissioner for approval (Sec. 28).

Reports Required of Employer or Insurer.

Employers must furnish Commissioner upon request all information required for purposes of Act (Sec. 10). Employer electing to make payments directly must file with Commissioner on or before twenty-fifth of each month, a sworn statement of employees' earnings for preceding month (Sec. 54).

Posting Notices.

Employers' notice of election must be conspicuously posted, in printed or typewritten form, at place or places of business (Sec. 23).

Contracting Out.

No employer or employee may exempt himself from burden or waive benefits of Act by contract (Sec. 23.) But employers of financial responsibility may maintain their own benefit funds or system of compensation, provided employees are not required or permitted to contribute, and payments are in no case less than those prescribed by Act (Sec. 54).

State Fund.

Act provides for establishment of Workmen's Compensation Fund, self-supporting, maintained by assessments upon employers, with employees contributing 10 per cent. thereof. For purposes of assessment, industries are divided into twenty-three classes, but Commissioner may include any industry not specifically mentioned, and may re-classify industries at any time. Employers insuring in State Fund are required to keep on deposit therein an amount at least equal to premiums paid for two preceding months (Sec. 18-24).

Regulation of Rates.

Rates of premiums for State insurance to be fixed by Commissioner at lowest possible figures consistent with maintenance of solvent fund and reasonable surplus (Sec. 18x, y). Minimum Premium fixed at $1 per month (Sec. 24.)

Penalties.

Failure to pay premiums into State Fund, when due, incurs penalty of 10% of amount in default, and deprives employer of protection afforded by Act (Sec. 24). Failure to make any report or perform any duty required by Commissioner is a misdemeanor, punishable by $25.00 fine (Sec. 49.) Attempt to secure compensation from State Fund to which not entitled, is a misdemeanor, punishable by $500 fine or year's imprisonment, or both, and forfeits right to compensation thereafter (Sec. 50).

Extra-Territorial Effect.

Act does not extend to employees whose employment is wholly without the State (Sec. 9).

Constitutionality.

If provision making compensation exclusive remedy for injuries, or provision creating State Fund, is held invalid, entire Act is thereby invalidated; but otherwise an adjudication of invalidity of any part of Act is not to effect validity of Act as a whole or any other part thereof (Sec. 53).

Miscellaneous Provisions.

Employer whose employment within State is for a limited period may elect to come under Act, subject to approval of Commissioner. Foreign corporation must submit with its application a certificate from Secretary of State, showing compliance with all requirements necessary to do business within State (Sec. 9).

STATE HEALTH DEPARTMENT.

Offices: Second floor of the State House.

Previous to the Legislature of 1913 the State Health Department consisted of a Board of ten members, with a Secretary, who was paid a very meager salary. This department represented nothing more than an examining board for physicians seeking license to practice in the state. The inattention to the health of the people was not due to either a lack of ability, or to unwillingness upon the part of the physicians who made up the Health Department, but was due to the inefficiency of the law, and to the fact that it carried with it the meager appropriation of $2,500.

The board has always been made up of physicians of unusual merit. The fault, therefore, was with the legislators, who were somewhat tardy in learning the value of public health work, and hence the appropriation for many years remained at $2,500, and it was impossible for the department to attend to the sanitary needs of the State, control outbreaks of infectious and contagious diseases, and regulate the practice of medicine with a sum so small as was appropriated biennially for the department.

The Legislature of 1913 took up the matter of the revision of the medical law. Governor-elect Henry D. Hatfield, a physician of large experience and marked force of character, who was familiar with the sanitary needs of the state, and the great advance along the lines of public sanitation made by other states through their state boards of health, took up actively the effort to bring about a revision of the medical law, and with the valuable co-operation of Dr. F. F. Farnsworth, who was chairman of the House Committee on Medicine and Sanitation, a new health law was enacted with several very valuable features. It made the Secretary of the Board of Health a full time official and required him to devote his entire time to the Department, eliminating him from the general practice of his profession. It provided for the organization of a State Hygienic Laboratory and for instruction of the people in matters of hygiene and sanitation. The amended law is in keeping with a resolution introduced in the State Medical Society at its annual meeting in the year 1875, by S. L. Jepson, M. D., the present State Health Commissioner, which resolution is as follows:—

“Resolved, That Dr. R. P. Davis, Dr. Robert W. Hazlett, Dr. G. Baird and Dr. M. S. Hall be appointed a committee to present the accompanying plan of a bill to establish a State Board of Health to the Legislature of this State at its next session and to employ all proper means to secure the passage of the bill.

“Resolved, That a committee consisting of one physician from each county in the State be appointed by the President of this Society, in consultation with the above-named committee, whose duty it shall be to use all proper influence with the members of the Legislature from their respective counties to secure the passage of the bill.

“Resolved, That Dr. Davis, Chairman of the Committee, be authorized to have two hundred copies of this bill printed for distribution to the county committees, the members of the Legislature and such other persons as may be able to exert an influence in favor of its passage.”

PUBLIC HEALTH COUNCIL.

But this effort to establish a State Board of Health failed, and not until March, 1881, was a successful effort made, and a law enacted largely through the efforts of the late Dr. James E. Reeves, who became its first secretary, to be succeeded by Dr. A. R. Barbee and he by Dr. N. D. Baker, with Dr. Hugh A. Barbee as his successor.

The amended law which passed the Legislature of 1913 brought to Secretary Jepson the realization, in part, of a cherished ambition to see West Virginia have a sanitary department which would protect the State against preventable diseases, or at least reduce their spread among the people to a minimum. The efforts of the Legislature of 1913, therefore, brought about a new era in West Virginia in the way of preventive medicine, by the revision of the medical law and the appropriation of $15,000 to be annually expended by this Department.

Governor Hatfield appointed a new Board, with S. L. Jepson, M. D., of Wheeling, as Secretary and ex officio Commissioner of Health, the term of office beginning June 1, 1913. The new Secretary had filled the position of Health Officer in the city of Wheeling for a period of eleven years. He had been one of the guiding spirits of the State Medical Society and was responsible more than any one else for the strong effort that was put forth biennially to bring about what has been accomplished in the developing of a substantial Department of Health, which organization in other states has done so much in the way of reducing the percentage of infectious and contagious diseases. The same result will no doubt be experienced in West Virginia, and it is to be confidently expected that the high mortality of 2000 deaths annually from tuberculosis and an average of 11,000 cases of typhoid fever annually in West Virginia will be reduced to almost an infinitesimal number, as compared with statistical records of results where no effort has been made and no money appropriated for such a campaign. Such improvement has been the experience in other states, and this has demonstrated fully to the people the possibilities obtainable in a very material reduction in the number of such diseases especially as tuberculosis and typhoid fever. This has been especially notable in the city of New York with tuberculosis where this dreadful disease was responsible for more deaths than all of the infectious and contagious diseases combined, previous to the campaign of the distinguished Dr. Herman Biggs, who was placed in charge of the Health Department of that city a few years ago, and who has been able to reduce the mortality resulting from tuberculosis until it is less than that of pneumonia alone, in that city.

Under the law of 1913 W. W. Golden, M. D., of Elkins, was made President of the new Board, the other members being J. L. Pyle, M. D., of Hancock county, G. D. Lind, M. D., of Doddridge county, H. A. Barbee, M. D., of Mason county, W. J. Davidson, M. D., of Wood county, H. A. Brandebury, M. D., of Cabell county, J. E. Robins, M. D., of Kanawha county, H. M. Rymer, M. D., of Ritchie county, J. A. Rusmisell, M. D., of Upshur county, and J. W. Shipper, M. D., of Berkeley county.

In November, 1914, a Hygienic Laboratory was established at Morgantown, in keeping with the new law, in connection with the University, with skilled chemists and bacteriologists in charge, and with Dr. John N. Simpson, Dean of the Medical Department, as Director in Chief of this department. A laboratory of this nature is indispensable in public health work. Here sputum is examined to determine the existence of tuberculosis, and there is given to physicians in the different sections of the state, in as short a time as possible, the findings of the bacteriologist at the laboratory in his investigations of the many infectious and contagious diseases with which the practitioner comes in contact daily, such as diphtheria, typhoid fever, pneumonia, etc., so that physicians may be enabled to act quickly and promptly in combatting these maladies. The water supplied to the people will hereafter be examined at stated intervals, and if any outbreak of typhoid fever occurs in the state, it is the duty of this department to have special field and laboratory investigations made of the water supply, and to require the Sanitary Engineer to make the proper examination and locate the cause of contamination and recommend a solution and correction of the same.

That the citizenship of the State may be informed in matters of sanitation, the department has caused to be published a quarterly health bulletin, which was begun in January, 1914. This publication is sent to several thousand people throughout the different sections of the State. It is quite generally used in the schools of the State in connection with the study of hygiene, and in some schools selections from it are used as supplementary reading. That this publication has proven useful and popular is evidenced by the numerous requests received from persons desiring to have their names added to the mailing list, and this is sufficient to convince one of the great good that is being accomplished through this method of enlightening the people on the conservation of health.

Through the active interest of Governor Hatfield a greatly advanced step in sanitary legislation was made by the passage of the new law, by the Legislature of 1915, which had as its Chairman of the Committee on Medicine and Sanitation in the Senate, Dr. James McClung, of Richwood, and in the House, Dr. C. A. Sinsel, of Grafton. The bill that was passed had been prepared under the direction of a committee of the State Board of Health, whose chairman was W. W. Golden, of Elkins. The law created a State Department of Health, with a commissioner of Health as its executive officer, who is required to live at the capital and maintain his office therein. This is an improvement over the law passed by the Legislature of 1913. Not only in this respect but in many others are there marked improvements which place the State health law of West Virginia upon a favorable comparative basis with any other states in the union. A Public Health Council of seven was substituted for the board of twelve members created in 1913. The Health Commissioner is ex-officio a member of the Council and its Secretary and executive officer. A division of preventable diseases and one of sanitary engineering were provided for. At the head of the former, Dr. C. R. Weirich, formerly Health Officer of Brooke county, was appointed. It is his duty to have charge of epidemic diseases wherever they occur throughout the State, study their causes and aid the local officials in their control, all at the expense of the State. At the head of the division of sanitary engineering the services of Mayo Tolman have been secured.

He is a graduate in sanitary engineering of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and has had practical experience in Massachusetts and Maryland in connection with the efficient departments of health that are found in those two states. It is the duty of the sanitary engineer to cause to be examined all water supplies in the state, and when found unsafe to require such changes or additions as will insure to the people a safe supply of wholesome water for drinking and domestic purposes. This department will aid cities, towns or municipalities in their efforts to install a proper water system, as well as investigate all sewerage systems and sewage disposal plants and give advice in the introduction of new systems, when requests are made of the State Health Department for such information.

It is also the duty of the head of the division of sanitary engineering, under the present law, to cause the flow of streams through the State to be investigated from time to time and the amount of pollution determined and reported to the Commissioner of Health, which information will appear in the printed annual report of the Health Council. The problem of garbage disposal will also receive attention of this department. Efforts are being made to improve the sanitary conditions in general of the State.

The Public Health Council has the authority under the new law to adopt regulations controlling the production and sale of milk, the sanitation of public halls, schools, railroads, street cars, barber shops, etc. A number of rules have been adopted which after April 1, 1916, will have the force of law.

The results that have already been accomplished assure us an evolution in the methods of the regulation and prevention of diseases, and these will impress the citizenship in the future as a positive force for good which will insure a reduction in the number of cases of illness, and as a result a decrease in the mortality in the state, if the legislatures in the future will give to this Department a sufficient appropriation for the administration of the law which now appears upon the statute books.

The plans and purposes of the State Health Department may be thus briefly summarized:

What the State Health Department Does Through its Public Health Council.

If an epidemic occurs in any community, on request of the local authorities it sends an expert to investigate the cause and institute means for its suppression.

It furnishes free vaccine virus for the indigent in small pox outbreaks, and in emergencies other vaccines for the prevention of diseases.

It furnishes to county and town boards of health expert advice and assistance at any time without cost.

It issues a quarterly bulletin containing information of value touching matters of sanitation, sending this without cost to all who apply for it

Through its Hygienic Laboratory it makes examinations to aid physicians in the diagnosis of tuberculosis, typhoid fever, diphtheria and other diseases, and swabs from the nose and throat to determine the proper time for release from quarantine of diphtheritic patients.

If any institution or community is contemplating the installation of a water or sewer system, it furnishes the free services of an expert sanitary engineer to advise as to the best methods, and to pass upon any proposed plans.

It examines public water supplies, making an inspection when necessary in addition to the chemical and bacteriological examination of the water.

It inspects, upon request, and when practicable, any public or private institution, or any city, town or village, and recommends the things necessary for sanitary improvement.

When practicable, and upon request of any community, it sends a lecturer to address public health meetings, and give advice on questions of public sanitation.

Through the Hotel Inspector it inspects every hotel in the State at least once every year, and endeavors to have the sanitary requirements of the law complied with.

It regularly examines the water furnished for drinking purposes on the railroads of the State.

It endeavors to collect reports of all preventable diseases, but on account of the failure of physicians promptly to report such cases, its efforts in this direction have not, thus far, been very successful.

It endeavors to protect the health and save the money of the people by instituting prosecutions against persons not legally qualified to practice medicine, and yet who, under various names, are posing as healers of the sick.

In short, it seeks by every means within its control to guard the people of the State against disease, and to increase, through better health, the happiness and prosperity of our people.

HISTORY OF PETROLEUM AND NATURAL GAS DEVELOPMENTS IN WEST VIRGINIA, AND STATISTICS OF PRODUCTION.

By I. C. WHITE, State Geologist.

The date of the first use of petroleum or its residual products, pitch and asphaltum, precedes history. Probably the first recorded utilization is that in the eleventh chapter of Genesis in which it is stated that the soft or semi-fluid bitumen found in the valley of the Euphrates and translated "slime," was used as a mortar in the building of Babylon, more than forty centuries ago. Erastosthenes, a celebrated Grecian writer who lived in the third century B. C., has described this bitumen from the Springs of Hit, on the Euphrates, and has also told of its use in the construction of mosaics, pavements, etc., in the beautiful palaces and temples of ancient Ninevah and Babylon.

Herodotus, the Father of History, who lived in the fifth century B. C., or nearly twenty-four hundred years ago, has told us in his inimitable style how asphaltic oil was procured in his day from a lake on the Island of Zante, in the Mediterranean, off the coast of Greece, by swabbing it up with a branch of myrtle, very much like the early settlers of the Allegheny and Little Kanawha valleys of Pennsylvania and West Virginia collected petroleum from the surface of water with woolen cloths, so that in the primitive methods of procuring mineral oil there is apparently "nothing new under the sun." Aristototele, who lived in the fourth century B. C., describes the deposits of bitumen in Albania, along the eastern shores of the Adriatic sea, while Pliny and Dioscorides, who lived in the first century of the Christian era, have given an account of the oil springs of the island of Sicily, and the use of petroleum in lamps under the name of "Sicilian oil." Many ancient writers and travelers like Plutarch, Strabo, Marco Polo, and others, have recorded the use of "rock oil" and pitch in Arabia, Persia, India and elsewhere from the earliest historic periods.

One of the nearly extinct religious cults, that of the Fire Worshipers, or Parsees, was founded upon the mystery which the priesthood of that religion threw around the perpetual fire maintained on the altars of their temples with natural gas. When the writer visited Baku on the shores of the Caspian Sea in 1897, he saw the ruins of one of these mystic shrines the last of whose priests had disappeared only twenty odd years before. In dismantling the altar of this ancient structure, it was discovered that it had been built over a fissure in the earth from which natural gas issued, and that a secret pipe conducted the gas from the fissure to the altar, where its lambent flames had inspired the Fire Worshipers with a belief in the supernatural powers of the priests of Zoroaster. It is possible that similar tricks or deception have imposed upon the credulity of mankind during the childhood of the race in the establishment of other primitive religious beliefs. In China—that great empire whose civilization has remained practically unchanged for so many centuries—crude methods of using natural gas were practiced more than two thousand years ago, while the Japanese have also collected and utilized mineral oil for many hundreds of years.

Hence we find that the oil and gas seepings welling up through fissures in the earth's stratified crust were both observed and used by primitive peoples of most every country. The earliest written account of the occurrence of petroleum in America is apparently that of a Jesuit missionary who came from Canada into New York in 1629, and wrote a letter concerning it which was published in Sagard's "History of Canada" in 1632.

The petroleum seepings on Oil Creek in Pennsylvania, and on Hughes and Little Kanawha rivers, in what is now West Virginia, were doubtless known and used by the Indians long before white men visited the regions or Columbus landed in America. The earliest published account of the oil springs near Titusville, Pennsylvania, appears to be that of a Swedish traveler, one Peter Kalm, about 1750, while those of Wirt and Ritchie counties of West Virginia, as well as of similar seepings on the Big and Little Muskingum rivers of Ohio, were first described by Dr. S. P. Hildreth of Marietta, Ohio, in an article published in "The American Journal of Science and Arts," New Haven, Connecticut, for February, 1826.

In discovering and utilizing natural gas, West Virginia clearly has precedence over Pennsylvania, for probably the first recorded reference to this valuable fluid in the United States was made as early as 1775, by General Washington, who preempted the land around the "burning spring," nine miles above Charleston, in the Great Kanawha Valley, which he described as "a bituminous spring of so inflammable a nature as to burst forth" [take fire] "as freely as spirits and is nearly as difficult to extinguish." It is also well known that the first use of natural gas for manufacturing purposes in America was by Mr. William Tompkins, in the same Kanawha Valley, who in 1841 struck a large flow of gas in boring a salt well only a few hundred feet distant from the "burning spring" that Washington had noted sixty-six years before, and piping the gas to his salt works, using it instead of coal in boiling down the brines and displacing several hundred bushels of coal daily.

Modesty forbids any extended comment on the part which West Virginia has taken in developing and making known to the oil and gas world a scientific method of locating oil and gas territory, for although the "anticlinal theory" had been discovered and announced by Hunt, Andrews, Hoefler and others, a quarter of a century before the writer, in connection with Mr. Earseman, of the Forest Oil Company, rediscovered its truths, it remained in the "dead letter" office of untested theories until it was taken up and vitalized for all time through the efforts of the writer in its successful application to the discovery of new gas and oil pools. Indeed, to such a low estate had the efforts of scientific men to aid the drill in finding petroleum and natural gas fallen, previous to the reannouncement of the "Anticlinal Theory" in the issue of "Science" for June 26, 1885, and the successful demonstration of its great value as an aid to the oil and gas industries, that one prominent operator—disgusted at frequent failures of geologists to locate productive oil pools for him—was led to remark that if he desired to be absolutely sure of getting a dry hole he would hire a geologist to make his location. Now, however, the only unfortunate ones are those operators who neglect to study rock structure or the dip and strike of the stratified measures as taught by the anticlinal theory.

In the year 1893—just after the oil and gas fields of West Virginia had developed in the northern end of the State—the writer made the prediction, in a talk before the members of the West Virginia legislature, that the petroleum and natural gas fields of the State would extend entirely across it from Hancock County on the north to the Kentucky line on the southwest. The West Virginia Coal, Oil and Gas Map, as well as the State Survey's Detailed County Maps, show how closely that prediction has been fulfilled, and also how the structural theory of oil and gas has been verified by every pool of either gas or oil found along this great petroliferous belt.

In passing southwestward from Pennsylvania into and across West Virginia, practically all of the oil and gas sands of Allegheny, Washington and Greene counties have been found and identified in northern West Virginia, down to and including the Sixth or Bayard Sand of Greene County, which so far remains the lowest productive horizon for oil and gas within the boundaries of our State, although a slight showing of oil has been noted in the Boggs Run deep (4,500 feet) well at 2,631 feet below the Pittsburg Coal, and in one (J. F. Bobbs') three miles south of Glen Easton, Marshall County, at 2,659 feet below the Pittsburgh Coal, or 673 feet below the top of the Gordon Sand, and which Mr. Hennen, my assistant, thinks would correlate with the Speechley horizon of Pennsylvania. But as we pass to the southwest all of the sands below the Big Injun horizon appear to fade out into shales and fine sandy beds too close of grain to hold commercial quantities of either oil or gas, after we pass to the south of the Little Kanawha River, excepting the Berea Grit, which remains productive on into Kentucky.

The latest detailed studies of the West Virginia Geological Survey, carried on from the Pennsylvania line southwestward to and including Roane county, principally by one of my assistants on the Survey, Mr. Ray V. Hennen, has resulted in some revision of the column of geological horizons at which oil and gas have been developed within the State. Mr. Hennen finds that much confusion has arisen in connection with the identification by oil well drillers, as also by engineers and geologists, of the First and Second Cow Run Sands, as originally named from their type localities on Cow Run, Washington county, Ohio. He identifies the "First Cow Run Sand" of the type locality with the Buffalo sandstone of the Conemaugh Series, and he identifies the Second Cow Run Sand, which comes four hundred feet lower, with the Homewood Sandstone, or uppermost member of the Pottsville Series. Accepting this revision as correct, the table of oil sand formations with their geologic equivalents as grouped by Mr. Hennen, reads as follows:

The following table gives the approximate intervals of the several oil and gas sands below the Pittsburgh Coal in the northern end of the State, though, of course, these intervals may vary many hundred feet in different portions of the same; for instance, the interval from the Pittsburg Coal to the Berea Grit near Chester, Hancock county, is only about 1500 feet. but this increases to 1650 feet at Wellsburg, 1700 at Wheeling, 2050 at Huntington, and 2800 feet at Griffithsville, Lincoln county, and 3400 feet in the Edwards deep well on Slaughter Creek, Kanawha county, through the thickening of intervening formations; hence the figures given in the table must be understood as applying only to the northern central region of the oil and gas belt of the State:

The Corniferous Limestone, or top of the lower "Big Lime" of the Ohio Geological Survey, has been certainly penetrated at only two localities in West Virginia; viz., in the Central City deep boring at Huntington, Cabell county, where it was encountered at 1,005 feet below the Berea Grit or at a depth of 2,700 feet below the Ohio River, and 3,100 feet below the Pittsburg Coal, and in the Slaughter Creek well (Edwards), at a depth of 4,945 feet and about 6,235 feet below the horizon of the Pittsburg Coal. This important horizon is evidently nearer the surface in the Huntington-Kenova region than anywhere else along the Ohio Valley, since a boring (No. 16 Mount farm) in Wood county, penetrated the measures to a depth of 1,924 feet below the Berea Grit without reaching the Corniferous horizon, and in the Boggs Run deep well, near Wheeling, the drill did not reach the Corniferous at a depth of 2,500 feet below the same stratum, and 4,200 feet below the Pittsburg Coal, while in the deepest (7,181 feet) well in the United States, drilled on the R. A. Geary farm, five miles northwest from McDonald, Pennsylvania, and about twenty miles west of Pittsburg, by the Peoples Natural Gas Company, a Standard Oil subsidiary, of which John G. Pew is President, the top of the Corniferous Limestone was struck at 6,008 feet, or 6,150 feet below the Pittsburgh Coal, and 4,386 feet below the Berea Grit horizon. Hence it will be observed that there is a rapid thickening of the measures both eastward and southward between the Berea Grit and Corniferous Limestone from the Huntington region where this interval is only 1,005 feet thick, to Slaughter Creek, where this same interval is 2,860 feet, and eastward to McDonald, Pennsylvania where the Berea-Corniferous interval is 4,386 feet, or an increase or thickening of (4,386—1005) 3,381 feet in the Devonian measures northeastward in the one hundred and eighty-four miles between Huntington, West Virginia, and the Geary well, near McDonald, Pennsylvania. If we assume that this thickening increases at a uniform rate per mile between these two widely separated drill holes (which can not be very far from the truth), then we get a figure of 18.32 feet per mile as the average rate of this increase between the two points, and thus we get a valuable measuring rod for estimating the depth to the top of the Corniferous Limestone, and the underlying (Clinton, Medina, etc.) oil and gas horizons, 1,200 to 1,500 feet below the top of the Corniferous Limestone along the Ohio River district of West Virginia, the only region of the State where it is commercially feasible to drill test borings to these deeper oil and gas horizons which have proved so prolific in our sister State of Ohio from Scioto county northeastward to Lake Erie.

Early Drilling Operations in West Virginia.

It is not generally known that all of the essential elements of the petroleum industry of the United States really originated in what is now West Virginia, but such is the truth of history. It was in the Great Kanawha Valley at the Salt, or Buffalo Lick, near Charleston, where, under the intelligent and successful attempts of the Ruffner Bros. (David and Joseph) to bore down through the rocks and ascertain the source of the famous salt spring, that modern drilling tools, jars, casing, and practically all of the oil well machinery in use at the present day were invented. These boring operations were begun by the Ruffner Brothers (David and Joseph) in 1806, and their efforts were crowned with success on the 15th day of January, 1808. The story of these early drilling operations and inventions has been given in a detailed and interesting sketch by the late Dr. J. P. Hale, one of the Presidents of the West Virginia Historical Society, Charleston, W. Va., in the "Resources of West Virginia," 1876, by M. F. Maury and Wm. M. Fontaine, Chapter XII, pages 274-305, and republished in Volumes I and I(A), West Virginia Geological Survey.

From these facts as given by Dr. Hale, it will be perceived that the claim of priority for West Virginia in all of the essential elements of the petroleum industry of the United States is fully sustained, for here were invented practically all of those tools and appliances without which the deep drilling of the present day would be impossible. This record also shows that the use of natural gas for manufacturing purposes was first begun within the United States by Mr. Tompkins of the Kanawha Valley, in 1841, a utilization which now plays such an important part in industrial affairs, and which is destined to continue until the age of gas is fully inaugurated, and the general use of coal in its crude or unmanufactured condition is abandoned in all populous communities. The extravagant methods which have characterized the first few decades of the greatly increased use of natural gas, will have been largely compensated for, should they finally lead to the use of coke instead of coal, and to the saving of the gas for fuel and general heating purposes which is now lost in our wasteful and unscientific coke ovens of the bee-hive pattern.

Petroleum Discovered in the Early Salt Borings.

In these early salt borings on the Great Kanawha, considerable quantities of petroleum were often found in the sands of the Coal measures (Allegheny and Pottsville Series) and much of it was utilized in oiling machinery and for torch lights, while many barrels of it were transported and sold to other regions.

The methods of boring invented on the Kanawha soon spread to adjoining States, especially to Ohio, where in the Muskingum region, efforts to secure brine for salt manufacture led to discoveries of petroleum and natural gas, just as they had previously done on the Great Kanawha.

Dr. Hildreth's Account of the Early Petroleum Industry.

Very fortunately for science, a learned and accomplished physician, who was also one of the pioneer geologists of Ohio, Dr. S. P. Hildreth, resided at Marietta, during the early period in petroleum history, and he has left a carefully written account of these drilling operations and their results from which we get a glimpse of the beginning of the petroleum industry in Ohio, and by inference therefrom, its previous history in what is now West Virginia. This article was published in the American Journal of Science and Arts, Vol. X, New Haven, Connecticut, February, 1826, pages 1-8, inclusive, under the title of "Facts relating to certain parts of the State of Ohio", by S. P. Hildreth, M. D. After speaking of limestone that is thick and abundant, he continues on page 4 as follows:

"Below these beds of limestone you pass through a stratum of clay, sometimes of fossil coal; this is of various depths in different parts of the county*; after which you come to that vast and extensive bed of rock, which underlies the country from the Alleghany Mountains to the Mississippi River, for aught I have heard. The thickness of this rock has never been ascertained, but at the depth of from 150 to 400 feet, this rock (Salt Sand) is strongly impregnated with salt and if on boring to that depth you are so fortunate as to find water, I believe that water invariably holds in solution a greater or less quantity of muriate of soda. Two attempts at boring for salt water have been made in this county. The first was made two or three years since, about forty miles from Marietta, near the Muskingum River; they proceeded to the depth of about 200 feet, and their prospects of obtaining water rather diminishing than increasing, they gave up the work. The other trial is now making, on the waters of Little Muskingum Creek, about twelve miles from Marietta. It is two years since they began to bore, working at it only in the summer and autumnal months. They have penetrated the rock to the depth of 300 feet, and have as yet found no salt water; but the cattle are very fond of licking the fine dust of the rock, which comes up on the drills in the form of mud, which is an evidence that it contains salt. There is a continual discharge of carbonated hydrogen gas from the well and also from the bed of the creek on which the well is situated, at various places for the distance of half a mile. This gas is highly inflammable, and where there is a free discharge of it, it will take fire on the surface of the water, on the application of a lighted stick, or the flash of a gun, and continue burning for days, unless put out by a heavy shower or a high wind. It was this discharge of gas that induced the present proprietors to search for salt water, it being invariably found to accompany all the salt water of any consequence, that has been discovered in the western country.†

"It is this discharge of gas that brings the salt water from such vast depths in the bowels of the earth to the surface. And where water has been discovered, and the supply of gas has failed, the water has immediately sunk in the well, and could not, by any means used, be brought again to the top of the well.

"They commonly bore, at the wells of Little Muskingum, to the depth of 400 to 500 feet, unless salt water is found before they reach that distance. They are encouraged then to continue, from their knowledge of the depth at which others obtained very good water, on the west branch of Duck Creek, four or five miles above the line of Washington, in Guernsey county. They have sunk two wells which are now more than 400 feet in depth. One of them affords a very strong and pure water, but not in great quantity. The other discharges such vast quantities of petroleum, or as it is vulgarly called, "Seneka Oil", and besides is subject to such tremendous explosions of gas, as to force out all the water, and afford nothing but gas for several days, that they make but little or no salt. Nevertheless the petroleum affords considerable profit, and is beginning to be in demand for lamps, in workshops and manufactories. It affords a clear, brisk light when burnt this way, and will be a valuable article for lighting the street lamps in the future cities of Ohio.

"The rock in which these wells are sunk is of various density and composition. In some places for one or two feet the workmen can gain only an inch or perhaps half an inch in a day, and then they have their drills to sharpen every few minutes; the rock is so much harder than the hardest steel that it is very difficult to get a drill to stand it at all.

†(Evidently referring to the Great Kanawha Valley.—I. C. W.)

"At other places in the rock they penetrate from one to two feet in a day. In this course of drilling they often pass through as many as three or four layers of fossil coal, at various depths in the rock; and it is generally the fact that immediately after the salt water appears, they pass a stratum of stone coal of considerable thickness, perhaps six or eight inches."

Early Use of Petroleum Shown by Dr. Hildreth.

This interesting account, it must be remembered, was published in 1826, and as may be seen from the same, petroleum was then coming into general use for illuminating purposes in the region. Now, as it is well known that the well borers of Ohio learned their art in the Great Kanawha Valley many years before (1808-1820) where much petroleum had been found in boring for salt, and utilized in the same manner as on the Muskingum, it can readily be seen that the Great Kanawha Valley region of West Virginia (then a part of Virginia) was the real pioneer in the discovery of petroleum by boring, and that it, as well as natural gas, was first utilized on a commercial scale in the Kanawha Valley; so that the account which Dr. Hildreth has left concerning the discovery and use of petroleum on the Muskingum might have been written fifteen years earlier for the Great Kanawha, had the geologist lived at Charleston instead of Marietta. As a matter of fact, Dr. Hildreth did visit the Great Kanawha, as well as the Little Kanawha region soon after 1826, for in 1836 he published a long paper in the American Journal of Science, Vol. 29, entitled "Observations on the Bituminous Coal Deposits of the Valley of the Ohio", in which, on page 121, he describes the petroleum found in the salt wells near Charleston, the oil and gas on the Big Sandy (page 129), and the oil pits on Hughes River (page 86).

In another paper published in Vol. 24 of the same journal, in 1833, "On the Saliferous Rock Formations in the Valley of the Ohio", page 46, he describes one of the earliest oil wells in the country, drilled in 1814, and located on the land of Mr. McKee, on Duck Creek. This well had been bored for salt water, and at a depth of 475 feet (evidently in the Dunkard or Cow Run Sand) had struck a flowing oil well, which at first produced a large quantity of oil, "flowing thirty to sixty gallons at each eruption, but now (1833) only one barrel weekly."

Little Kanawha, Hughes River, etc.

The Little Kanawha River and its principal tributary, the Hughes, have also played very important parts in the early petroleum history of the country.

A prominent anticlinal axis crosses the Great Kanawha near the "burning spring", and the same uplift, extending to the north across the Little Kanawha, the Hughes, the Ohio, and up into the Muskingum region, develops a line of "burning" and petroleum "springs" throughout its course, so that the Little Kanawha also had its "burning springs" as well as the Great Kanawha. Where this arch crosses Hughes River near the California House, two miles below the junction of the North and South Forks, it brings one of the "shallow sand" oil rocks (Dunkard, Cow Run, etc.) above drainage level and the oil seepage from this and the underlying beds had long ago filled the flood plain sands and clays with oil. Just when this surface deposit of oil was first observed, and collected, we have no authentic account, but probably from the earliest settlement of the region by the whites, and possibly earlier still by the aborigines. As related above, it was first described by Dr. Hildreth in 1836, who states that fifty to one hundred barrels were collected and sold during each season, even at that early day, and hence the industry must have existed for many years before.

Early Oil Operations of Mr. George S. Lemon, on Hughes River.

The flood plain deposits or river sands which held the oil were situated on the right bank of the stream, and the first settlers dug pits into them, washed out the oil, and collected it with cloths and in other primitive ways for the markets at Parkersburg, Marietta, Cincinnati, and elsewhere. One of the early operators engaged in the business of collecting and marketing this "mud oil" as it was called, of whom we have an authentic account, was George S. Lemon, who came from eastern Virginia in 1835 and settled at the forks of the Hughes River. The oil deposits two miles below were well known at that time, and Mr. Lemon soon began the business of collecting and selling the oil. In his employ was an intelligent mulatto, named Hugill, or Huggle, who had learned the well-borer's art on the Great Kanawha, and being in need of salt, Mr. Lemon concluded to sink a well for brine on the left bank of Hughes River, and three hundred yards above the oil pit diggings, at a locality where he had noticed cattle licking the rocks. Aided by the inventive genius of Hugill, Mr. Lemon rigged up an arrangement for drilling the well by water power (probably the first of its kind in the country), and thus the hole was soon drilled to a considerable depth, or to something over one hundred feet, as remembered by Mr. Albert Lemon (son of George S.), where a flow of salt water, oil and gas was struck. This was in 1844, according to Mr. Albert Lemon, and the oil rendering the salt water useless, the inventive talent of Hugill was again drawn upon. Through his assistance, Mr. Lemon perfected a siphon arrangement for automatically removing the water from the trough into which the well flowed, and in this manner about one barrel of oil was daily saved from the well, and added to the supply from the sand pits. This was termed "sand oil", and was found to command a price higher in the markets, by five cents per gallon, than the "mud oil" from the sand diggings. The well continued to flow about once daily for a considerable time, but whether it was ever pumped for oil or not, after it ceased to flow, the accounts are conflicting. It was located about one hundred and fifty yards from the mouth of Flint Run, and the old timbers of the dam for water power, and the rocks between which the water turned the wheel may still be seen in situ, just under a modern well which now obtains its supply of oil from the upper portion of the "Salt Sand" at a depth of 600 feet.

Soon after Mr. Lemon had begun to market the oil from the pits and profits were accumulating therefrom, a question arose between him and Mr. Bushrod W. Creel concerning the title to the land on which the oil pits were situated. It appears to have been settled in favor of Mr. Creel, since we find his name on the books and records of the firm of Bosworth, Wells & Co., of Marietta, Ohio, as a seller of petroleum. A transcript from these old books, which are in the possession of Mr. Tasker W. Bosworth, has been kindly furnished by the late Mr. F. M. Minshall, of Marietta, and as it possesses much historic interest is given herewith as follows:

There were, of course, petroleum sales from the Hughes River region, as well as from the Great Kanawha to many other parties, but the transactions with Bosworth, Wells & Co. are the only ones yet discovered, of which a written record has been preserved. These records are of much historic interest, since, taken in connection with the petroleum discoveries in the salt borings on the Great Kanawha as early as 1808, as given by Dr. Hale, and those on the Muskingum, described by Dr. Hildreth in 1826. they show conclusively that a large (for the time) commercial business in petroleum was already in existence in Virginia and Ohio both from drilled wells and sand pits, long before Col. Drake had completed (29th of August, 1859), near Titusville, Pa., the first well bored specially for petroleum, and that, therefore, West Virginia should at least share with Pennsylvania the honor and credit of originating the great petroleum industries, and especially so in view of the fact that practically all well boring tools, methods of casing, drilling and pumping wells, were invented by citizens of what is now West Virginia.

Method of Pumping Several Wells from a Central Power Station, Invented by W. C. Stiles, Jr., of Volcano, W. Va.

The method of coupling several wells together and pumping all from one central power plant, thus enabling the producer to operate very small wells at a profit, was invented by the late William C. Stiles, Jr., of Volcano, Wood county, W. Va., in 1874, and first applied in the Volcano field, where as many as forty wells were successfully operated by one engine under the superintendence of only one man. Mr. Stiles got the idea from seeing power transmitted by wire cables in Philadelphia, his former home, and his inventive genius successfully applied the same principle to the pumping of oil wells.

Drilling Operations of the Brothers Rathbone, at Burning Springs, on the Little Kanawha.

A small stream known as Burning Springs Run enters the right bank of the Little Kanawha River, 41 miles above the latter's mouth. The run was so named by the first settlers from the fact that natural gas came up in a sulphur or chalybeate spring, about one-half mile up the stream from its mouth, in such quantity that it could be set on fire over a space of several feet square. There were two of these springs, one known as the "Big" spring, and the other as the "Little" one. These phenomena early attracted the attention of capitalists, and in 1842. William P. Rathbone came to Parkersburg from New York, and soon after purchased a tract of land containing 1,000 acres covering the region along Burning Springs Run, and including the springs themselves.

Salt was then one of the articles of commerce which, on account of its scarcity, commanded a high price, and there was much profit in the manufacture. Because natural gas springs occurred on the Great Kanawha, Muskingum, and in other localities where good brines had been found, Rathbone concluded it would be possible to find good salt producing brines on his 1,000 acre tract. Hence soon after the purchase was consummated, arrangements were made to sink a well for salt, and it was located on the left bank of the Little Kanawha, one hundred yards below the mouth of Burning Springs Run. At a depth of two hundred and fifty feet so much oil was obtained (from the Cow Run or Dunkard Sand), that further attempts to find salt water were abandoned, and since the "gum" or conductor was left in the hole, the oil would rise to the top (as the hole was full of water) from which it was skimmed and sold. This old salt well was the first in the State to be pumped for oil alone, since soon after Col. Drake drilled his famous well near Titusville, Pa., the Rathbone salt well was leased and put to pumping. This was late in the fall of 1859, and it produced several barrels daily.

First Well Drilled for Oil in West Virginia.

The first well within the boundaries of the State, drilled solely for petroleum, was also on the Rathbone tract, and located on Burning Springs Run, a short distance (one-fourth mile) from its mouth. The well was drilled by W. P. Rathbone and sons, and others, from Parkersburg, and was begun late in the year 1859. Since the well was drilled with a "spring pole", it was not completed until about the 1st of May, 1860, when at a depth of 303 feet oil was encountered in the Cow Run or Dunkard Sand, which produced at the rate of one hundred barrels daily. This was known as the "eternal center well". The Rathbone tract was then sold to the Rathbone Oil Co. for a large sum, and the second well, finished by this company late in the year 1860, came in at the rate of forty or fifty barrels per hour at a depth of only 320 feet. These two wells brought the West Virginia oil territory into great prominence, and the developments followed so rapidly that the former village soon had a population of several thousand people, repeating the history of gold mining camps, and rich mineral discoveries in other regions.

Destruction of the Burning Springs Petroleum Industry.

At the height of this development in 1863, Gen. Jones of the Confederate forces appeared upon the scene, with his command of 3,000 cavalrymen, and setting fire to the oil accumulated in tanks, barrels and boats, destroyed in a day, it is estimated, not less than 300,000 barrels of oil, and effectually frightened away the northern capitalists who had invested their money in the Burning Springs field. The burned and abandoned wells became "water-logged", and the region never recovered from the conflagration, although some oil is still produced there, and many wells have been drilled within the last few years.

Life of an Oil Well.

Two or three of the Burning Springs wells drilled in 1861 to the Dunkard or Cow Run Sand are still producing from one to two barrels daily, although 55 years old, and they never were large, thus showing that we do not yet know the maximum limit of life in an oil well.

Spread of Drilling Craze Over the State, and Failure of the Efforts to Reach the Oil Sands.

Soon after the Burning Springs oil development began, the petroleum craze spread all over the State, and large sums of money were paid by eastern capitalists for leases on tracts of land even far up in the mountain regions. Many wells were drilled in several counties, or at least attempts were made to drill them, which nearly always ended by getting the tools fast, and the hole plugged, because the operators had not yet learned the art of dealing successfully with rocks that crumble, or cave, and fall into the hole when water touches them. In the region of Titusville, Oil City, and all of northeastern Pennsylvania, the rocks (Mississippian and Catskill) to be drilled through are all hard and the walls of the wells stand firm after the holes are bored, even though drilled "wet" and full of water from top to bottom, but when the Pennsylvania drillers came down into West Virginia, where a much higher and softer series of rocks was encountered (Permian and Coal Measures), and attempted to use the Pennsylvania methods, the result in most cases was failure to sink the borings to any of the Venango county oil producing sands. Thus it happened that the oil development of West Virginia outside of the Burning Springs and Volcano "oil break," or anticlinal, was delayed for thirty years behind her sister State on the north, for except along that bold arch between the Little Kanawha and Ohio Rivers there was no oil production in commercial quantity until the year 1889. The region along the "Burning Springs—Eureka anticlinal" was practically all developed during the '60's, since here the soft rocks had been lifted into the air and eroded, so that Pennsylvania conditions existed, and it was possible to sink wells there without trouble from caving walls; hence the Burning Springs, Volcano, Vaucuse and other oil pools along this anticlinal had been developed and practically exhausted before the new developments, inaugurated in 1889, had begun.

Recent Petroleum History of West Virginia.

The modern development of the petroleum and natural gas fields of West Virginia date from 1889. The old development which started at Burning Springs in May, 1860, had practically ended with defining the producing territory along the Burning Springs anticlinal, since although many "shows" of oil had been found in several other portions of the State during the drilling craze of the sixties, yet for the reasons already given, none of these attempts had reached the main oil producing sands of Pennsylvania, although it has since been proven that many of these early shallow borings, which, owing to the condition of the well drilling art, could be sunk only a few hundred feet, were in reality located over rich pools of petroleum or natural gas.

The Coal, Oil and Gas Map, published by the West Virginia Geological Survey, together with the Economic and Structural Maps published in connection with the detailed County Reports, show the general extent of the oil and gas developments entirely across the State from Hancock to Wayne and Mingo counties. For many years West Virginia has outstripped Pennsylvania in the production of both petroleum and natural gas, as well as every other State in the Union in the production of "white sand" oil of the very highest grade, and will most probably maintain this supremacy for many years in the future.

The statistics of oil and gas production are not kept in separate form for each county by any state or other agency, like that of coal production by the State Department of Mines, hence the oil and gas production by counties is not available for publication. The United States Geological Survey, however, publishes the statistics of such production by States and districts and the following tables, compiled from these annual reports and other sources, give the oil production of West Virginia for every year beginning with 1876, with a lump estimate of production previous to that date:

Great Increase in West Virginia Petroleum Output, Dating from 1889.

These tables exhibit an almost steady decline from 1876 until the close of 1888, but here the tide turns, and there is a sudden increase. The year 1889 marked the opening of the Dolls Run, Eureka, and Mannington oil pools, and from that time forward the growth of West Virginia's oil production has been upward with such marvelous strides that toward the close of the year 1900, it finally surpassed that of Pennsylvania, and the pipe line runs at the present time show that her production exceeds that of Pennsylvania and New York combined. This primacy in "white sand" oil (the purest and best petroleum in the world), production will also very probably continue in the future, since West Virginia, occupying as she does the heart or central portion of the great Appalachian coal basin, contains a much larger area of white sand oil territory than her sister states of Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Kentucky.

The year 1891 marked the maximum production (33,009,236 barrels) of Pennsylvania, (thirty-two years after the industry began, with the completion of the famous Drake well, and from that time (1892) forward the decline in Pennsylvania's oil production has been rapid and almost continuous, so that in 1915 the pipe line runs from both the Pennsylvania and New York fields foot up only 9,114,570 barrels, or 159,318 barrels less than the West Virginia production (9,273,888 barrels) for that year.

The Future of West Virginia's Oil Production.

It is not probable that West Virginia's annual production can ever exceed that of 1900, (16,195,675 barrels), its maximum, and the probabilities are that from this figure the gradual decline of the last fifteen years will continue, since it is almost certain that the largest and richest pools of oil in the State have been discovered. There is some compensation, however, connected with the unpleasant fact of waning production, and that is, the price of petroleum is almost certain to advance with the diminishing supply, and hence it is possible that when the quantity produced has decreased to only one-fourth of what it is now, the price received then may be equivalent to that obtained now for the greater quantity.

It is of interest as bearing upon the future of West Virginia's oil production to place before the reader in tabular form the oil production in the sister state of Pennsylvania from its beginning in 1859 down to the end of 1915 for which we have rather complete and accurate figures for each year, coupled up with the production from southern New York (amounting to about 900,000 barrels annually). These figures and the average price per barrel together with total value read as follows, according to the compilations of the United States Geological Survey:

Meaning of Fluctuation in Production.

The fluctuations shown in this production mark the rise and decline of great oil pools, like Bradford, Cherry Grove, Washington and McDonald, the last great pools discovered in Pennsylvania, which carried the production of that State to its maximum in 1891, from which it has steadily declined, and will in the nature of things continue so to do, with temporary spurts of increase from the discovery of new producing areas. The drill has now exploited the possible oil territory of Pennsylvania so thoroughly, however, that it is hardly probable any large areas of richly productive territory yet remain to be discovered that can materially increase, or even stay, the present declining yield of petroleum in that State.

The same condition of affairs which these statistics reveal as the history of production in Pennsylvania is now occurring in West Virginia and it is quite probable that the constant decline in the production of the West Virginia and Pennsylvania fields shown by these tables will continue indefinitely, unless indeed there may exist several good pools of oil (like those recently discovered on Blue Creek and Cabin Creek, in the untested areas of Braxton, Clay, Kanawha, Boone, Lincoln, Logan, Wayne, and Mingo counties). Any such pools, however, could only retard the decline in the West Virginia fields, and accentuate their yield over those of New York and Pennsylvania.

Although the production of oil by counties has never been kept by any agencies that preserve statistics, since so many farms overlap from one county to another that the pipe lines which collect the runs of oil from the wells and transmit it to central stations could not separate the same according to county lines without very great inconvenience and added cost, yet the number of wells drilled annually in each of the oil districts, however, which sometimes coincide with county lines, is a matter of ready determination and of these the United States Geological Survey publishes lists in its annual volumes on mineral statistics. These give more or less accurate data as to present and past activities in oil and gas developments in several of the counties of the State and are quoted herewith so far as available, although some of the statistics appear to be inconsistent from year to year probably owing to corrections introduced in later years that were not taken account of in the preceding years. The tabular statement of drilling operations reads as follows from the year 1897 to and including the year 1914, as compiled from statistics published by the United States Geological Survey.

The total number of wells drilled for either oil or gas in the State of West Virginia can only be approximately estimated from these statistics, but taking the number of wells abandoned together with the dry holes reported in connection with oil and gas and the number of wells reported as productive on December 31, 1914, with an allowance of about 2,000 wells drilled during 1915, an approximate estimate would be 34,000 as the total number of wells drilled since 1897 while the number of wells drilled previous to 1897 was probably as many more, making the total number of wells drilled in West Virginia for either oil or gas 60,000 to 70,000; but this may be several thousand wells in error owing to the imcomplete statistics.

The complete list of the oil and gas counties is as follows, beginning at the northwestern part of the State and proceeding southwestward to the Kentucky line viz.:

Hancock	Pleasants	Putnam
Brooke	Ritchie	Kanawha
Ohio	Wood	Fayette
Marshall	Wirt	Boone
Tyler	Lewis	Lincoln
Wetzel	Upshur	Cabell
Monongalia	Braxton	Wayne
Marion	Clay	Mingo
Taylor	Calhoun	Logan
Harrison	Roane
Doddridge	Jackson

These thirty-two counties out of the fifty-five in the State have all produced natural gas in commercial quantity, except Jackson, and all except Taylor, Upshur, Fayette, Boone, Logan and Mingo have produced oil in paying quantity. It is also possible that Barbour, Webster, Nicholas, Raleigh, Mason, Wyoming and McDowell, when properly tested, may yet produce some oil or gas in commercial quantity. The remaining counties of the State, being situated in mountainous regions where the stratified rocks have been highly folded, and in many cases even overturned, the oil and gas they may once have contained has practically all escaped into the air through fractures, faults, and other forms of rupture, so that except possibly at very great depths—5,000 to 10,000 feet—the chances of obtaining either oil or gas therein would be practically none whatever.

NATURAL GAS.

Along with this wonderful growth of the petroleum industry in West Virginia there has been a corresponding increase in the production of natural gas, so that this State for several years has ranked first of all the States of the Union in the production of this matchless fuel, and with proper care in husbanding this source of power and the prevention of needless waste, it should last for another generation at least.

Nearly all the principal towns of the State west of the Alleghanies are now supplied with this fuel, while probably 500 million cubic feet daily pass out of the State, through the great 16, 18 and 20-inch lines of the United Fuel, Hope, Philadelphia, Carnegie, Manufacturers Light and Heat, and other gas companies, to the cities of Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Toledo, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, and intermediate points.

The hundreds of drilling wells, and thousands of pumping oil wells, and all of the pump stations for handling the oil and gas produced, together with the water supply, and everything connected with the oil and gas industry, receive practically all of their power from the consumption of natural gas, so that the quantity thus burned must aggregate many millions (possibly 150-200 millions) of cubic feet daily. It is also practically the only fuel used in all of the glass factories of the State and many of the brick and pottery works, as well as electric power plants, city water works supply, etc.

A very large use is that for the manufacture of carbon black in which probably thirty to fifty million cubic feet is daily consumed in Calhoun, Lewis, Doddridge, Harrison, Clay, Kanawha, and other counties.

The entire quantity of natural gas daily used within the State for every purpose will probably approximate 500 million cubic feet, while probably an equal amount is transported out of the State, and possibly half as much more (200-250 million feet) is daily wasted through unplugged wells, leaking joints, and from producing oil wells. This estimate would make the quantity of natural gas daily coming to the surface in West Virginia and utilized about one billion cubic feet, or the equivalent in heating power of one million bushels of coal—(40,000 tons) daily—14,600,000 tons annually, or about one-fifth of the State's annual production of coal.

All of this gas that is piped out of the State is sold at a rate of not less than 25 cents per 1,000 feet for domestic purposes, and 10 to 15 cents per 1,000 feet for manufacturing uses, while that taken to distant points, like Toledo, Cleveland, etc., is sold at 30 to 40 cents per 1,000 feet, hence if we value the gas produced in the State at only 10 cents per 1,000 feet, on the basis of one billion feet of daily production, it would amount to $100,000 per day, and probably one-fifth as much more is wasted without accomplishing any useful purpose whatever.

Quite recently there has been a general awakening to the enormity of this inexcusable waste of the best fuel in the world, and hence it is to be hoped that much of it may soon cease.

Methods of Transportation.

As is well known, natural gas exists in porous rocks under a pressure, proportioned to the depth of its reservoir below the surface of the valleys. This ratio of increase in pressure with depth is in about the same proportion as the weight of a column of water would increase with its length, so that at depths of 2,000 feet, 600 to 900 pounds of pressure to the square inch is developed when the gas in a new field is shut in, and for depths of 2,500 to 3,500 feet, pressures of 1,000 to 1,500 pounds are developed under like conditions.

This "rock pressure", as it is termed, is sufficient of itself to transport the gas in large quantity by its own expansive energy from central West Virginia (Lewis county) very great distances, so long as the "rock pressure" in the wells does not decrease below 500 to 600 pounds to the square inch. But in proportion as the gas is taken from any district, pool or field, the "rock pressure" in that particular gas horizon will gradually decline, until its effective pressure to deliver gas at the end of a long pipe line would be lost entirely. To meet this contingency, the Philadelphia, Hope, Manufacturers Light and Heat, and other gas companies have installed large pumping stations to which the gas flows from the wells to the pumps under a low pressure, and is then compressed by immense engines to about 300 pounds to the square inch before it enters the mains for transportation beyond the boundaries of the State.

The quantity of gas which any pipe line will transport, either under the natural pressure of the gas, or the artificial pressure created by pumps, depends upon many factors, the relations of which have been investigated and skilfully worked out by Prof. S. W. Robinson of the Ohio State University, and published in Volume VI, of the Ohio Geological Survey. The diameter of the pipe, the length of the line, the pressure at the intake end, all enter into the calculation, while the number of angles or abrupt bends in the line all of which produce friction and retard the flow of gas are also large factors in the transportation of gas. The principles governing the transportation and measurement of natural gas are published in Volume 1(A), West Virginia Geological Survey, as stated by the late F. H. Oliphant, pages 31-43.

Statistics.

The United States Geological Survey did not begin the publication of any statistics on natural gas production in West Virginia until 1885, and then only the estimated value and not quantity was given until the year 1906, beginning with which both volume and value have been compiled and published up to and including the year 1914. Of course these statistics of production and value are approximately accurate so far as they go, but they obviously can take no account of the very large quantity wasted (amounting to hundreds of billions of cubic feet) in the long period from 1890 up to even 1910 and later, and the large quantity (100 to 200 million feet daily) still going into the air from oil wells, leaking pipe lines, the unmetered gas used throughout the State for light, heat, steam, oil and gas operations, etc., etc., large torches and many other forms of wastefulness, so that the total production of natural gas in West Virginia can only be approximately estimated during the last twenty-five years. since during the greater portion of this period much more gas escaped into the air than was measured or utilized.

The following tables, taken from the annual reports on Mineral Statistics of the United States Geological Survey, give the annual value of natural gas production in West Virginia from 1889, and also the quantity produced since 1906. The value and production of the sister State of Pennsylvania is also given alongside for comparison:

For 1915 no reliable statistics are yet available, although the United States Geological Survey estimates of marketed production for West Virginia is two hundred and twenty billion cubic feet, or eighteen billion less than in 1914. The average price of West Virginia natural gas in 1914 was 14.87 cents per 1,000 cubic feet.

Gasoline From Natural Gas.

The casing head gasoline industry did not begin in the United States until 1904, when Andrew Fassenmyer near Titusville, Pennsylvania, inaugurated the manufacture of gasoline in a crude way, and during the latter half of that year obtained about 4,000 gallons, by utilizing the gas escaping from a few old oil wells. Other plants were soon afterwards installed at Warren and Tidioute, Pennsylvania, but it was not until 1909 that the industry became important, and not until the year 1911 that the United States Geological Survey began the compilation of statistics relating to the manufacture of gasoline from natural gas. The many millions of gallons of this precious fluid which have escaped into the air along with the vast waste of natural gas in our State from oil wells can only be imagined, but at the present retail price of gasoline, the values thus wasted must have amounted to hundreds of millions of dollars since each 1,000 cubic feet of gas escaping from an oil well would carry away with it from two to four gallons of gasoline, and hence during the period (which covered several years) when over five hundred million cubic feet of casing head gas escaped into the air daily from the oil wells of West Virginia, there would be going into the air also an average of 1,500,000 gallons of gasoline daily or more than five hundred and fifty million gallons a year, which at only ten cents a gallon (gasoline is now, January, 1916, retailing at twenty-five cents a gallon) would amount to fifty-five million dollars annually, a value three times greater than that of the wasted gas when valued at ten cents per 1,000 cubic feet.

From 1911 to and including 1913, West Virginia led all the States of the Union in the manufacture of casing head gasoline, but in 1914, Oklahoma captured the pennant and West Virginia retired to second rank in the list of the nine States manufacturing this kind of gasoline, California taking third place, while Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Kansas, New York and Colorado came, as to quantity, in the order named. No statistics for the manufacture of casing head gasoline in 1915 are yet available, but there was a large increase in West Virginia, since several of the great gas companies have now installed immense plants for the extraction of gasoline from natural gas before the latter enters the compressing stations on its way to fuel consuming centers. Of course the effective heating power of the natural gas is reduced by the quantity of gasoline thus removed from the natural gas before it enters the compressing stations' lines, and by the small quantities of gasoline condensed and removed from the pipe lines at the numerous "drips", etc., but it still retains, in the Appalachian field at least, an effective heat value for the consumer, slightly exceeding 1,100 B. T. U. per cubic foot of gas, while illuminating gas has 755 B. T. U., water gas 350, and Producer gas from bituminous coal only 155.

The following statistics of casing head gasoline production in West Virginia, compiled from the annual reports of the United States Geological Survey, since 1911, will show the rapid growth of the industry:

Carbon Black Industry.

The manufacture of carbon black from natural gas originated in West Virginia and is now practically confined to it, since in no other State can natural gas be produced so cheaply as to warrant its use for this purpose.

In 1914 the United States Geological Survey estimates that nearly twenty-one billion feet of natural gas was used in the manufacture of carbon black at an average price of 2.07 cents per thousand cubic feet. This would seem to be a very wasteful use of the gas since all the hydrogen (about 50 to 60 per cent. of the gas) is lost, with its vast heating power, and also a considerable portion of the carbon. However, it has heretofore been made largely from gas that would otherwise have escaped into the air and been totally lost, and hence is to that extent a measure of conservation.

FORESTRY, GAME AND FISH.

J. A. VIQUESNEY, Forest Game and Fish Warden; Belington.

Game and fish laws are older than the State of West Virginia. In the year 1699, more than two hundred years ago, the State of Virginia enacted a law restricting the hunting of deer in certain ways. In chapter 101 of the Virginia code of 1849, may be found considerable legislation concerning certain kinds of game, but it remained for West Virginia, in the year 1869, to enact the first law of any state, protecting all kinds of insectivorous birds. The law remained a dead letter, however, having neither public sentiment favoring it nor special constituted authority to enforce it. In fact the slaughter of our game went ruthlessly on until its final extermination seemed almost certain.

At the request of the sportsmen and nature loving citizens of West Virginia, Governor William M. O. Dawson, in the latter part of the year 1908, appointed a committee to draft a bill to be presented to the legislature of 1909, amending and re-enacting the game and fish laws. This committee drafted a bill, which, with some amendments, was enacted into law by the legislature of 1909.

In this law was also included some needed legislation relative to our forests, and their protection from forest fires, that had proved detrimental and destructive to our timber, water supply, game, birds and fish. From the enactment of this law dates the real conservation work in West Virginia on these several subjects. From the first day of July, 1909, when this law became effective, West Virginia has been rapidly changing from the class of backward states in protecting these resources, to the class of progressive states in this respect, and will in the near future be a model state in all this work.

Reducing forest fires, stopping the buying, selling and shipping of game and birds, taking the gun out of the hands of the unnaturalized foreigner, making the dynamiting of fish a felony and various other provisions of the law is fast restoring West Virginia to its primitive attractiveness, and filling its mountains with the wild birds and animals and its streams with fish.

The first fire data collected relative to forest fires in West Virginia was in the year 1908. The report of the West Virginia Conservation Commission shows that 710 fires occurred within the state during that year, with a burned over area of 1,703,850 acres; standing timber burned amounting to 943,515,850 feet, worth at that time $2,903,500. The lumber, tan bark and improvements burned were valued at $490,175. The injury to soil and undergrowth was estimated at $1,703,850, making a grand total of the property destroyed from forest fires for the single year of 1908 $5,997,525.

The loss from forest fires having become so enormous and appalling the legislature of 1909 enacted a law placing this subject under the control of the forest, game and fish warden. In the six years since this law has been enacted we have had less than one-tenth of the loss that occurred in the single year of 1908.

The total number of fires which occurred during the years 1909 and 1910 was 293; number of acres burned over 182,730; value of timber and forest products destroyed $150,927.19; amount expended in extinguishing fires $4,983.28.

The total number of fires in the years 1911 and 1912 was 113; number of acres burned over 65,156; value of timber and forest products destroyed $64,547.49; amount expended in extinguishing same $2,290.02.

The total number of fires in the years 1913 and 1914 was 219; number of acres burned over 71,933; value of timber and forest products destroyed $132,641.25; amount expended in extinguishing same, $4,533.48.

The grand total for the six years since the law was enacted is as follows: total number of fires 675; number of acres burned over 319,817; value of timber and forest products destroyed $348,115.83; amount expended in extinguishing same $11,826.78.

Sufficient money has been saved from this source alone, since the enactment of the forestry law, to pay all expenses of running the entire state government.

Prior to this time there was no organized effort to control forest fires, each property owner endeavoring to keep the fires from burning his own fences and improvements and allowing it to consume all of the forests without hindrance.

It was the general rule to set fire to the forests, it being contended that the burning improved the ground and made better range for the cattle.

While this work of extinguishing fires has been of great benefit, it has been found to be more economical to establish a system to prevent these fires, or at least control and extinguish them in their early stages.

The United States government, under an act known as the "Weeks' Law", has, since the year 1911, been assisting several states in protecting the water sheds of the navigable streams from destruction by forest fires. In order to secure this aid the state must first provide a system of fire control and appropriate sufficient money to make the system effective.

The state of West Virginia took advantage of the aid extended by the national government and by using a part of the money raised from the sale of hunters' licenses during the years 1909 and 1910, on the 16th day of October 1913, entered into a contract with the United States government to cooperate with them in protecting the water sheds of the navigable streams of West Virginia from destructive forest fires, the United States government appropriating the sum of five thousand dollars for the purpose, and the state agreeing to spend at least a like amount.

The state at once began the construction of look-out stations on high mountain peaks, from which a federal lookout watchman, equipped with field glasses, could command a view for at least fifteen miles in all directions, and by the use of alidades, protractors and maps, could locate approximately any forest fire that originated in this territory, and with the aid of telephones could notify some one near it and have it extinguished.

Look-out stations and patrol routes have been constructed as the following tables indicate:

The timberland owners seeing the great services rendered by the state and national government cooperating in this work, formed an organization in March, 1914, known as the "Central West Virginia Fire Protective Association", believing that they could be more effectual as an organized body in combating forest fires than in an individual capacity. About seven thousand acres of land is represented in this organization and a yearly assessment of one cent per acre is levied on the member land-owners which is used to cooperate with the state and national government in this work, thus forming a triple alliance of state, government and private owners.

The association mentioned above employs a field agent, or forester, who has supervision of the patrolmen employed, and who work in conjunction with the state and government men. The table below gives the name and location of the patrol routes used by the association patrolmen.

The wasteful methods of the lumbermen, and the destructive forest fires, have rendered almost valueless hundreds of thousands of acres of land that with proper care could have been re-forested and made more valuable than in its virgin condition.

No other question is of more importance than protecting our remaining and cut-over forest areas from fire, and arranging ways and means to re-forest depleted territory.

The lumber industry has been one of great importance to the state of West Virginia, it being estimated that more than twenty billion feet have been cut during the past thirty years. The following table shows the estimated cut during a few of these years:

Year	Feet Board Measure.
1890	301,958,000
1900	778,051,000
1907	1,395,975,000
1909	1,472,942,000

Estimates indicate that there have been during the past ten years at least 25,000 men engaged directly in the lumber operations throughout the State, earning about $15,000,000 each year, and possibly one-half this many more laborers affected by this industry, such as carpenters, salesmen and others who are indirectly furnished employment on account of the lumber industry.

It is further estimated that at least 8,000,000 acres of forest land should be perpetually maintained in West Virginia, which if properly protected from fire, and well cared for, should produce harvests of at least 16,000,000 feet of timber each year, which at $20.00 per thousand feet would produce a yearly gross income of thirty-two million dollars.

The national government has well demonstrated the possibilities of systematic timber growing in its administration of its national forests, and at the present time is acquiring a considerable acreage of cut-over lands in West Virginia, for the purpose of protecting the water sheds of the head waters of navigable streams and to assist the state in a better administration of its forestry work.

The West Virginia legislature of 1909 enacted a law giving the rights to the national government to purchase lands in West Virginia for this purpose, and since that time the following purchase areas have been established and approved:

Purchase Areas.

Counties	Area	Water Shed	Acres.
Hampshire	Potomac	Potomac	1,992
Hardy	Potomac	Potomac	78,686
Pendleton	Shenandoah	Potomac	76,991

Preston	Monongahela	Monongahela	57,959
Randolph	Monongahela	Monongahela	352,399
Tucker	Monongahela	Monongahela	250,194
			839,985

Approved For Purchase.

Counties.	Acres.	Price.	Value.
Hampshire	995	$5.50	$ 5,472.50
Hardy	35,410	2.88	102,154.70
Pendleton	18,000	3.49	62,750.00

Randolph	28,087	3.13	87,912.31
Tucker	14,800	2.74	40,500.00
		97,292	$298,789.51

The lands are placed under administration as soon as they are approved for purchase and forest guards are appointed to patrol for fires and trespass. During dry seasons, where the hazard from fire is greatly increased, an extra patrolman is appointed for a short period. The forest guards are not employed during winter months. Two forest guards cover land already under government administration.

The total expenditures during the fiscal year, July 1, 1913, to June 30, 1914, on the "Monongahela Area" were as follows:

General expenses (including building trails, purchase of fire tools, etc.)	$1,000.00
Forest guard hire	802.00
Fighting forest fires	263.43
Total	$2,065.43

The total cost of the fire protection is approximately two cents per acre. Forest guards are employed in building trails, telephone lines, etc., when there is no danger from fire.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

H. E. WILLIAMS, Commissioner.

Offices: State House—First Floor.

The State Department of Agriculture was created by the enactment of House Bill No. 103, passed by the legislature on the 24th day of February, 1911, and now appears as chapter thirty-five of the acts of the legislature of that session. By this law it was made the duty of the Commissioner of Agriculture to devise means of advancing the agricultural interests of the State, and to promote and encourage—as far as practicable—the organization of such societies as may have for their purpose the improvement and development of agricultural, horticultural and kindred interests. It was also made the duty of the Commissioner to publish and distribute throughout the State such reports, hand-books and bulletins concerning agriculture, horticulture and allied subjects, as in his judgment may be of value and interest to the farmers of the State. The Commissioner is charged with the inducement of capital and immigration, by the dissemination of knowledge relating to the advantages of soil, climate, healthfulness and the markets of West Virginia, and to the resources and industrial opportunities offered. He is given charge of the Museum of the Department of Agriculture, and it is made his duty to collect and preserve therein specimens of agricultural and horticultural and like products. He is given authority to call upon State and county officials for assistance and information and it is made their duty to cooperate with him, upon his request, to the end that the interests and welfare of agriculture may be promoted. It is made his duty to publish, from time to time, hand-books giving the resources of the several counties in the State, including a description of the varieties of soil and products, both mineral and vegetable, and the adaptability of the different sections of the State to the different branches of agriculture, horticulture and related interests.

Since the creation of this department new laws have been passed creating new duties. The legislature of 1913 created the Crop Pest Commission, of which the Commissioner of Agriculture was a member. The legislature of 1915 abolished this commission and assigned its duties to the Commissioner of Agriculture, but failed, however, to make any appropriation for the enforcement of the crop pest law.

The legislature of 1915 passed a law—commonly known as the live stock sanitary law—which is perhaps one of the most comprehensive, and one of the best laws of its kind, on the statute books of any state in the union. It is now being enforced with good results. The same legislature passed a law known as the pure seed law, that is having good effect on the distribution of seeds for agricultural purposes throughout the State, but it is failing to completely vindicate itself because of some provisions that make it difficult of enforcement. It is hoped that the legislature of 1917 will so amend this law as to make it more easily and more effectively applied.

The most important and most expensive work carried on with reference to the advertisement of the agricultural resources of West Virginia, was the installation of a land show, in the city of Chicago, from which the resources and opportunities of West Virginia were advertised to the widest possible extent, and a great many people—both capitalists and laborers—have become interested in West Virginia through this source.

Another special feature of advertising was the moving picture show, conducted at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, a statement of which follows:

On account of the great distance to the Panama-Pacific Exposition, it was decided to present the products of West Virginia to the people of the world in the form of a moving picture show. Over 25,000 feet of reel were taken, of West Virginia scenery, farm products, manufacturing establishments, etc., at a total cost, as shown by the Tax Commissioner's audit, of $11,610.79. During the time these exhibits were collected, and included in the same cost, hundreds of feet of film were taken of manufacturing plants and other industries that desired to advertise their wares, from which advertising the state received the sum of $11,603.50, making the total cost to the State for our agricultural exhibit, $7.29, although there are several thousand dollars in advertising film yet to be collected on. This magnificent exhibit has been returned intact to the State and will be used for educational purposes and advertising of West Virginia products throughout the state and nation.

The importance of such advertising can only be determined by the fact that hundreds of our people are being lured away annually by glittering advertisements of conditions in the West and Northwest, of properties, which in fact, are not equal to properties available in West Virginia. For instance: orchard land in Hood River and Winachee valleys is being purchased at prices ranging from one thousand to three thousand dollars per acre; while we have in West Virginia hundreds of thousands of acres of apple and peach land just as good as that in Hood River and Winachee valleys or anywhere else in the world, which can be bought at prices ranging from ten to twenty-five dollars per acre. Is it not high time that the people of West Virginia began to advertise their agricultural resources and possibilities? Is it not high time for them to realize the advantages they have at home? Is it not high time that capitalists and business men in West Virginia should undertake the development of the agricultural resources of the State in a business way?

The Commissioner of Agriculture, through the State Entomologist, Mr. W. E. Rumsey, of Morgantown, West Virginia, has been able to enforce the nursery inspection feature of the crop pest law, but on account of a lack of appropriation of funds, has been unable to provide orchard inspection for very many of the counties, and where inspection is now being carried on, it is done at the expense of the counties and paid for out of county funds by order of the county court.

The Commissioner has endeavored in every possible way to promote and encourage the development of the agricultural resources of the State. He has caused to be printed and distributed throughout the country a number of hand-books and agricultural bulletins, setting forth the agricultural resources and possibilities of its various counties, for the purpose of advertising the resources of West Virginia, and inducing capital and labor to come in.

Information was furnished direct from the department to 327 farmers desiring locations in the State of West Virginia, and to many hundreds more through agencies and settlers societies. Quite a good many expert truckers and dairymen have located in the state, whose examples have stimulated these industries in many quarters.

A market bureau was organized for the purpose of conducting investigations along the line of securing better and more satisfactory markets for West Virginia products. The bureau saved last summer over $50,000 in the adjustment of freight rates, which opened markets never before available to shippers of peaches and apples. These investigations are being extended to all products of the West Virginia farms.

During the month of March, 1915, after several months of hard fighting by the department and its veterinarians to prevent its introduction, this State had two outbreaks of foot-and-mouth disease within its borders, one near Wheeling, Ohio county, and the other in Berkeley and Jefferson counties. These outbreaks resulted in a loss of 179 cattle, 180 hogs and 114 sheep and considerable amount of property. The most economical measures of prevention and control of this dread disease at present known to science are to buy up and slaughter all diseased and exposed animals, bury the carcasses in quicklime and disinfect the premises. The work in West Virginia was done very quickly and the resultant loss kept down to a narrow margin—figured beside the enormous losses sustained by our neighboring states, a mere trifle. The cost of maintaining the quarantine, which is still in force, owing to the late outbreaks in Illinois, including property and livestock lost for the year ending December 1st, 1915, was $15,460.92.

Since April 1915, veterinarians of the department have examined and treated on 629 farms 192 horses, 2036 cattle, 371 sheep, 7082 hogs and 32 human beings. During this period we have treated live stock affected with hydrophobia, tuberculosis, hog cholera, glanders, sarcoptic mange, mycotic stomatitis, verminous bronchitis, hemorrhagic septicaemia, and blackleg; the human beings treated being affected with sarcoptic mange. The department has laid particular stress on cleanliness and disinfection of premises, such as will forever eradicate contagious and infectious disease from the State.

During the years 1914 and 1915, as opportunity permitted, we have accumulated and bound as a commencement for our agricultural library, 2500 volumes. This library will be open to the farmers of the state. Many farmers of Kanawha and adjoining counties are now making use of this reference library.

The work and usefulness of the West Virginia Department of Agriculture is limited only by two things: the energy and ability of the Commissioner of Agriculture and his office force, and the appropriations made by the legislature from time to time.

PROGRESS MADE BY THE STATE ROAD BUREAU.

A. D. WILLIAMS, Chief Road Engineer; University, Morgantown.

The State Road Bureau was created by an act of the legislature in 1913, to consist of a Chairman, (who was to be Chief Road Engineer for the State,) the Director of the Experiment Station, and two other parties to be appointed by the Governor.

July 8th, 1913, Governor H. D. Hatfield appointed A. D. Williams, of Marlinton, Chief Road Engineer; Geo. D. Corpening of Clarksburg, as Republican member, and J. W. Lynch, of Union, Monroe county, as Democratic member.

The first effort of the State Road Bureau was to compile the road laws, which were published in pamphlet form. The first road school, required by the new law, was held at the University, February, 1914; enrollment, 150; the second school was held December, 1914; enrollment, 153; the third school was held January, 1916; enrollment, 155.

All of the schools were made up of a series of lectures given by experts from different parts of the country, and they have done much to focus the attention of the people upon better highway construction.

"Good Roads Days" were held by proclamation of the Governor in the spring of the years 1914-1915. Extension meetings have been held in many parts of the state, in which instruction was given to the local road officials.

The Bureau has compiled and published twenty-two bulletins, together with two reports, covering the various phases of road and bridge construction. Plans and specifications have been prepared for such construction in a number of the counties. Since the Bureau was created, road bonds have been voted in the counties of Wetzel, McDowell, Mercer, Wyoming, Summers, Cabell, Kanawha, Wood, Pleasants, Marshall, Marion, Hancock, Monongalia, Preston and Upshur. Improved road construction has been undertaken with the funds provided in these and other counties. Funds have been provided by levies.

Standard plans and specifications have been prepared and published covering macadam, tarvia, asphalt, concrete and brick roads.

The Chief Road Engineer furnishes information and assists the road engineers in various parts of the state. Through his efforts, light has been thrown on the different types of bonds that can be voted, which has shown a great saving to the tax payers of the districts wherein bonds have been voted.

One of the great problems that confronts the people of West Virginia in the construction of roads is the knowledge of materials available in every locality. The Bureau has undertaken a study of the road materials of the State, including the sands, stones and clays, and has secured the co-operation of the State Geological Survey, Office of Public Roads and United States Bureau of Standards.

The saving exacted by proper proportioning of materials has shown the worth of the department by reducing the first cost, while, at the same time, getting the most efficient construction.

The Bureau has been hampered for lack of funds, and with proper support it can be made of vast service to the state.

The problem of good roads in West Virginia is the most important question confronting the people, and demands the best talent, skill and energy obtainable.

BUREAU OF LABOR.

Offices: State House—Second Floor.

The Bureau of Labor was created by an act of the Legislature in the session of 1889, Chapter 15. That act provided that the governor should, with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint a competent person, identified with the labor interests of the state, to be Commissioner of Labor, who should hold his office from the first day of June, 1889, for a term of four years. The act also provided that the office of Commissioner of Labor should be established in the capitol at Charleston, but by permission, the office was maintained in Wheeling until the present Commissioner of Labor took charge, on June 1st, 1914, when offices were provided in the capitol building. Owing to the growth in the number of industries throughout the state, which come under the jurisdiction of the department, the law was amended at the session of 1915, and two factory inspectors and a chief clerk were added to the department.

Industrial Notes.

The largest factory in the United States, for the manufacture of axes, is located at Charleston, Kanawha county, and employs one thousand people.

The largest factory in the United States for the manufacture of plumbers' sanitary supplies is at Morgantown, Monongalia county, and has five hundred employes.

There are fifty glass factories in West Virginia, the largest of which is located at Fairmont, Marion county, and employs one thousand people.

The largest factory in the United States for the manufacture of glass bottles is located at Clarksburg, Harrison county, and has four hundred employes.

There are four hundred and eighty-one local laborers unions in West Virginia, the aggregate membership of which is approximately sixty-five thousand.

The two factory inspectors, appointed by the Commissioner of Labor, in 1915, inspected eight hundred and sixty-two factories.

Children between the ages of fourteen and sixteen years are required by law to have a permit to work while schools are in session; children under fourteen years of age are required to have a permit at all times.

Eight hours is a day's work for all laborers and mechanics who may be employed by or on behalf of the State.

In connection with the Bureau of Labor there is a free public employment bureau, maintained by the State.

Department of Weights and Measures.

The Commissioner of Labor is ex officio Commissioner of Weights and Measures, without extra compensation.

The director of the physical laboratory of the West Virginia University, by virtue of his appointment to that position by the state board of regents, becomes the Assistant Commissioner of Weights and Measures.

Two State Inspectors have been appointed by the Commissioner under the Act of 1915.

Each county is to have a Sealer of Weights and Measures, appointed by the county court, and each city of 25,000 population is also to have a sealer.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

The Legislature of West Virginia convenes in regular session in the state capitol at Charleston, on the second Wednesday in January in the odd numbered years.

The Senate consists of thirty members, one-half of whom are elected at each biennial election for the term of four years. The House of Delegates consists of eighty-six* members, who are also elected biennially. Each county has its representation. There are no delegate districts.

Members of the Legislature receive a compensation of four dollars per day during the session, (Sundays included) with mileage at the rate of ten cents per mile.

At the opening of each regular session the Senate proceeds to the election of a President, Clerk, Sergeant-at-Arms and Doorkeeper; the House of Delegates to the election of a Speaker, Clerk, Sergeant-at-Arms and Doorkeeper.

The President of the Senate and Speaker of the House of Delegates each receives two dollars per day in addition to his allowance as a member. The Clerks of the two houses receive ten dollars per day each, with an extension of time, by resolution, to enable them to complete the work of the session by the proper arranging, labeling and filing of all papers, indexing the corrected journals and getting out the advance and regular editions of the acts. The Sergeants-at-Arms of the two houses receive five dollars per day; the Doorkeepers four dollars. Assistant clerks—authorized by a law that is usually supplemented by resolutions—are appointed by the Clerks of each house, and receive six dollars per day. Under similar authorization committee clerks are appointed by the presiding officers of each house and receive four dollars per day; mail and banking and journal pages three dollars, floor pages two dollars, and cloak room keepers three dollars. The appointment of other employees can only be authorized by resolutions designating the employment and the amount of compensation to be paid.

JOINT RULES OF THE SENATE AND HOUSE OF DELEGATES.

MESSAGES BETWEEN THE HOUSES.JOINT COMMITTEE ON PASSED BILLS, OTHERWISE KNOWN AS THE JOINT COMMITTEE ON ENROLLED BILLS.

1. When a message is sent by one house to the other, it shall be announced at the door of the house to which it is sent by the Doorkeeper thereof, if it be in session, and then be respectfully communicated to the presiding officer by the person by whom it may be sent. But the Clerk of one house may communicate a message to the Clerk of the other after adjournment, and any message so sent shall be received by the house to which it is sent whenever it may be in session.

2. After a bill has been passed by both houses, the type from which it was originally printed shall be corrected as to any typographical errors that may not theretofore have been corrected, and to meet any amendments that may have been made by either house since the last printing of the bill, and after the type has been so corrected twenty copies of the bill shall be printed on eight by ten heavy bond paper for the use of the Joint Committee on Passed Bills, otherwise known as the Joint Committee on Enrolled Bills, one of which copies, when properly authenticated, shall become the Enrolled Bill. The Joint Committee on Passed Bills, otherwise known as the Joint Committee on Enrolled Bills, shall consist of five members of the Senate and five members of the House of Delegates, to be appointed by the presiding officer of each house, whose duty it shall be to compare carefully all bills and joint resolutions passed by both houses, with the enrollment thereof, and to correct any errors or omissions they may discover and to make report to their respective houses each day of the correctly enrolled bills or joint resolutions. They shall be authenticated by the signature of the Chairman of the House Committee and the Chairman of the Senate Committee, composing such Joint Committee on Passed Bills, otherwise known as the Joint Committee on Enrolled Bills, but in the absence of such chairman another member of the committee may act in his stead, and they shall require all bills and joint resolutions before such authentication to be free from interlineation or erasures, and destroy any previous enrollment containing any interlineations or erasure. After enrolled bills and joint resolutions are authenticated as aforesaid, they shall be signed by the Speaker of the House and by the President of the Senate.

BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS.

3. It shall be in order for the Committee on Enrolled Bills to report at any time.

4. After a bill shall have been signed in each house, it shall be presented by the said committee to the Governor, for his approbation (it being first endorsed on the back of the roll, certifying in which house the same originated, which endorsement shall be signed by the clerk of the house in which the same did originate), and shall be entered on the Journal of each house. The same committee shall report the day of presentation to the Governor; which time shall also be carefully entered on the Journal of each house.

5. Where a bill or joint resolution, which shall have passed in one house, is rejected in the other, notice thereof shall be given to the house in which the same shall have passed.

6. After each house shall have adhered to their disagreement the bill or resolution respecting which they have disagreed shall be lost.

7. The President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Delegates shall have power to regulate the use of the halls and stairways of the Capitol Building for selling refreshments and like purposes, when the Legislature is in session.—[Joint Resolution No. 8, Acts 1881.]

ACTION OF GOVERNOR ON BILLS.

(Adopted January 31, 1873.)

8. Every bill disapproved by the Governor shall be returned by him to the house in which it originated with his objections thereto unless the Legislature shall by their adjournment prevent its return, in which case it shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of State within five days after said adjournment.

9. Every bill approved by the Governor shall, within five days after it is presented to him be filed in the office of the Secretary of State and the fact of said approval communicated by the Governor to the house in which said bill originated. Provided, That bills heretofore approved by the Governor shall be disposed of as aforesaid within five days after the passage of the resolution.

10. Every bill which shall be neither approved nor disapproved by the Governor, shall immediately after the expiration of five days from the time it is presented to him, be filed in the office of the Secretary of State, who shall forthwith engross thereon a certificate to the following effect: "I certify that the foregoing act, having been presented to the Governor for his approval, and not having been returned by him to the house of the Legislature in which it originated within the time prescribed by the Constitution of the State, has become a law without his approval;" and shall date and sign the same.

11. Upon each bill returned to either house of the Legislature with the objections of the Governor, the Clerks of the Senate and House of Delegates shall engross the action of their respective houses, on the reconsideration and passage of said bill, and sign the same.

MANNER OF PRINTING THE JOURNALS AND BILLS.

(Adopted January 18, 1887.)

12. In printing the daily Journals of the proceedings of each house there shall be printed at the top of each page, except the first, the date of the Journal, and on the last page of each day's Journal shall be printed the calendar for the next day.

13. On a call of the Senate, the doors shall not be closed against any member until his name shall have been twice called.
9. In case a less number than a quorum of the Senate shall convene, they are hereby authorized to send the Sergeant-at-Arms, or any other person or persons by them authorized, for any and all absent members as the majority of such members shall agree, at the expense of such absent members, respectively, unless such excuse for non-attendance shall be made as the Senate, when a quorum is convened, shall judge sufficient; and, in that case, the expense shall be paid out of the contingent fund. And this rule shall apply, as well to the first convention of the Senate at the legal time of meeting as to each day of the session, after the hour has arrived to which the Senate stood adjourned.
10. No Senator shall be taken into custody by the Sergeant-at-Arms, on any question of complaint of breach of privilege, until the matter is examined by the Committee on Privileges and Elections, and reported to the Senate, unless by order of the President of the Senate.

12. The Senate may punish by imprisonment, any person not a member, for disrespectful behavior in its presence; for obstructing any of its officers in the discharge of their duties; or for any assault, threat or abuse of any member for words spoken in debate; but such imprisonment shall not extend beyond the termination of the session.—[Const., art. 6, sec. 26.]

15. If a member be called to order, for words spoken in debate, the person calling him to order shall repeat the words excepted to, and they shall be taken down in writing at the Clerk's table; and no member shall be held to answer, or be subject to the censure of the Senate for words spoken in debate, if any member has spoken, or other business has intervened after the words spoken and before exceptions to them have been taken.

16. No member of the Senate, or other person except the Clerk and his assistants, shall visit or remain by the Clerk's table while the yeas and nays are being called or counted.

17. No member shall speak more than twice upon the same subject, without leave of the Senate; nor more than once until every member choosing to speak shall have spoken.

18. While the President is reporting or putting a question none shall entertain private discourse, read, stand up, walk into, out of, or across the Senate Chamber.

19. No question shall be debated until it has been propounded by the chair, and then the mover shall have the right to explain his views, in preference to any other member.

20. While the President is putting the question, any member who has not spoken before to the matter may speak to the question before the negative is put.

21. During any debate, any Senator, though he has spoken to the matter, may arise and speak to the orders of the Senate, if they be transgressed, in case the President do not; but if the President stands up at any time, he is first to be heard.

22. If any member of the Senate absent himself from the service thereof without leave, except in case of his sickness or other unavoidable cause which may prevent his attendance, the Senate may by order or resolution, direct his absence to be entered on the Journal, and that no per diem be allowed for the period of such absence without leave.

23. No member of the Senate shall absent himself from its service without leave first obtained. When an application for leave of absence is made for a Senator, the Senate shall determine and enter upon its Journal whether such absence shall include a suspension of per diem during such absence.

The chairman of each standing committee of the Senate shall cause to be kept, in a well bound book to be kept for the purpose, a record of every meeting of such committee, wherein shall be entered:

President shall leave the chair and appoint a chairman to preside in the Committee.

31. The Committee of the Whole shall consider and report on such subjects as may be committed to it by the Senate. The rules of the Senate shall be observed in the Committee of the Whole, so far as they are applicable, except the rule limiting the time of speaking, concerning the previous question, and taking the yeas and nays. The proceedings in the Committee of the Whole shall not be recorded on the Journal of the Senate, except so far as reported to the Senate by the Chairman of the Committee.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

32. The first two hours of each daily session of the Senate, after the sixth order of business, to-wit: the consideration of unfinished business of the preceding day and resolutions lying over from the previous day, shall be called the "morning hour," and shall be devoted to the consideration of the business then on the calendar, unless the Senate, by a two-thirds vote of all the members present suspend this rule.

- I. To read the Journal.
- II. To dispose of communications from the House of Delegates and the Executive.
- III. To receive reports from Standing Committees.
- IV. To receive reports of Select Committees.
- V. To receive bills, resolutions, motions and petitions.
- VI. To act upon unfinished business of the preceding day, and resolutions lying over from the previous day, and no resolution shall lose its place on the calendar by not being acted upon the day following that on which it was offered.
- VII. Senate and House Bills on third reading.
- VIII. Senate and House Bills on second reading.
- IX. Senate and House Bills on first reading.

33. All bills originating in the Senate shall be read on three several days, unless in case of urgency, by a vote of four-fifths of the members present, taken by yeas and nays, on each bill, this rule be dispensed with.—[Const., art. 6, sec. 29.]

34. In the title of all bills to amend chapters or sections of the Code, or acts passed since the Code was adopted, the several committees to whom they are referred, or by whom they originated, shall insert the subject matter of the chapter.

35. All engrossed bills shall be fully and distinctly read when put upon their passage.—[Const., art. 6, sec. 29.]

36. All bills or business originating in the Senate, shall be considered in the order in which they are introduced and all bills and resolutions received from the House of Delegates shall be considered in the order in which they are received, unless in either case the Senate otherwise direct.

37. All joint resolutions and all other resolutions, except those requiring a committee to inquire and report, shall lie on the table one day at least, after they are introduced.

38. Bills making appropriations for the pay of members and officers of the Legislature, and for salaries, for officers of the government, shall contain no provision on any other subject.—[Const., art. 6, sec. 42.]

39. Bills may be introduced on leave being granted; but no bills excepting appropriation bills and bills of an emergency nature, shall be considered after the fortieth day of the session.

40. All bills reported from the House of Delegates shall be referred to the appropriate committee on the first reading. All bills introduced on leave shall be read by their title and referred to the appropriate committee without printing, and shall be treated in committee as resolutions of inquiry, and if the committee report a bill different from the one introduced such bill shall be received and treated by the Senate as the original bill, and shall be read a first time and printed, unless in any of the aforesaid cases the Senate shall direct otherwise.

41. Before reading each bill, the Clerk shall state whether it is the first, second or third reading of the bill.

42. On the demand of any two members when a bill is being read for amendment, it shall be read section by section, and when the amendments which may be moved shall be disposed of, the question, unless the Senate otherwise order, shall be taken on ordering the bill to be engrossed and read the third time. If a bill should be ordered to its engrossment and third reading and amendments thereto have been made, the type from which the bill was originally printed shall be changed to conform to the amendments. The bill shall then be re-printed, and shall be the engrossed bill. If no amendments are made the bill as originally printed may be ordered to its third reading and shall become the engrossed bill. All Senate bills so ordered shall be jacketed, endorsed with their number, title, by whom introduced, and if the bill is finally passed, the date of its passage and the signature of the Clerk. If a bill should be passed by the House and returned to the Senate without amendments or if amended, and the amendment or amendments should be agreed to, it shall then be turned over to the Joint Committee on Passed Bills, otherwise known as the Joint Committee on Enrolled Bills. In the case of a House bill on second reading, if the same be amended by the Senate and passed as amended, the amendment or amendments shall be noted in full in typewriting on slips of paper, and attached to the bill at the proper place by the Clerk before the bill is returned to the House, and all the amendments shall appear in the Senate Journal.

42. When a bill or resolution of the House of Delegates is passed or rejected by the Senate, the fact of its passage or rejection, with the bill or resolution, shall be communicated to the House of Delegates.

PETITIONS.

44. No petition of a private nature, having been once rejected, shall be acted on a second time, unless it be supported by new evidence, nor shall any such petition, after a third rejection, be again acted on.

45. No petition shall be received claiming a sum of money or praying the settlement of unliquidated accounts, unless it be accompanied with a certificate of disallowance from the Executive or Auditor, containing the reason why it was rejected. But this order shall extend to no person applying for a pension.

46. When any petition, or bill founded on one, is rejected, such petition shall not be withdrawn, but the petitioner or member presenting the petition, or any member from the county or corporation in which the petitioner resides, may, with leave, withdraw any document filed therewith, and a list of all documents so withdrawn shall be preserved by the Clerk. All petitions not finally acted on may, with the accompanying documents, be in like manner withdrawn after the expiration of the session at which they were presented.

47. No petition shall be read in the Senate unless particularly required by some member, but every member presenting one shall announce the name of the petitioner and the nature of the application, and that, in his opinion, no similar application had been previously made by the same petitioner. He shall also endorse on the back of his petition his own name, as a pledge that it is drawn in respectful language, whereupon it shall be delivered to the Clerk, by whom it shall be laid before the proper committee.

MESSAGES.

48. Messages may be introduced in any stage of business except when a question is being put by the presiding officer, while the yeas and nays are being called by the Clerk, or while the ballots are being counted.

MOTIONS.

49. When a bill or joint resolution is put upon its passage, the President shall propound the question, "Shall the bill (or joint resolution as the case may be), pass?" On the passage of every bill or joint resolution the vote shall be taken by yeas and nays, and be entered on the Journal. When the bill is on a second reading, and the question is upon striking out, the President shall propound the question: "Shall these words be stricken out?"

50. When the question is pending, no motion shall be received but to adjourn, for the previous question, to lie on the table, to postpone indefinitely, to adjourn the question to a different day, to commit or amend, which several motions shall have precedence in the order in which they are herein arranged.

51. On the first reading of the bill, no motion shall be in order except a motion to reject the bill, and if the committee shall have reported adversely to the bill, the President, immediately after its first reading, shall propound the question: "Shall the bill be rejected?" When the Senate refuses to reject the bill the question shall be: "Shall the bill be ordered to its second reading?" This question shall be duly put by the chair and acted upon by the Senate.

52. The question, being once determined, must stand as the judgment of the Senate, and cannot during the session be drawn again into debate unless reconsidered, and it shall be in order for any member voting with the prevailing side to move a reconsideration of the same within two succeeding business days.

53. When motions are made for reference of the same subject to a select committee, and a standing committee, the question in reference to the standing committee shall be first put.

DIVISION OF THE QUESTION.

54. If the question in debate contains several points, any member may have the same divided, but on motion to strike out and insert, it shall not be in order to move for a division of the question, but the rejection of a motion to strike out and insert one proposition, shall not prevent a motion to strike out and insert a different proposition; nor prevent a subsequent motion to simply strike out; nor shall the rejection of a motion simply to strike out prevent a subsequent motion to strike out and insert.

55. In filling up blanks, the largest sum and the longest time shall be first put.

PREVIOUS QUESTION.

56. There shall be a motion for the previous question, which being ordered by a majority of members present, if a quorum, shall have the effect to cut off all debate and bring the Senate to direct vote upon the immediate question or questions on which it has been asked and ordered. The previous question may be asked and ordered upon a single motion, a series of motions or may be made to embrace all authorized motions and amendments and include the bill to its engrossment and third reading and then, on renewal and second of said motion, to its passage or rejection. It shall be in order pending a motion for or after the previous question shall have been ordered on its passage, for the President to entertain and submit a motion to commit with or without instruction, to a standing or select committee; and a motion to lay upon the table shall be in order on the second and third reading of a bill.

A call of the Senate shall not be in order after the previous question is in order, unless it shall appear upon an actual count by the President that a quorum is not present.

All incidental questions of order arising after a motion is made for the previous question, and pending such motion, shall be decided, whether on appeal or otherwise, without debate.

YEAS AND NAYS.

57. When the yeas and nays are ordered, or a call of the Senate is directed, the names of the members shall be called in alphabetical order.

58. The yeas and nays on any question shall at the desire of one-tenth of the members present, be entered on the Journal, and any member may enter any protest on the Journal upon the determination of any question. After the yeas and nays shall have been taken, and before they are counted or entered on the Journal, the Clerk shall read over the names of those who voted in the affirmative and those who voted in the negative, at which time any member shall have the right to correct any mistake committed in enrolling his name.

59. When a bill or joint resolution passed by the Senate shall be amended by the House of Delegates, the question on agreeing to the bill or joint resolution, as amended, shall be again voted on by yeas and nays in the Senate, and the result entered upon its Journal; in all such cases the affirmative vote of a majority of all the members elected to the Senate shall be necessary.—[Const., art 7, sec. 31.]

60. In all elections of officers which may take place in the Senate the vote shall be viva voce, and be entered upon the Journal.—[Const., art. 6, sec. 44.]

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

61. When nominations shall be made in writing by the Governor to the Senate, a future day shall be assigned, unless the Senate unanimously direct otherwise, for taking them into consideration.

62. When acting on the nominations of the Governor, the Senate shall be cleared of all persons except the Clerk, his assistants, the Sergeant-at-Arms and Doorkeeper, and all such officers shall be sworn to secrecy.

63. All confidential communications made by the Governor to the Senate, and all proceedings thereon, shall be by the members thereof kept secret until the Senate shall, by the unanimous affirmative vote of the members present, remove the injunction of secrecy.

64. All information and remarks touching the character or qualifications of any person nominated by the Governor to office, shall be kept secret. The legislative proceedings and the executive proceedings of the Senate shall be kept and recorded in separate books.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

65. When an amendment to be proposed to the Constitution is under consideration, the concurrence of two-thirds of the members elected to the Senate shall not be requisite to decide any question for amendments, or extending to the merits, being short of the final question.

ADJOURNMENT.

66. When the Senate adjourns each day, it shall stand adjourned to 10 o'clock, a. m., the next day, unless the Senate otherwise direct.

67. When the Senate adjourns each day, every member shall keep his seat until the President leaves the chair.

PARLIAMENTARY PRACTICE.

Reed, shall govern the Senate in all cases not provided for by the rules of the Senate or in the Joint Rules of the Senate and House of Delegates. In any case not governed by the said Manual of said rules, the Senate shall be governed by the practice in the Congress of the United States.

69. No standing rule or order of the Senate shall be rescinded or changed without one day's notice being given of the motion therefor; and no rule shall be suspended except by a vote of two-thirds of all the members of the Senate present.

But, pending such amendment, a motion to amend in the nature of a substitute, and a motion to amend that substitute, may be received, but shall not be voted upon until the original matter is perfected.

4. If a substitute for a bill or resolution be offered, a motion to amend the original bill or resolution shall have precedence.

6. In filling blanks, the largest sum and longest time proposed shall be first put, and the question shall be put on names in the order they were nominated.

7. No amendment by way of rider shall be received to any bill after engrossment.

8. After commitment of a bill, and report thereof to the House, it may be amended; but the amendments (if any) reported by the committee, shall be disposed of before any other amendment is considered, unless it be an amendment to an amendment.

9. When a House bill or House joint resolution shall be amended by the Senate, the question on agreeing to the bill or resolution as amended shall be again voted on by yeas and nays, and the result entered on the Journal, and in such a case the affirmative vote of a majority of the members elected to the House shall be necessary.—[Const., art 7, sec. 31.]

36. No question shall be debated until it has been propounded by the Speaker; and then the mover shall have the right to explain his view in preference to any other member.

37. When a member is about to speak in debate, or deliver any matter to the House, he shall first rise from his seat and respectfully address himself to "Mr. Speaker," and shall confine himself to the question under debate and avoid all personality and indecorous or disrespectful language.

38. When a member arises and addresses the Chair, the Speaker shall recognize him by name; but no member in debate shall designate another by name.

39. When two or more members rise at the same time, the Speaker shall name the person to speak; but in all cases the member who shall first rise and address the Chair shall speak first.

40. No one shall disturb or interrupt a member who is speaking, without his permission, except to call to order, if he be transgressing the rules.

41. No member shall speak more than twice to the same question without leave of the House.

42. When the Speaker is putting the question, any member who has not spoken before to the matter, may speak to the question before the negative is put.

DIVISION OF HOUSE.

43. When the question is put and the Speaker shall have doubt as to the result of the vote, or a division be called for, the House shall divide, and those in the affirmative of the question shall rise from their seats and remain standing until they are counted, and afterwards those in the negative. The count may be made by the Speaker, or if he so directs, by the Clerk, or two members, one from each side, to be named for that purpose by the Speaker. When the result is ascertained the Speaker shall rise and state the decision of the House.

Any member may call for a division.—Rule 97.

DIVISION OF QUESTION.

44. Any member may call for a division of any question pending, before the vote thereon is taken, if it comprehend propositions in substance so distinct that, one being taken away, a substantive proposition will remain for the decision of the House, but the member calling for the division of a question shall state in what manner he proposes it shall be divided.

45. A motion to strike out and insert shall be deemed divisible, and though a motion to strike out be lost, it shall not preclude a motion to strike out part of the same words or a motion to amend or to strike out and insert.

DOORKEEPER.

46. The doorkeeper shall attend the House while in session, and under the direction of the Speaker execute the orders of the House respecting the admission and the exclusion of persons from the Hall. He shall, when required by the Speaker, aid in the enforcement of order.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

47. The House, at the commencement of each session, shall elect its Speaker, Clerk, Sergeant-at-Arms and Doorkeeper.

48. In the election of officers by the House, the vote shall be given viva voce, and a majority of the whole number of votes given shall be necessary to elect. If, upon any vote there be no election, the person having the lowest number of votes shall be dropped, and any votes thereafter given to such person shall not be taken into the count to affect the result in any way. But if two or more have the lowest and equal number of votes they may be voted for again. No question before the House, or in committee of the whole, shall be voted on by ballot.

FLOOR.

Who entitled to privilege of.—Rule 72.

INDEFINITE POSTPONEMENT.

49. When a question is postponed indefinitely, the same shall not be acted on again during the session.

50. The Janitor, under the direction of the Speaker, shall have care of the Hall and committee rooms of the House, and keep the same at all times, in a neat and proper condition.

JOURNAL.

51. The Clerk of the House, under the direction of the Speaker, shall keep a full and correct Journal of the Proceedings; and it shall be the duty of the Speaker to examine the Journal daily before it is read and cause all errors and omissions therein to be corrected.

52. When the Journal has been read to the end that any mistake made in the entry may be corrected, if no objection be made, it shall stand approved, but if objection be made the first question of the House shall be to dispose of the same, and when such objections are disposed of and the Journal corrected, as the House may order, it shall stand as approved. After the printed Journal has been approved and fully marked for corrections, the type from which it was printed shall be changed in accordance therewith. From the type so corrected shall be printed the number of copies required by law for the regular bound volumes of the Journal. In addition thereto six copies shall be printed on 8 x 10 heavy weight bond paper, with blank lines at the end of each day's proceedings for the signatures of the Speaker and

Clerk, and these shall be the official journals of the House. They shall be bound in flexible binding, and bear the imprint on the back, "Official Journal of the House of Delegates of West Virginia," with designation of regular or special session, as the case may be, and the year. After being signed by the proper officers, two of these copies shall be retained in the office of the Clerk, and one copy shall be lodged in the office of the Governor, one with the Secretary of State, one with the Department of Archives and History, and one with the Clerk of the Senate.

53. It shall be the duty of the Clerk to furnish a copy of each day's proceedings of the Journal to the printer, to be printed and distributed without delay.

54. Every written motion made to the House shall be inserted in the Journal with the name of the member making it, unless it be withdrawn on the same day it is submitted.

LIE ON THE TABLE.

- a. Motion to lie on table not debatable.—Rule 66.
- b. When a resolution is presented containing no reference of subject matter to committee, it shall lie on the table for one day.—Rule 67.
- c. When motion to take from table in order.—Rule 76.

MANUAL AND RULES.

55. The rules of the parliamentary practice, comprised in Jefferson's Manual, shall govern the House in all cases not provided for by the rules of the House or joint rules of the Senate and House of Delegates.

56. No standing rule or order of the House shall be rescinded or changed without one day's notice being given of the motion therefor, and no rule shall be suspended except by a vote of at least two-thirds of the members present, unless the same is reported by the Committee on Rules when either may be done by a majority vote of the members present.

MEETING OF THE HOUSE.

57. The House, unless it shall be otherwise directed by special order, shall meet every day, except Sunday, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon.

58. There shall be appointed by the Speaker an official Chaplain of the House whose duty it shall be to be present at the convening of each day's session for the purpose of opening the House with prayer. His compensation shall be fixed by the Committee on Taxation and Finance.

MESSAGES.

59. The Speaker shall take the chair and call the House to order precisely at the hour of meeting, and, if a quorum be present, cause the Journal of the preceding day to be read.

60. When a message from the Executive or Senate is announced, other business shall be suspended until it is received, unless the House be at the time actually engaged in taking a vote on some question, in which case it shall be received as soon as the result of the vote is announced. When received, it shall lie on the table to be disposed of in its turn, unless otherwise ordered by the House.

MOTIONS AND RESOLUTIONS.

61. When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received but to adjourn, to lie on the table, for the previous question, to postpone to a specific day, to commit, to amend, or to postpone indefinitely, which motions shall severally have precedence in the order in which they are here arranged.

62. When a motion is made it shall be stated by the Speaker, or being in writing, shall be handed to the Chair, and read aloud by the Clerk, and shall then be deemed to be in possession of the House; it may be withdrawn by the mover before any order of the House respecting the same has been made.

63. Every motion shall be reduced to writing, if the Speaker or any member desires it.

64. When a motion is made to commit any subject to a special committee, a motion to commit the same to the Committee of the Whole, or a standing committee, shall have precedence.

65. A motion to adjourn, and a motion to fix the time to which the House shall adjourn, shall always be in order if the mover be entitled to the floor.

66. The motion to adjourn and to lie on the table shall be put without debate.

67. When a resolution is presented containing no reference of the subject thereof to a committee, it shall lie on the table for one day, to come up under the eighth order of business, unless a majority of the House order otherwise.

68. Every motion or resolution directing the appropriation or payment of money shall, unless otherwise ordered by the House, be referred without debate, to the Committee on Taxation and Finance.

OATHS.

69. The Speaker or Clerk shall have authority to administer any oaths required by the business of the House.

OBJECTION.

Resolution not of inquiry shall lie over one day—Rule 67.

ORDER AND DECORUM.

70. While the Speaker is putting any question, or ascertaining the result, no one shall walk out of or across the House, nor when a member is speaking pass between him and the Chair.

71. If a member speaking or otherwise transgress the rules of the House, the Speaker shall, or any member may, call him to order; in which case, the member so called to order shall immediately sit down, unless permitted to explain. If the decision be in favor of the member called to order, he shall be at liberty to proceed; if otherwise, he shall not be permitted to proceed, if any member object, without leave of the House, and if the case require it, shall be liable to the censure of the House.

72. No member or other person shall visit or remain by the Clerk's table while the yeas and nays are being called; and no person, except members, ex-members and officers of the Legislature, State officers, members and ex-members of the Judiciary, shall be admitted upon the floor of the House, except by permission of the Speaker.

73. If a member be called to order for words spoken in debate, the person calling him to order shall repeat the words excepted to, and they be taken down in writing at the Clerk's table. And no member shall be held to answer, or be subjected to the censure of the House, for words spoken in debate, if any other member has spoken, or other business has intervened after the words were spoken and before the exception to them was taken.

Speaker to preserve order.—Rule 87.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

74. The order of business for each day shall be:

- I. To read, correct and approve the Journal.
- II. To receive and consider reports of standing committees.
- III. To receive and consider reports of select committees.
- IV. To receive and consider messages from the Executive.
- V. To receive messages from the Senate, and consider amendments proposed by the Senate to bills passed by the House.
- VI. To receive resolutions and petitions.
- VII. Bills introduced on motion for leave and referred to appropriate committees.
- VIII. To act on unfinished business of preceding day, and resolutions lying over from the previous day, but no resolution shall lose its place on the calendar by not being acted on the day following that on which it was offered.
- IX. House and Senate bills on third reading.
- X. House and Senate bills on second reading.
- XI. House and Senate bills on first reading.

XII. The order of the day, unless a subject was made the order of the day for a particular hour, in which case it may be called for by any member when the hour arrives.

Miscellaneous business.

75. All questions relating to priority of business shall be decided without debate.

76. A bill or resolution laid on the table may be taken up by a vote of the House at any time after the seventh order of business is disposed of.

PETITIONS.

77. The member who presents a petition or memorial or offers a resolution on which a vote of the House is taken, shall be named on the Journal.

PREVIOUS QUESTION.

78. If the previous question be demanded by not less than seven members, the Speaker shall, without debate, put the question, "Shall the main question be now put?" If this question be decided in the affirmative, all further debate shall cease and the vote be at once taken on the proposition pending before the House. When the House refuses to order the main question, the consideration of the subject shall be resumed as if the previous question had not been demanded.

79. The previous question shall not be admitted in the Committee of the Whole.

PRINTING DOCUMENTS.

80. Documents printed by order of the House shall be printed in pages of the same size as those of the Journal; and a copy of every such document, bound up with the Journal, shall be furnished by the printer to each member of the House at the close of the session, or as soon as possible thereafter; and twenty additional copies, bound as aforesaid, shall be delivered to the Clerk of the House, to be distributed as the House may order.

Printing of bills, before second reading.—Rule 18.

RECONSIDERATION.

81. A question being once determined must stand as the judgment of the House and cannot again be drawn into debate during the same session, unless reconsidered. But it shall be in order for any member of the majority, on the same or succeeding day, to move for a reconsideration thereof, and such a motion, if seconded, shall take precedence of all other questions except a motion to adjourn, and shall not be withdrawn without leave of the House; and if the House decides to reconsider, any member may thereafter call the subject up for consideration.

82. When a majority of members present vote in the affirmative on any question, but the question be lost because it is one in which the concurrence of a greater number than a majority of a quorum is necessary to an affirmative decision, any member may move for a reconsideration.

RESOLUTIONS.

See "Motions and Resolutions."

RULES.

See "Manual and Rules," and Rules 55 and 56.

SERGEANT-AT-ARMS.

83. The Sergeant-at-Arms shall give bond, with surety, in the penalty of two thousand dollars, payable to the State of West Virginia, and conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of his office; such bond to be approved by the Speaker and filed with the Clerk of the House for safe keeping.

84. It shall be the duty of the Sergeant-at-Arms to attend the House while in session; to aid in the enforcement of order, under the direction of the Speaker; to execute the commands of the House, from time to time, together with all such process issued under its authority as may be directed to him by the Speaker.

85. The Sergeant-at-Arms, under the direction of the Speaker, shall superintend the distribution by the pages of all documents and papers to be distributed to the members.

86. It shall also be the duty of the Sergeant-at-Arms, to keep the accounts for pay and mileage of members, officers and attaches, to prepare and sign warrants or requisitions for the same, and if required by any member, who shall endorse his warrant or requisition for that purpose, to draw the money thereon and pay over the same to the member entitled thereto.

SPEAKER.

87. It shall be the duty of the Speaker to preserve order and decorum while the House is in session; to enforce the rules and orders of the House; to prescribe the order in which business shall come up for consideration, subject to the rules and orders of the House; to announce the question of business before the House when properly requested by any members; to receive all messages and other communications; to put to vote all questions which are properly moved; to announce the result of all votes cast and to authenticate when necessary the acts and proceedings of the House.

88. The Speaker shall decide all questions of order, subject to an appeal to the House. He may speak to questions of order in preference to other members, and may make the concluding speech on any appeal from his decision, notwithstanding he may have before spoken on the question; but no other member shall speak more than once on such appeal without leave of the House.

89. When properly requested by a member, he shall inform the House upon any point of order or practice pertinent to the business before it.

90. If any question be put upon a bill or resolution, the Speaker shall state the same, without argument.

91. If there be any disturbance or disorderly conduct in the lobby or gallery, the Speaker or Chairman of the Committee of the Whole may order the same to be cleared.

92. The Speaker, subject to the orders of the House, may assign convenient seats within the bar to stenographers and reporters wishing to take down the proceedings.

93. The Speaker may name any member to perform the duties of the Chair, but no one by virtue of such appointment, shall act as Speaker for more than three days.

94. If the Speaker be absent at the time appointed for the meeting of the House, it shall be called to order by the Clerk, and a Speaker pro tem. appointed by the House.

94-a. The Speaker, shall, as soon as practicable after his election, appoint for the House such number of Committee Clerks, Floor pages, Journal pages, and other attaches as the House may by resolution direct, and may at his discretion, remove any person so appointed and appoint another in his stead. He may also appoint, without resolution, a Private Secretary and a stenographer to himself.

The Clerk of the House of Delegates, in addition to the Assistant Clerks, provided for by section 18 of Chapter 12 of the Code, may appoint a stenographer to himself, and such other assistants as the House may by resolution direct, and shall have power at any time to remove such appointee from office and appoint others in their stead at his discretion.

All resolutions relating to the appointment of persons mentioned in this section, or prescribing the salary or pay of such persons, shall originate in and come from the Committee on Rules.

94-b. The Speaker may, from time to time, designate such times as he may deem necessary for the consideration of bills of a local nature, and such bills shall be placed in a special calendar.

VOTING.

95. On the passage of every bill, and when the yeas and nays on any question are called for by one-tenth of those present, the Speaker shall direct the roll to be called, and every member present shall answer Aye or No, when his name is called.

Before the result is announced the Clerk shall read to the House the names of those who voted in the affirmative, and then those who voted in the negative, at which time any member may correct a mistake committed in taking down his vote. The result shall then be announced, and the yeas and nays entered on the Journal, but if the House so order, the announcement of the result and the entry of the yeas and nays entered upon the Journal may be postponed to the succeeding day, with liberty to absent members, at any time before the result is announced by the Speaker, to appear and vote aye or no, in the presence of the House; and any member may in the presence of the House change his vote before the result is announced.

96. Upon calls of the House, in taking the yeas and nays, the names of the members shall be called alphabetically.

97. Every question shall be first put in the affirmative and then in the negative; each member present shall vote on every question, and the Speaker shall declare whether the yeas or nays have it, which declaration shall stand as the judgment of the House, unless a member call for a division, in which event the Speaker shall divide the House.

98. Every member within the bar, when a question is put, shall vote, unless he is immediately and particularly interested therein, or the House excuses him. A motion to excuse a member from voting must be made before the House divides, or before the call of the yeas and nays is commenced, and it shall be decided without debate, except that the member making the motion may briefly state the reason why, in his opinion, it ought to be adopted.

99. No member shall vote on any question in the result of which he is immediately and particularly interested; and, except in the case provided for in the ninety-fifth rule, no member shall vote if he was not within the bar when the question was put, unless leave be given him by the House.

a. Voting for officers.—Rule 48.

b. Voting on bills amended by Senate.—Rule 9.

RULES OF PRACTICE IN THE SUPREME COURT OF APPEALS OF WEST VIRGINIA.

In Effect April 1, 1916.

PRELIMINARY.

BILLS OF EXCEPTIONS.

1. Office and Contents. It is the office of a bill of exceptions to point out errors committed by the court during the progress of the trial. The bill or bills should contain only a concise statement of the facts necessary to present the points intended to be relied on as grounds of error, or only so much of the evidence as may appear necessary to present fairly the rulings of the court to which exception is taken. No bill of exceptions should contain matter irrelevant or unnecessary to the presentation of the question intended to be raised.

2. Points Must be Clearly Stated. It is the duty of the exceptor to see that the points and objections on which he relies are correctly and clearly stated, so as to show plainly that no erroneous ruling was made to his prejudice, and he should not leave that fact to appear merely by inference or conjecture.

3. Rulings on Evidence or Instructions. An exception to the admission or rejection of evidence or to the granting or refusal of instructions to the jury, should state only so much of the evidence or facts proven as may be necessary to show the relevancy or irrelevancy of such evidence or the pertinency or impertinency of such instruction. The judge of the trial court should require all unnecessary matter to be stricken out before signing a bill of exceptions.

PETITIONS.

1. Must Assign Errors—Not Argue the Case. A petition for an appeal or writ of error may briefly state the case and must assign errors, naming the particular decrees or judgments complained of and the date of their rendition, and in the prayer of the petition it should be stated whether or not a supersedeas is desired; but the case is not to be argued in the petition. A separate note of argument, setting forth the points and authorities relied on, shall be submitted with the petition, and will be considered by the court, but such note is not to be considered as a part of the petition or to be printed with it. A note of argument may be filed in opposition to such petition.

2. Certificate of Counsel. The petition must be accompanied by the certificate of some attorney duly qualified to practice in this court that in his opinion the decree or judgment complained of ought to be reviewed.

3. Names of Parties to be Summoned. It is also recommended to counsel presenting petitions, that they furnish to the clerk a memorandum of the names of parties to be summoned to answer the appeal or writ of error.

4. Status of Question or Questions Certified. No question or questions shall be certified under the provisions of section one of chapter one hundred and thirty-five of the Code, as amended by chapter sixty-nine of the Acts of the Legislature of 1915, until after decision thereof by the trial court, and such decision shall be certified with the question or questions.

5. Form of Certificate for Cases Certified. The certificate of all questions arising upon the sufficiency of a summons, or return of service, or as to the sufficiency of a pleading, certified pursuant to section one of chapter one hundred and thirty-five of the Code, as amended by chapter sixty-nine of the Acts of the Legislature of 1915, shall be in form or effect following:

RULE II.

DOCKETING AND PROCESS.

1. Notice to Court Below and Summons. When an appeal or writ of error has been awarded, it shall be the duty of the clerk to notify the clerk of the court below of the fact of such allowance and of the penalty of the bond necessary to give effect to such appeal or writ of error when such bond is required, and the clerk of this court shall thereupon docket the case and issue process in accordance with the order of the court, summoning all parties other than the petitioner or petitioners.

2. Non-resident Parties. Whenever it is necessary that a non-resident party should be summoned to answer an appeal or writ of error, or have notice for any other purpose, order of publication may be had in the manner prescribed by law, which order shall be published once a week for four successive weeks in some newspaper published at the seat of government.

RULE III.

PRINTING THE RECORD.

1. Dismissal for Failure to Print. If the appellant or plaintiff in error, except in cases of felony, shall fail to deposit with the clerk of this court within six months after the case has been docketed herein, a sum sufficient to pay for printing the transcript of the record, or shall fail to have the transcript of the record printed and eighteen copies thereof filed in the clerk's office within six months after the case has been docketed in this court, the appeal or writ of error shall be dismissed.

2. How Procured. To procure such dismissal, the appellee or defendant in error must serve upon the opposite party, within reasonable time, a written notice that he will, on a day specified, move the court to dismiss the case, and set forth in such notice the grounds of the said motion. The motion may be made on any day when the court is open whether in regular or special term.

3. Costs. But if, when the motion is made, the record has been already printed or the cost of such printing deposited with the clerk and no actual delay in the hearing of the cause has resulted from the failure to print the record or make such deposit within the six months allowed by law the dismissal will be without costs, otherwise costs will be awarded against the party in default.

4. Renewal. An appeal or writ of error dismissed in accordance with this rule may be renewed upon presenting a new petition reciting the fact of the former petition and allowance and dismissal and referring to the assignments of error contained in the former petition, if the same be presented within one year from the date of the decree or judgment appealed from, and new process will be ordered and a new bond must be given.

RULE IV.

ARGUMENT DOCKET.

1. How Arranged. Sixty days before the first day of each regular term, or of any special term at which an argument docket may be ordered, the clerk shall prepare a list of the cases then ready and ordered to be heard, and distribute the printed lists to counsel of record in each case.

2. Docketing of Cases Certified. At the time of preparing the docket of any regular or of any special term, the clerk shall also make a docket of all cases certified for decision pursuant to section one, of chapter one hundred and thirty-five of the Code, as amended by chapter sixty-nine of the Acts of the Legislature of 1915, and as to which notice has been given, as prescribed by the next section, which shall be given precedence over all other cases, and next after cases upon original jurisdiction begun in the Supreme Court of Appeals:

3. When Notice is Necessary. In all cases (except those of felony, and cases certified pursuant to section one of chapter one hundred and thirty-five of the Code) when the record has been printed since the last preceding regular term of court, the party desiring a hearing must give notice to the opposite party of his intention to insist upon a hearing at the next regular term, at least sixty days before the first day of such term, and no case will be placed on the argument list and deemed ready for hearing until the second term after the record has been printed unless the notice above mentioned has been given and returned to the clerk's office sixty days before the term.

4. Copy of Bond. No case in which an appeal or supersedeas bond is required shall be placed upon the argument docket until the clerk shall have received a duly attested copy of such bond.

5. Appellee May Expedite Hearing. An appellee or defendant in error desiring to expedite the hearing of his case may have the record printed at his own expense and give the notice required by section three of this rule, and the costs of such printing will, when the case is decided, be taxed among the costs incurred by such appellee or defendant in error, provided the appellant or plaintiff in error does not dismiss his appeal before hearing.

6. Felony Cases. When a writ of error has been allowed in the case of a party convicted of a felony, the clerk shall cause the record to be printed with all convenient dispatch, and the case will be called for hearing at the next regular term of court, wherever it may be held, without notice or consent being required, provided the record has been printed sixty days before the hearing.

7. Cases Certified. The record of cases certified for decision pursuant to section one of chapter one hundred and thirty-five of the Code, need not be printed, unless by order of the court; and without further notice the cases will be called for hearing at the next regular or special term for which they are docketed pursuant to section two hereof.

8. Postponement of Docket. The court will postpone, on its own motion, any docket or portion thereof to a day or days later in the term than that or those for which it has been set for hearing, or to a later term, regular or special, whenever, in its opinion, the public interests require such action; and, in such case, the clerk will give notice of the postponement to the attorneys of record of all parties interested.

RULE V.

BRIEFS.

1. Time of Filing. In any case on appeal or writ of error, the counsel for the appellant or plaintiff in error, at least thirty days, and counsel for the appellee or defendant in error, at least ten days, before a case is called for hearing, shall file with the clerk of this court not less than ten copies of a printed brief, one of which copies shall, upon request, be furnished to each of the counsel engaged upon the opposite side. All reply and supplemental briefs shall be filed at least five days before a case is called for hearing, and no brief shall be filed later unless by consent of counsel. It is also desired by the court that counsel upon each side will furnish promptly to counsel on the opposing side their respective briefs as soon as printed, but their doing so will not obviate the requirement of this rule as to filing copies in the office of the clerk, and it is recommended that the printed brief shall correspond in size of page with the printed record, and bear the same docket number.

2. Form and Contents of Appellant's Brief. The brief of appellant shall contain a short and clear statement disclosing:

First. The kind of action or suit, and a closely condensed statement, without argument or quotation of evidence, of all facts necessary to determination of the points in controversy.

Second. What the issues were and how raised.

Third. How the issues were decided, and what the judgment or decree was.

Fourth. The errors relied upon for reversal.

Fifth. A concise statement of so much of the record as fully presents every error and exception relied on, referring to the pages of the record. If the insufficiency of the evidence to sustain the verdict or finding, in fact or law, is assigned, the statement shall contain a condensed recital of the evidence in narrative form so as to present the substance clearly and concisely. The statement will be taken to be accurate and sufficient for a full understanding of the questions presented for decision, unless the opposite party in his brief shall make the necessary corrections or additions.

Following this statement, the brief shall contain, under a separate heading of each error relied on, separately numbered propositions or points, stated concisely, and without argument or elaboration, together with the authorities relied on in support of them; and in citing cases, the names of the parties must be given, with the book and page where reported. No alleged error or point, not contained in this statement of points, shall be raised afterwards, either by reply brief, or in oral or plumed argument, or on petition for rehearing, but the court, at its option, may notice a plain error not assigned or specified.

3. Form and Contents of Appellee's Brief. The brief of appellee on the assignment of errors shall point out any omissions or inaccuracies in appellant's statement of the record, and shall contain a short and clear statement of the propositions by which counsel seek to meet the alleged errors and sustain the judgment or decree, or by which such errors are obviated. Following this statement, the brief shall contain the points and authorities relied on in like manner as required in the appellant's brief. The brief of appellee on cross-errors shall be prepared in the manner required in the case of appellant's brief. The brief of appellant, in answer to the cross-assignment of errors, shall be prepared in the manner required of appellees in answer to the assignment of errors. Reply briefs shall be prepared in like manner to answer briefs.

4. Argument. The briefs of any party may be followed by an argument in support of such briefs, which shall be distinct therefrom, but shall be bound with the same. The argument shall be confined to discussion and elaboration of the points contained in the briefs. The names of counsel shall be affixed to all briefs filed by them.

5. Non-Compliance—Effect of.—The court on its own motion may refuse to allow submission of any case, until the briefs of the party demanding it, complying with this rule in respect to form and contents, shall have been filed, and may also strike out on submission, briefs not complying therewith.

6. Control of Case. Either party whose brief has been filed in compliance with the rule may insist upon a hearing when the case is regularly called although no brief shall have been filed by the opposite party, and when one party has complied with the rule and the other has not, the party complying with the rule may have the case either submitted or continued at his option. If one of the parties omits to file such brief at or before the hearing, he cannot be heard, but the case may be submitted or heard ex-parte upon the argument of one counsel only for the party by whom the brief has been duly filed.

7. Continuance for Non-Compliance—No Briefs After Submission. If no printed brief has been filed by either party within the time prescribed by this rule, the case will be continued when called, unless both parties are present in court, by counsel, with their respective briefs, and consent to submit the case with or without oral argument, or file an agreement in writing to submit, but in no case can briefs be filed after the case is submitted.

8. Submission in Absence of Counsel. It is not always necessary for counsel to appear in court in person in order to have a case submitted for judgment by the court: when the party desiring the submission of a case has filed his brief in compliance with the rule, he may by written request addressed to the court or to the clerk have his case submitted when called.

9. Cases Certified—Motions to Dismiss, etc.—How Submitted. All cases certified for decision pursuant to the last paragraph of section one of chapter one hundred and thirty-five of the Code, as amended by chapter sixty-nine of the Acts of the Legislature of 1915, shall, in the first instance, be submitted on typewritten or printed briefs, or arguments, filed in the clerk's office at least five days before the case is set for hearing; and in no case, unless the court so order, will counsel be heard orally thereon. And this rule as to briefs and oral arguments shall apply to all motions to dismiss, affirm, modify or reverse, made pursuant to section twenty-six of said chapter one hundred and thirty-five of the Code, as amended by said chapter sixty-nine of the Acts of the Legislature of 1915.

RULE VI.

CALLING THE DOCKET.

1. When Commenced. On the second day of each regular term the court will commence to call the cases then ready for hearing in the order in which they stand upon the printed list, and will proceed from day to day in the same order until all of the cases have been called.

2. How many Cases to be Called. Not more than ten cases shall be considered liable to be called on any one day, including the one if any, that may be under argument. No case shall be taken up out of the order of the docket except when briefs have been filed on both sides and the parties consent to submit the case without oral argument.

3. Set for Hearing. No case shall be set for hearing on any other day than those assigned to the circuit from which the case comes unless it be such as from its peculiar character or the mandate of the law may be regarded as a privileged case.

4. Exceptional Cases. Cases of general public interest or of peculiar hardship may be heard at a special term according to the provisions of sec. 13 of chap. 156, Acts of 1882, under such conditions and regulations as may be consented to by the parties or as the court may prescribe.

5. Agreement of Counsel. All agreements of counsel in regard to any case or matter pending in court shall be reduced to writing, signed by counsel and delivered to the clerk.

6. Re-argument. Whenever the court desires further argument in any case which has been argued and submitted, it will fix a day therefor, and cause notice of the time and place, as well as of the subject or branch of the case, on which argument is desired, to be given to counsel.

RULE VII.

CERTIORARI.

1. How Obtained. No certiorari for diminution of the record shall be awarded unless a motion therefor shall be made in writing, stating the facts on which the motion is founded, and all motions for such certiorari should be made at the earliest period possible after the diminution is discovered, either in regular or special term.

2. When to be Printed. If the necessity for such certiorari is caused by the failure of the appellant or plaintiff in error to have enough of the record brought up to present fairly both sides of all errors complained of by him, it shall be his duty to have the additional record printed, or in default thereof, his appeal or writ of error may be dismissed: otherwise such additional record shall be printed at the expense of the party asking for the certiorari, but when, in either case, the additional record brought up does not exceed ten pages of manuscript, it need not be printed unless so ordered by the court.

RULE VIII.

MOTIONS AND AFFIDAVITS.

1. Must be in Writing. All motions, except motions of course, made to the court, shall be reduced to writing and shall contain a brief statement of the facts and objects of the motion. A motion to dismiss, affirm, modify or reverse, made pursuant to section 26 of chapter one hundred and thirty-five of the Code, as amended by chapter sixty-nine of the Acts of the Legislature of 1915, shall state the points on which it is based, and notice thereof stating such grounds shall be served on the opposite party or parties and returned to the clerk's office at least thirty days before the day to which the notice is returnable.

2. Notice to be Given. No affidavits shall be read in support of or in opposition to any motion hereafter made to the court unless reasonable notice be given to the opposite party or his attorney of the time and place of taking the same. or good cause be shown why such notice has not been given and every motion which is not a motion of course, shall be supported by affidavit.

RULE IX.

ORAL ARGUMENT.

1. How Many May be Heard. Only two counsel shall be heard on each side in the argument of any case unless by special leave of court, and the counsel for the appellant or the plaintiff in error shall be entitled to open and conclude the argument.

2. Time Allowed. Forty-five minutes only shall be allowed to the appellant or plaintiff in error for the opening and conclusion, and thirty minutes to the appellee or defendant in error for his reply, but by special leave of the court granted before the argument begins, a longer time may be allowed to each side. The time allowed may be apportioned between the counsel on the same side at their discretion. But in all cases a fair opening of the case shall be made by the party entitled to the opening and concluding arguments.

3. Who to be Deemed Counsel. The attorneys of the respective parties in the court below shall be deemed to be the attorneys of the same parties in this court until others have been retained and have notified the clerk of this court of that fact.

4. Record. In no case is it proper or necessary to consume the time allowed for argument by reading the record to the court, but counsel may refer thereto and state what they consider as proven by any exhibit or deposition on which they rely.

5. Commissioner's Report. No oral argument will be permitted upon exceptions to a commissioner's report except upon pure questions of law and without reference to details of evidence.

RULE X.

CROSS ASSIGNMENT OF ERROR.

1. When to be Considered. In any appeal or writ of error, if error is perceived against the appellee or defendant in error, the court will consider the whole record as being before it, and will reverse the proceedings, either in whole or in part, and in the same manner as it would were the appellee or defendant in error to assign errors and bring the case before the court, unless such error be waived by the party prejudiced thereby, which waiver shall be considered as a release of all error committed against him. It is, however, advisable for the appellee or defendant in error, if he is of opinion that there is error in the record to his prejudice, to call attention to the same by a formal counter-assignment of error, filed at the hearing of the case, or by pointing out and complaining of the same in his brief.

RULE XI.

ABANDONED CASES.

1. When to be Dismissed. When a case has been called for argument at four successive regular terms, and upon the call at the fourth term neither party is prepared to argue the same, the case shall be considered as abandoned and shall be dismissed at the costs of the appellant or plaintiff in error unless sufficient cause be shown for further continuance.

2. Reinstatement. No appeal or writ of error which shall have been dismissed or abated by the court, shall be reinstated or revived after the close of the next regular term after such dismissal or abatement.

RULE XII.

REHEARING.

1. How Obtained. All petitions for rehearing must be filed not later than thirty days from the date of the decision complained of therein, and no petition for a rehearing will be entertained by the court in any case unless the reasons therefor are printed and filed with the petition. No oral arguments will be permitted upon any application for a rehearing. When a rehearing is allowed, the court may fix the time for re-argument and re-submission, notice of which shall be given by the clerk to the attorneys of record, but, in case it fails to fix such time the clerk shall enter the case upon the docket as if it had never been heard.

RULE XIII.

INDEX TO RECORDS.

1. Must be Indexed. In making transcripts of records for appeal and writs of error, the clerks of any court making such transcript, shall annex thereto, a complete index, giving pages of the record on which its chief component parts are to be found, including the pages where the deposition of each witness appears in such record.

RULE XIV.

OFFICERS OF COURT.

1. Accounts. The officers attending this court and receiving an allowance per diem therefor, shall, at the end of each term, furnish an account of the number of days so employed, verifying their accounts by affidavit, and orders of allowance will then be made by the court and certified to the Auditor of State, but such accounts will not be considered or allowed before the close of the term.

RULE XV.

REPORTS.

1. Arguments to be Omitted. In publishing the opinions of this court, the reporter shall not publish the arguments of counsel, but he shall report the names of counsel on each side, and when the counsel on the side adverse to the decision of the court shall furnish to him the points and authorities relied on, clearly and briefly stated, he may publish in the report such points and authorities; but in no case shall such points and authorities occupy more than one page of the printed report unless express authority therefor be given by the court.

RULE XVI.

ORIGINAL PAPERS.

1. Not to be Withdrawn. No transcript of record, petition or other original paper or opinion of the court, shall be withdrawn from the custody of the clerk of this court unless upon motion made in court for this purpose and upon order of court permitting such withdrawal, except as provided in section 19, chapter 167, Acts of 1882.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL PLATFORM 1912.

(Adopted at a Convention held at Chicago, June 18, 1912.)

The Republican Party, assembled by its representatives in national convention, declares its unchanging faith in government of the people, by the people for the people. We renew our allegiance to the principles of the Republican Party and our devotion to the cause of Republican institutions established by the fathers.

It is appropriate that we should now recall with a sense of veneration and gratitude the name of our first great leader, who was nominated in this city, and whose lofty principles and superb devotion to his country are an inspiration to the party he honored—Abraham Lincoln.

In the present state of public affairs we should be inspired by his broad statesmanship and by his tolerant spirit toward men.

The Republican Party looks back upon its record with pride and satisfaction, and forward to its new responsibilities with hope and confidence. Its achievements in government constitute the most luminous pages in our history.

Our greatest national advance has been made during the years of its ascendancy in public affairs. It has been genuinely and always a party of progress; it has never been either stationary or reactionary. It has gone from the fulfillment of one great pledge to the fulfillment of another in response to the public need and to the popular will.

We believe in our self-controlled representative democracy, which is a government of laws, not of men, and in which order is the prerequisite of progress.

The principles of constitutional government, which make provision for orderly and effective expression of the popular will, for the protection of civil liberty and the rights of men, and for the interpretation of the law by an untrammelled and independent judiciary, have proved themselves capable of sustaining the structure of a government which, after more than a century of development, embraces 100,000,000 of people, scattered over a wide and diverse territory, but bound by common purpose, common ideals and common affection to the constitution of the United States.

Under the constitution and the principles asserted and vitalized by it, the United States has grown to be one of the great civilized and civilizing powers of the earth. It offers a home and an opportunity to the ambitious and the industrious from other lands.

Resting upon the broad basis of a people's confidence and a people's support, and managed by the people themselves, the government of the United States will meet the problems of the future as satisfactorily as it has solved those of the past.

The Republican Party is now, as always, a party of advanced and constructive statesmanship. It is prepared to go forward with the solution of those new questions which social, economic and political development have brought into the forefront of the nation's interests.

It will strive, not only in the nation but in the several states, to enact the necessary legislation to safeguard the public health; to limit effectively the labor of women and children; to protect wage earners engaged in dangerous occupations; to enact comprehensive and generous workmen's compensation laws in place of the present wasteful and unjust system of employers' liability, and in all possible ways to satisfy the just demand of the people for the study and solution of the complex and constantly changing problems of social welfare.

In dealing with these questions, it is important that the rights of every individual to the freest possible development of his own powers and resources and to the control of his own justly acquired property, so far as those are compatible with the rights of others, shall not be interfered with or destroyed.

The social and political structure of the United States rests upon the civil liberty of the individual, and for the protection of that liberty the people have wisely, in the national and state constitutions, put definite limitations upon themselves and upon their governmental officers and agencies.

To enforce these limitations, to secure the orderly and coherent exercise of governmental powers, and to protect the rights of even the humblest and least favored individuals are the functions of independent courts of justice.

The Republican Party reaffirms its intention to uphold at all times the authority and integrity of the courts, both state and federal, and it will ever insist that their powers to enforce their process and to protect life, liberty and property shall be preserved inviolate.

An orderly method is provided under our system of government by which the people may, when they choose, alter or amend the constitutional provisions which underlie that government.

Until these constitutional provisions are so altered or amended, in orderly fashion, it is the duty of the courts to see to it that when challenged they are enforced.

That the courts, both the federal and state, may bear the heavy burden laid upon them to the complete satisfaction of public opinion, we favor legislation to prevent long delays and the tedious and costly appeals, which have so often amounted to a denial of justice in civil cases and to a failure to protect the public at large in criminal cases.

Since the responsibility of the judiciary is so great, the standards of judicial action must be always and everywhere above suspicion and reproach.

While we regard the recall of judges as unnecessary and unwise, we favor such action as may be necessary to simplify the process by which any judge who is found to be derelict in his duty may be removed from office.

Together with peaceful and orderly development at home, the Republican Party earnestly favors all measures for the establishment and protection of the peace of the world and for the development of closer relations between the various nations of the earth.

It believes most earnestly in the peaceful settlement of international disputes and in the reference of all justicable controversies between nations to an international court of justice.

MONOPOLY AND PRIVILEGE.

The Republican Party is opposed to special privilege and monopoly. It placed upon the statute books the interstate commerce act of 1887, and the important amendments thereto, and the anti-trust act of 1890, and it has consistently and successfully enforced the provisions of these laws.

It will take no backward step to permit the re-establishment in any degree of conditions which were intolerable.

Experience makes it plain that the business of the country may be carried on without fear or without disturbance and at the same time without resort to practice which are abhorrent to the common sense of justice.

The Republican Party favors the enactment of legislation supplementary to the existing anti-trust act which will define as criminal offenses those specific acts that uniformly mark attempts to restrain and to monopolize trade, to the end that those who honestly intend to obey the law may have guide for their action and that those who aim to violate the law may the more surely be punished.

The same certainty should be given to the law prohibiting combinations and monopolies that characterize other provisions of commercial law in order that no part of the field of business opportunity may be restricted by monopoly or combination, that business success honorably achieved may not be converted into crime and that the right of every man to acquire commodities, and particularly the necessaries of life, in an open market uninfluenced by the manipulation of trust or combination may be preserved.

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION.

In the enforcement and administration of federal laws governing interstate commerce and enterprises impressed with a public use engaged therein, there is much that may be committed to a federal trade commission, thus placing in the hands of an administration board many of the functions now necessarily exercised by the courts.

This will promote promptness in the administration of the law and avoid delays and technicalities incident to court procedure.

THE TARIFF.

We reaffirm our belief in a protective tariff. The Republican tariff policy has been of the greatest benefit to the country, developing our resources, diversifying our industries and protecting our workmen against competition with cheaper labor abroad, thus establishing for our wage earners the American standard of living.

The protective tariff is so woven into the fabric of our industrial and agricultural life that to substitute for it a tariff for revenue only would destroy many industries and throw millions of our people out of employment. The products of the farm and of the mine should receive the same measure of protection as other products of American labor.

We hold that the import duties should be high enough, while yielding a sufficient revenue, to protect adequately American industries and wages. Some of the existing import duties are too high, and should be reduced. Readjustment should be made from time to time to conform to changed conditions and to reduce excessive rates, but without injury to any American industry.

To accomplish this, correct information is indispensable. This information can best be obtained by an expert commission, as the large volume of useful facts contained in the recent reports of the tariff board has demonstrated.

The pronounced feature of modern industrial life is its enormous diversification. To apply tariff rates justly to these changing conditions requires closer study and more scientific methods than ever before. The Republican party has shown by its creation of a tariff board, its recognition of this situation, and its determination to be equal to it.

We condemn the Democratic Party for its failure either to provide funds for the continuance of this board or to make some other provision for securing the information requisite for intelligent tariff legislation. We protest against the democratic method of legislating on these vitally important subjects without careful investigation.

We condemn the democratic tariff bills passed by the house of representatives of the Sixty-second congress as sectional, as injurious to the public credit and as destructive of business enterprise.

COST OF LIVING.

The steadily increasing cost of living has become a matter not only of national but of world wide concern. The fact that it is not due to the protective tariff system is evidenced by the existence of similar conditions in countries which have a tariff policy different from our own, as well as by the fact that the cost of living has increased while rates of duty have remained stationary or been reduced.

The Republican Party will support a prompt, scientific inquiry into the causes which are operative, both in the United States and elsewhere, to increase the cost of living.

When the exact facts are known it will take the necessary steps to remove any abuses that may be found to exist, in order that the cost of the food, clothing and shelter of the people may in no way be unduly or artificially increased.

BANKING AND CURRENCY.

The Republican Party has always stood for a sound currency and for safe banking methods. It is responsible for the resumption of specie payments and for the establishment of the gold standard. It is committed to the progressive development of our banking and currency system.

Our banking arrangements today need further revision to meet the requirements of current conditions. We need measures which will prevent the recurrence of money panics and financial disturbances and which will promote the prosperity of business and the welfare of labor by producing constant employment.

We need better currency facilities for the movement of crops in the west and south. We need banking arrangements under American auspices for the encouragement and better conduct of our foreign trade.

In attaining these ends the independence of individual banks, whether organized under national or state charters, must be carefully protected and our banking and currency system must be safeguarded from any possibility of domination by sectional, financial or political interests.

It is of great importance to the social and economic welfare of this country that its farmers have facilities for borrowing easily and cheaply the money they need to increase the productivity of their land. It is as important that financial machinery be provided to supply the demand of farmers for credit as it is that the banking and currency systems be reformed in the interest of general business.

Therefore, we recommend and urge an authoritative investigation of agricultural credit societies and corporations in other countries and the passage of state and federal laws for the establishment and capable supervision of organizations having for their purpose the loaning of funds to farmers.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

We reaffirm our adherence to the principle of appointment to public office based on proved fitness and tenure during good behavior and efficiency.

The Republican Party stands committed to the maintenance, extension and enforcement of the civil service law, and it favors the passage of legislation empowering the president to extend the competitive service as far as practicable.

We favor legislation to make possible the equitable retirement of disabled and superannuated members of the civil service, in order that a higher standard of efficiency may be maintained.

We favor the amendment of the federal employes' liability law so as to extend its provisions to all government employes as well as to provide a more liberal scale of compensation for injury and death.

CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS.

We favor such additional legislation as may be necessary more effectually to prohibit corporations from contributing funds, directly or indirectly, to campaigns for the nomination or election of the president, the vice president, senators and representatives in congress.

We heartily approve the recent act of congress requiring the fullest publicity in regard to all campaign contributions, whether made in connection with primaries, conventions or elections.

CONSERVATION POLICY.

We rejoice in the success of the distinctive republican policy of the conservation of our national resources, for their use by the people without waste and without monopoly. We pledge ourselves to a continuance of such a policy.

We favor such fair and reasonable rules and regulations as will not discourage or interfere with actual bona fide homeseekers, prospectors and miners in the acquisition of public lands under existing laws.

PARCELS POST.

In the interest of the general public, and particularly of the agricultural or rural communities, we favor legislation looking to the establishment, under proper regulations, of a parcels post, the postal rates to be graduated under a zone similar in proportion to the length of carriage.

PROTECTION OF AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP.

We approve the action taken by the president and the congress to secure with Russia, as with other countries, a treaty that will recognize the absolute right of expatriation, and that will prevent all discrimination of whatever kind between American citizens, whether native born or alien and regardless of race, religion or previous political allegiance.

The right of asylum is a precious possession of the people of the United States, and it is to be neither surrendered nor restricted.

THE NAVY.

We believe in the maintenance of an adequate navy for the national defense, and we condemn the action of the democratic house of representatives in refusing to authorize the construction of additional ships.

MERCHANT MARINE.

We believe that one of the country's most urgent needs is a revived merchant marine. There should be American ships and plenty of them, to make use of the great American interoceanic canal now nearing completion.

MISSISSIPPI VALLEY FLOOD PREVENTION.

The Mississippi river is the nation's drainage ditch. Its flood waters, gather from thirty-one states and the Dominion of Canada, constitute an overpowering force which breaks the levees and pours its torrents over many million acres of the richest land in the union, stopping mails, impeding commerce and causing great loss of life and property.

These floods are national in scope and the disasters they produce seriously affect the general welfare. The states unaided cannot cope with this giant problem; hence we believe the federal government should assume a fair proportion of the burden of its control so as to prevent the disasters from recurring floods.

RECLAMATION.

We favor the continuance of the policy of the government with regard to the reclamation of arid land, and for the encouragement of the speedy settlement and improvement of such lands we favor an amendment to the law that will reasonably extend the time within which the cost of any reclamation may be repaid by the land owners under it.

RIVERS AND HARBORS.

We favor a liberal and systematic policy for the improvement of our rivers and harbors. Such improvements should be made upon expert information and after a careful comparison of cost and prospective benefits.

ALASKA.

We favor a liberal policy toward Alaska to promote the development of the great resources of that district, with such safeguards as will prevent waste and monopoly.

We favor the opening of the coal lands to development through a law leasing the lands on such terms as will invite development and provide fuel for the navy and the commerce of the Pacific ocean, while retaining title in the United States to prevent monopoly.

PHILIPPINE POLICY

The Philippine policy of the republican party has been and is inspired by the belief that our duty toward the Filipino should remain entirely free from partisan politics.

IMMIGRATION.

We pledge the Republican Party to the enactment of appropriate laws to give relief from the constantly growing evil of induced or undesirable immigration which is inimical to the progress and welfare of the people of the United States.

SAFETY AT SEA.

We favor the speedy enactment of laws to provide that seaman shall not be compelled to endure involuntary servitude and that life and property at sea shall be safeguarded by the ample equipment of vessels with life-saving appliances and with full complements of skilled, able-bodied seamen to operate them.

REPUBLICAN ACCOMPLISHMENT.

The approaching completion of the Panama canal, the establishment of a bureau of mines, the institution of postal savings banks, the increased provision made in 1912 for the aged and infirm soldiers and sailors of the republic and for their widows, and the vigorous administration of the laws relating to pure food and drugs, all mark the successful progress of republican administration, and are additional evidence of its effectiveness.

ECONOMY AND EFFICIENCY.

We commend the earnest effort of the republican administration to secure greater economy and increased efficiency in the conduct of government business. Extravagant appropriations and the creation of unnecessary officers are an injustice to the taxpayer and a bad example to the citizen.

CIVIC DUTY.

We call upon the people to quicken their interest in public affairs, to condemn and punish lynching and other forms of lawlessness, and to strengthen in all possible ways a respect for law and the observance of it.

Indifferent citizenship is an evil from which the law affords no adequate protection and for which legislation can provide no remedy.

ARIZONA AND NEW MEXICO.

We congratulate the people of Arizona and New Mexico upon the admission of those states, thus merging in the union in final and enduring form the last remaining portion of our continental territory.

PORTO RICO.

We ratify in all its particulars the platform of 1908 respecting citizenship for the people of Porto Rico.

REPUBLICAN ADMINISTRATION.

We challenge successful criticism of the sixteen years of republican administration under President McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft. We heartily reaffirm the indorsement of President McKinley contained in the platforms of 1900 and 1904 and that of President Roosevelt contained in the platforms of 1904 and 1908.

We invite the intelligent judgment of the American people upon the administration of William H. Taft. The country has prospered and been at peace under his presidency

During the years in which he had the cooperation of a republican congress an unexampled amount of constructive legislation was framed and passed in the interest of the people and in obedience to their wish. That legislation is a record on which any administration might appeal with confidence to the favorable judgment of history.

We appeal to the American electorate upon the record of the republican party, and upon this declaration of its principles and purposes.

We are confident that under the leadership of the candidates here to be nominated our appeal will not be in vain; that the republican party will meet every just expectation of the people, whose servant it is; that under its administration and its by-laws our nation will continue to advance; that peace and prosperity will abide with the people and that new glory will be added to the great republic.

DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL PLATFORM 1912.

(Adopted at a Convention held at Baltimore, June 25, 1912.)

We, the representatives of the democratic party of the United States, in national convention assembled, reaffirm our devotion to the principles of the democratic government formulated by Thomas Jefferson and enforced by a long and illustrious line of democratic presidents.

TARIFF REFORM.

We declare it to be a fundamental principle of the democratic party that the federal government under the constitution has no right or power to impose or collect tariff duties except for the purpose of revenue, and we demand that the collection of such taxes shall be limited to the necessities of government, honestly and economically administered.

We favor the immediate downward revision of the existing high, and in many cases, prohibitive tariff duties, insisting that material reductions be speedily made upon the necessities of life. Articles entering into competition with trust controlled products and articles of American manufacture which are sold abroad more cheaply than at home, should be put upon the free list.

We recognize that our system of tariff taxation is intimately connected with the business of the country, and we favor the ultimate attainment of the principles we advocate by legislation that will not injure or destroy legitimate industry.

We denounce the action of President Taft in vetoing the bills to reduce the tariff in the cotton, woolen, metals and chemical schedules and the enormous free list, all of which were designed to give immediate relief to the masses from the exactions of the trusts.

The republican party while promising tariff revision, has shown by its tariff legislation that such revision is not to be in the people's interest, and having been faithless to its pledges of 1908, it should no longer enjoy the confidence of the nation. We appeal to the American people to support us in our demand for a tariff for revenue only.

HIGH COST OF LIVING.

The high cost of living is a serious problem in every American home. The Republican party in its platform attempts to escape from responsibility for present conditions by denying that they are due to a protective tariff. We take issue with them on this subject and charge that excessive prices result in a large measure from the high tariff laws enacted and maintained by the republican party and from trusts and commercial conspiracies fostered and encouraged by such laws, and we assert that no substantial relief can be secured for the people until import duties on the necessities of life are materially reduced and these criminal conspiracies broken up.

ANTI-TRUST LAW.

A private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable. We therefore favor the vigorous enforcement of the criminal as well as the civil law against trust and trust officials, and demand the enactment of such additional legislation as may be necessary to make it impossible for a private monopoly to exist in the United States. We favor the declaration by law of the conditions upon which corporations shall be permitted to engage in interstate trade, including among others the prevention of holding companies, of interlocking directors, of stock watering, of discrimination in prices and the control by any one corporation of so large a proportion of any industry as to make it a menace to competitive conditions.

We condemn the action of the republican administration in compromising with the Standard Oil Company and the tobacco trust, and its failure to invoke criminal provisions of the anti-trust law against the officers of those corporations after the court had declared that from the undisputed facts in the record they had violated the criminal provisions of the law.

We regret that the Sherman anti-trust law has received a judicial construction depriving it of much of its efficacy and we favor the enactment of legislation which will restore to the statute the strength of which it was deprived by such interpretation.

RIGHTS OF THE STATE.

We believe in the preservation and maintenance in their full strength and integrity of the three co-ordinate branches of the federal government—the executive, the legislative and the judicial—each keeping within its own bounds and not encroaching upon the just powers of either of the others. Believing that the most efficient results under our system of government are to be attained by the full exercise by the states of their reserved sovereign powers, we denounce as usurpation the efforts of our opponents to deprive the states of any of the rights reserved by them, and to enlarge and magnify by indirection the powers of the federal government.

We insist upon the full exercise of all the powers of the government, both state and national, to protect the people from injustice at the hands of those who seek to make the government a private asset in business. There is no twilight zone between the nation and the state in which exploiting interests can take refuge from both. It is as necessary that the federal government exercise the powers reserved to it as it is for the states the powers reserved to them, but we insist that federal remedies for the regulation of interstate commerce, and for the prevention of private monopoly, shall be added to and not substituted for state remedies.

INCOME TAX AND POPULAR ELECTION OF SENATORS.

We congratulate the country upon the triumph of two important reforms demanded in the last national platform, namely, the amendment of the federal constitution authorizing an income tax, and the amendment providing for the popular election of senators, and we call upon the people of all the states to rally to the support of the pending propositions and secure their ratification.

We note with gratification the unanimous sentiment in favor of publicity before the election of campaign contributions—a measure demanded in our national platform of 1908, and at that time opposed by the republican party—and we commend the democratic house of representatives for extending the doctrine of publicity to recommendations, verbal and written, upon which presidential appointments are made, to the ownership and control of newspapers; and to the expenditures made by and on behalf of those who aspire to presidential nominations, and we point for additional justification for this legislation to the enormous expenditures in behalf of the president and his predecessor in the recent contest for the republican nomination for president.

PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARIES.

The movement towards more popular government should be promoted through legislation in each state which will permit the expression of the preference of the electors for national candidates at presidential primaries.

We direct that the national committee incorporate in the call for the next nominating convention a requirement that all expressions of preference for presidential candidates shall be given and the selection of delegates and alternates made through a primary election conducted by the party organization in each state where such expression and election are not provided for by state laws. Committeemen who are hereafter to constitute the membership of the democratic national committee and whose election is not provided for by law shall be chosen in each state at such primary elections and the service and authority of committeemen, however chosen, shall begin immediately upon the receipt of their credentials respectively.

CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS.

We pledge the democratic party to the enactment of a law prohibiting any corporation from contributing to a campaign fund and any individual from contributing any amount above a reasonable maximum.

TERM OF PRESIDENT.

We favor a single presidential term and to that end urge the adoption of an amendment to the constitution making the president of the United States ineligible for re-election, and we pledge the candidate of this convention to this principle.

DEMOCRATIC CONGRESS.

At this time, when the republican party after a generation of unlimited power in its control of the federal government is rent into factions, it is opportune to point to the record of accomplishments of the democratic house of representatives in the Sixty-second congress. We endorse its action and we challenge comparison of its record with that of any congress which has been controlled by our opponents.

We call the attention of the patriotic citizens of our country to its record of efficiency, economy and constructive legislation.

It has, among other achievements, revised the rules of the house of representatives so as to give the representatives of the American people freedom of speech and action in advocating, proposing and perfecting remedial legislation.

It has passed bills for the relief of the people and the development of our country; it has endeavored to revise the tariff taxes downward in the interest of the consuming masses and thus to reduce the high cost of living.

It has proposed an addition to the federal constitution providing for the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people.

It has secured the admission of Arizona and New Mexico as two sovereign states.

It has required the publicity of campaign expenses both before and after election and fixed a limit upon the election expenses of United States senators and representatives. It has also passed a bill to prevent the abuse of the writ of injunction.

It has passed a law establishing an eight hour day for workingmen on all national public work.

It has passed a resolution which forced the president to take immediate steps to abrogate the Russian treaty.

And it has passed the great supply bills which lessen waste and extravagance and which reduce the annual expenses of the government by many millions of dollars.

We approve the measure reported by the democratic leaders in the house of representatives for the creation of a council of national defense which will determine a definite national programme with a view to increased efficiency and economy. The party that proclaimed and has always enforced the Monroe doctrine and was sponsor for the new navy, will continue faithfully to observe the constitutional requirements to provide and maintain an adequate and well-proportioned navy sufficient to defend American policies, protect our citizens and uphold the honor and dignity of the nation.

REPUBLICAN EXTRAVAGANCE.

We denounce the profligate waste of the money wrung from the people by oppressive taxation through the lavish appropriations of recent republican congresses which have kept taxes high and reduced the purchasing power of the people's toil. We demand a return to that simplicity and economy which befits a democratic government and a reduction in the number of useless offices, the salaries of which drain the substance of the people.

RAILROADS, EXPRESS COMPANIES, TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE LINES.

We favor the efficient supervision and rate regulation of railroads, express companies, telegraph and telephone lines engaged in interstate commerce. To this end we recommend the valuation of railroads, express companies, telegraph and telephone lines by the interstate commerce commission, such valuation to take into consideration the physical valuation of the property, the original cost, the cost of reproduction and any element of value that will render the valuation fair and just.

We favor such legislation as will effectually prohibit the railroads, express, telephone and telegraph companies from engaging in business which brings them into competition with their shippers or patrons; also legislation preventing the overissue of stocks and bonds by interstate railroads, express companies, telegraph and telephone lines and legislation which will assure such reduction in transportation rates as conditions will permit, care being taken to avoid reduction that would compel a reduction of wages, prevent adequate service or do injustice to legitimate investments.

BANKING LEGISLATION.

We oppose the so-called Aldrich bill or the establishment of a central bank, and we believe the people of the country will be largely freed from panics and consequent unemployment and business depression by such a systematic revision of our banking laws as will render temporary relief in localities where such relief is needed, with protection from control or domination by what is known as the money trust.

Banks exist for the accommodation of the public and not for the control of business. All legislation on the subject of banking and currency should have for its purpose the securing of these accommodations on terms of absolute security to the public and of complete protection from the misuse of the power that wealth gives to those who possess it.

We condemn the present method of depositing government funds in a few favored banks, largely situated in or controlled by Wall street in return for political favors, and we pledge our party to provide by law for their deposit by competitive bidding in the banking institutions of the country, national and state, without discrimination as to locality, upon approved securities and subject to call by the government.

RURAL CREDITS.

Of equal importance with the question of currency reform is the question of rural credits or agricultural finance. Therefore we recommend that an investigation of agricultural credit societies in foreign countries be made, so that it may be ascertained whether a system of rural credits may be devised suitable to conditions in the United States; and we also favor legislation permitting national banks to loan a reasonable proportion of their funds on real estate security.

We recognize the value of vocational education and urge financial appropriation for such training and extension teaching in agriculture in co-operation with the several states.

WATERWAYS.

We renew the declaration in our last platform relating to the conservation of our national resources, and the development of our waterways. The present devastation of the lower Mississippi valley accentuates the movement for the regulation of river flow by additional bank and levee protection below, and the diversion, storage and control of the flood waters above, and their utilization for beneficial purposes in the reclamation of arid and swamp lands, and the development of waterpower, instead of permitting the floods to continue, as heretofore, agents of destruction.

We hold that the control of the Mississippi river is a national problem. The preservation of the depth of its water for the purposes of navigation, the building of levees to maintain the integrity of its channel and the prevention of the overflow of the land, and its consequent destruction, resulting in interruption of interstate commerce, the disorganization of mail service and the enormous loss of life and property impose an obligation which alone can be discharged by the general government.

To maintain an adequate depth of water the entire year and thereby encourage water transportation is a consummation worthy of legislative attention, and an issue national in its character. It calls for prompt action on the part of congress, and the democratic party pledges itself to the enactment of legislation leading to that end.

We favor the co-operation of the United States and the respective states in plans for the comprehensive treatment of all waterways with a view of co-ordinating plans for channel improvement with plans for drainage of swamp and overflow lands, and to this end we favor the appropriation by the federal government of sufficient funds to make survey of such lands, to develop plans for draining the same, and to supervise the work of construction.

We favor the adoption of a liberal and comprehensive plan for the development and improvement of our inland waterways with economy and efficiency, so as to permit their navigation by vessels of standard draft.

POST ROADS.

We favor national aid to state and local authorities in the construction and maintenance of post roads.

RIGHTS OF LABOR.

We repeat our declarations of the platform of 1908, as follows:

"The courts of justice are the bulwark of our liberties, and we yield to none in our purpose to maintain their dignity. Our party has given to the bench a long line of distinguished justices, who have added to the respect and confidence in which this department must jealously be maintained. We resent the attempt of the republican party to raise false issues respecting the judiciary. It is an unjust reflection upon the great body of our citizens to assume that they lack respect for the courts.

"It is the function of the courts to interpret the laws which the people enact, and if the laws appear to work economic, social or political injustice, it is our duty to change them. The only basis upon which the integrity of our courts can stand is that of unswerving justice and protection of life, personal liberty and property. As judicial processes may be abused, we should guard them against abuse.

"Experience has proven the necessity of a modification of the present law relating to injunctions, and we reiterate the pledges of our platforms of 1896 and 1904 in favor of a measure which passed the United States senate in 1896, relating to contempt in federal courts and providing for trial by jury in cases of indirect contempt.

"Questions of judicial practice have arisen, especially in connection with industrial disputes. We believe that the parties to all judicial proceedings should be treated with rigid impartiality and that injunctions should not be issued in any case in which an injunction would not issue if no industrial dispute were involved.

"The expanding organization of industry makes it essential that there should be no abridgment of the right of wage earners and producers to organize for the protection of wages and the improvement of labor conditions, to the end that such labor organizations and their members should not be regarded as illegal combinations in restraint of trade.

"We pledge the democratic party to the enactment of a law creating a department of labor represented separately in the president's cabinet, in which department shall be included the subject of mines and mining."

EMPLOYEES' COMPENSATION.

We pledge the democratic party, so far as the federal jurisdiction extends, to an employe's compensation law providing adequate indemnity for injury to body or loss of life.

CONSERVATION.

We believe in the conservation and the development for the use of all the people of the natural resources of the country. Our forests, our sources of water supply, our arable and our mineral lands, our navigable streams and all the other material resources with which our country has been so lavishly endowed, constitute the foundation of our national wealth. Such additional legislation as may be necessary to prevent their being wasted or absorbed by special or privileged interests should be enacted and the policy of their conservation should be rigidly adhered to.

The public domain should be administered and disposed of with due regard to the general welfare. Reservations should be limited to the purposes which they purport to serve, and not extended to include land wholly unsuited therefor. The unnecessary withdrawal from sale and settlement of enough tracts of public land upon which tree growth never existed and cannot be promoted, tends only to retard development, create discontent and bring reproach upon the policy of conservation.

The public land laws should be administered in a spirit of the broadest liberality towards the settler exhibiting a bona-fide purpose to comply therewith, to the end that the invitation of this government to the landless should be as attractive as possible; and the plain provisions of the forest reserve act permitting homestead entries to be made within the national forests should not be nullified by administrative regulations which amount to a withdrawal of great areas of the same from settlement.

Immediate action should be taken by congress to make available the vast and valuable coal deposits of Alaska under conditions that will be a perfect guarantee against their falling into the hands of monopolizing corporations, associations or interests.

We rejoice in the inheritance of mineral resources unequalled in extent, variety or value, and in the development of a mining industry unequalled in its magnitude and importance. We honor the men who, in their hazardous toil underground, daily risk their lives in extracting and preparing for our use the products of the mine, so essential to the industries, the commerce and the comfort of the people of this country. And we pledge ourselves to the extension of the work of the bureau of mines in every way appropriate for national legislation with a view of safeguarding the lives of the miners, lessening the waste of essential resources and promoting the economic development of mining, which, along with agriculture, must in the future, even more than in the past, serve as the very foundation of our national prosperity and welfare and our international commerce.

AGRICULTURE.

We believe in encouraging the development of a modern system of agriculture and a systematic effort to improve the conditions of trade in farm products so as to benefit both the consumers and producers. And as an efficient means to this end we favor the enactment by congress of legislation that will suppress the pernicious practice of gambling in agricultural products by organized exchanges and others.

MERCHANT MARINE.

We believe in fostering by constitutional regulation of commerce the growth of a merchant marine, which shall develop and strengthen the commercial ties which bind us to our sister republics of the south, but without imposing additional burden upon the people and without bounties or subsidies from the public treasury.

We urge upon congress the speedy enactment of laws for the greater security of life and property at sea, and we favor the repeal of all laws and the abrogation of so much of our treaties with other nations, as provide for the arrest and imprisonment of seamen charged with desertion or with violation of their contract or service. Such laws and treaties are un-American and violate the spirit, if not the letter, of the constitution of the United States.

We favor the exemption from tolls of American ships engaged in coast-wise trade passing through the Panama canal.

We also favor legislation forbidding the use of the Panama canal by ships owned or controlled by railroad carriers engaged in transportation competitive with the canal.

PURE FOOD AND PUBLIC HEALTH.

We reaffirm our previous declaration advocating the union and strengthening of the various governmental agencies relating to pure foods, quarantine, vital statistics and the human health. Thus united and administered without partiality to or discrimination against any school of medicine or system of treatment, they will constitute a single health service, not subordinated to any commercial or financial interests, but devoted exclusively to the conservation of human life and efficiency. Moreover, this health service should co-operate with the health agencies of our various states and cities without interference with their prerogatives or with the freedom of individuals to employ such medical or hygienic aid as they may see fit.

CIVIL SERVICE LAW.

The law pertaining to the civil service should be honestly and rigidly enforced to the end that merit and ability shall be the standard of appointment and promotion, rather than service rendered to a political party; and we favor a reorganization of the civil service with adequate compensation commensurate with the class of work performed, for all officers and employes; we also favor the extension to all classes of civil service employes of the benefits of the provisions of the employers' liability law. We also recognize the right of direct petition to congress by employes for the redress of grievances.

LAW REFORM.

We recognize the urgent need of reform in the administration of civil and criminal law in the United States, and we recommend the enactment of such legislation and the promotion of such measures as will rid the present legal system of the delay, expense and uncertainties incident to the system as now administered.

THE PHILIPPINES.

We reaffirm the position thrice announced by the democracy in national convention assembled, against a policy of imperialism and colonial exploitation in the Philippines or elsewhere. We condemn the experiment in imperialism as an inexcusable blunder which has involved us in enormous expense, brought us weakness instead of strength, and laid our nation open to the charge of abandonment of the fundamental doctrine of self-government. We favor an immediate declaration of the nation's purpose to recognize the independence of the Philippine Islands as soon as a stable government can be established, such independence to be guaranteed by us until the neutralization of the islands can be secured by treaty with other powers. In recognizing the independence of the Philippines our government should retain such land as may be necessary for coaling stations and naval bases.

ARIZONA AND NEW MEXICO.

We welcome Arizona and New Mexico to the sisterhood of states and heartily congratulate them upon their auspicious beginning of great and glorious careers.

ALASKA.

We demand for the people of Alaska the full enjoyment of the rights and privileges of a territorial form of government and we believe that the officials appointed to administer the government of all our territories and the District of Columbia should be qualified by previous bona-fide residence,

THE RUSSIAN TREATY.

We recommend the patriotism of the democratic members of the senate and house of representatives which compelled the termination of the Russian treaty of 1832, and we pledge ourselves anew to preserve the sacred rights of American citizenship at home and abroad. No treaty should receive the sanction of our government which does not recognize the equality of all our citizens, irrespective of race or creed, and which does not expressly guarantee the fundamental right of expatriation.

The constitutional rights of American citizens should protect them on our borders and go with them throughout the world, and every American citizen residing or having property in any foreign country is entitled to and must be given the full protection of the United States government, both for himself and his property.

PARCEL POST AND RURAL DELIVERY.

We favor the establishment of a parcel post or postal express and also the extension of the rural delivery system as rapidly as practicable.

PANAMA CANAL EXPOSITION.

We hereby express our deep interest in the great Panama canal exposition to be held in San Francisco in 1915 and favor such encouragement as can be properly given.

PROTECTION OF NATIONAL UNIFORM.

We recommend to the several states the adoption of a law making it an offense for the proprietors of places of public amusement and entertainment to discriminate against the uniform of the United States similar to the law passed by congress applicable to the District of Columbia and the territories in 1911.

PENSIONS.

We renew the declaration of our last platform relating to a general pension policy.

RULES OF THE PEOPLE.

We call attention to the fact that the democratic party's demand for a return to the rule of the people expressed in the national platform four years ago has now become the accepted doctrine of a large majority of the electors. We again remind the country that only by a larger exercise of the reserved power of the people can they protect themselves from the misuse of delegated power and the usurpation of governmental instrumentality by special interest. For this reason the national convention insists upon the overthrow of Cannonism and the inauguration of a system by which United States senators could be elected by direct vote. The democratic party offers itself to the country as an agency through which the complete overthrow and extirpation of corruption, fraud and machine rule in American politics can be affected.

CONCLUSION.

Our platform is one of principles which we believe to be essential to our national welfare. Our pledges are made to be kept when in office as well as relied upon during the campaign, and we invite the co-operation of all citizens, regardless of party, who believe in maintaining unimpaired the institutions and traditions of our country.

REPUBLICAN STATE PLATFORM OF 1912.

(Adopted in Convention at Huntington, May 16.)

The Republican party of West Virginia, assembled in convention, composed of delegates from every magisterial district of the State, deems it propitious to set forth to the people of West Virginia the things for which the party stands concerning state questions and policies.

As to matters of national concern, while we await with confidence a fresh declaration of our old faith by the approaching national convention, we today pledge anew our fealty to the principles, policies and purposes of the Republican party as set forth in the platform of 1908.

With special emphasis do we repeat the utterance of the platform which is most significant at this time because it tells of Republicanism under Roosevelt.

In this greatest era of American advancement the Republican party has reached its highest service under the leadership of Theodore Roosevelt. His administration is an epoch in American history. In no other period since national sovereignty was won under Washington or preserved under Lincoln has there been such mighty progress in those ideals of government which make for justice, equality, and fair dealing among men. The highest aspirations of the American people have found a voice. Their most exalted servant represents the best aims and worthiest purpose of all his countrymen. American manhood has been lifted to a nobler sense of duty and obligation. Conscience and courage in public station and higher standards of right and wrong in private life have become cardinal principles of political faith; capital and labor have been brought in closer relations of confidence and interdependence; and the abuse of wealth, the tyranny of power, and all the evils of privilege and favoritism have been put to scorn by the simple, manly virtues of justice and fair play.

The great accomplishments of President Roosevelt, have been, first and foremost, a brave and impartial enforcement of the law; the prosecution of illegal trusts and monopolies; the exposure and punishment of evil-doers in the public service; the more effective regulations of the rates and service of the great transportation lines; the complete overthrow of preferences, rebates and discriminations; the arbitration of labor disputes; the amelioration of the condition of wage-workers everywhere; the conservation of the national resources of the country; the forward step in the improvement of the inland waterways and always the earnest support and defense of every wholesome safeguard which has made more secure the guaranties of life, liberty and property.

These are the achievements that will make Theodore Roosevelt his place in history, but more than all else the great things he has done will be an inspiration to those who have yet greater things to do. We declare our unfaltering adherence to the policies thus inaugurated and pledge their continuance under a Republican administration of the Government.

State Administration Indorsed.

We rejoice that we have at the head of our state government, in the person of Governor William E. Glasscock, a man of the highest character and noble ideals, honest and sincere. We heartily and earnestly commend and endorse his administration. He has been upright, progressive, clean and honorable. He is entitled to the support and assistance of all good citizens of the state who believe in righteous and good government.

Some Facts in Party History.

A political party, like a person, must be judged by its character—by the things it has done. Its promises for the future must be judged by its past deeds. The Republican party of West Virginia invites honest and intelligent comparison of its record in the State of West Virginia with the record of the Democratic party in the State.

The Republican party created the State and shaped its destinies and attended to its wants in early years. At the election of 1870 the Democratic party gained control, through the liberality of the Republican party in removing restrictions on the right of suffrage of those citizens who had aided the South in the Civil War. Unfortunately for the State, the leaders of the Democratic party who came into power at that time were thoroughly reactionary. They destroyed a model state constitution, and put upon the people of the State one that was fifty years behind the age at the time it was adopted. They destroyed the excellent code that had been enacted, and after more than a decade of attempts to bring the statutes of the State into conformity with their new constitution, they were all the while getting the laws into more woeful chaos than ever before. In 1881, they confessed their failure and made an attempt to get back to the code of laws which they destroyed. The antiquated constitution which they put upon the State is uncertain in its meaning, unsuited to a victorious and growing commonwealth and now is a patch-work thing to be deplored.

Record of Democratic Party.

The record of the Democratic party in West Virginia from 1871, when they first came into complete power in the State, up to 1897, when they went out of power, discloses no act of constructive statesmanship—no act other than along the line of routine work. The last ten years of their power in the State was chiefly devoted to trying to correct the mistakes of their first ten years.

They tried to amend the laws of the State concerning taxation, and failed, as they failed in every other of their few endeavors to get out of the rut. The great mineral wealth of the State as well as all the railroad and other corporate property was either assessed for taxation at a nominal sum or was not taxed at all.

In Democracy's quarter of a century of administration, taxes on the property of the people were never reduced a cent, nor were the public burdens lightened in the smallest degree. Although they boasted of great development in the state, by reason of the increase in the output of its mineral wealth and the increase of value in other forms of property, yet little of this increased value got on the tax books, except that of the farmers, the merchants and the small property owner. These latter values were increased from time to time for taxation purposes in order to furnish more revenue, not only by the ordinary annual assessments of property, but by special assessments by commissioners appointed for that purpose.

Numerous and large sums were borrowed from the school fund, and in some cases neither the principal nor the interest was paid back until the attention of the people was directed to these malpractices by Republicans in the legislatures.

Large fees were provided for certain classes of public officers, and these fees were increased from time to time for the benefit of a favored few in payment for party services.

As an instance of the incompetency or something worse of the Democratic administration in this state, we cite the fact that the Pullman Palace Car Company never paid a cent of taxes on its valuable property in West Virginia until it was compelled to do so under the administration of Governor Atkinson.

Constant deficits in the state treasury; frequent misappropriations of public funds; failure to write clear laws; halting in the rut, and impotency to advance, are the characteristics marking the twenty-five years of dire Democratic rule in West Virginia.

Some Accomplishments of the Republican Party.

On the other hand, the administration of the Republican party has been marked by progress and advancement in every department.

It has largely increased the number and efficiency of our public institutions, and has taken them out of partisan politics.

It has put upon the tax books, at fair valuation, the immense mineral and corporate wealth of the state, including oil wells, pipe lines, coal property, railroad property, and all other property of corporations.

It has reduced the state levy from thirty-five cents to practically nothing, for the state levy this year for state and state school purposes could be abolished entirely were it not for the law fixing a minimum; and it is confidently believed that this minimum will be reached and that this tax will not be more than one cent.

These achievements alone are an accomplishment that any party may well be proud of: and they have been accomplished with justice and fairness to all.

While state taxes on the property of the people have been practically wiped out, yet the state is paying back to the counties more money than was ever paid to them before, both for their ordinary use and for the use of their schools, and the school term has been lengthened fifty per cent, the number and efficiency very largely increased, and high schools are dotting every part of the state.

The Budget Law.

A statute was enacted limiting local levies and compelling every levying body in the state to publish an annual budget for the information of the tax payers.

Public Accounting Law.

A system of public accounting was inaugurated, which has already saved to the taxpayers of the counties many thousands of dollars, although the work of this department is in its infancy, as the audit has not yet extended to even all the counties of the state. It is designed to extend to every municipal corporation and to every board of education.

Tax Commissioner's Department.

By the creation of the State Tax Commissioner's department, many thousands of dollars of license taxes, inheritance taxes and other indirect taxes which otherwise would not have been collected, have been paid into the state treasury. This is only one of the many benefits which the people have derived from this department.

State Board of Control.

The State Board of Control, another of the great enactments of the Republican party has taken the public institutions of the state out of politics, and while it has largely decreased the cost of running these institutions, it has, at the same time, greatly increased their efficiency.

Fee System Abolished.

The Republican party abolished the fee system, which the Democratic party built up for its favored office holders. The fees now go into the public treasuries instead of the pockets of the office holders, whereby every year many thousands of dollars are saved to the taxpayers.

A Party of Negation.

If it be asked why did not the Democratic party, during their long lease of power in this state, do any of these things above enumerated which have been done by the Republican party, the answer must be that the Democratic party is a party of negation, it lacks initiative, and its leaders have been contented with holding the offices, drawing the salaries and the fees.

The Workingman.

We note with satisfaction that a National Bureau of Mines and Mining has been established, as was favored in the platform of our party of 1908; and we further are glad to note the fact that in the last few years there has been a marked decrease in the number of accidents in our mines; although we recognize that there is still room for further improvement; and we favor the enactment of all wise, just and adequate laws which will safeguard the health and lives of our miners and prevent the loss of property.

In this connection, we declare that we favor just and generous legislation in the interest of all working men. The men who earn their living in the sweat of their faces constitute a great body of our people. This government of ours is a government by the people, and the people are the source of all political power. It is therefore of the highest importance that all the people in a government like ours should be happy and contented; that their hours of labor should be reasonable; that their wives and children should not be required to labor in factory or mine; that their children should have time for school—in short, that the condition of our working people should be that which befits an American citizen.

We consider this question of the welfare of the workingman one of supreme importance; that it is a question of the highest moral, as well as material importance, and we believe that the workingman has the right to unite for the purpose of considering and promoting his welfare, and of using such just measures of practice and legislation as will inure to his benefit. This right should be both protected and regulated by law.

We heartily favor the enactment in West Virginia of a thoroughly modern workingmen's compensation law, whereby those who are injured in their work, as well as in the case of death by accident, shall be compensated, so that the loss from the inevitable accidents of industry shall not fall alone on the workingman and his family, who are the least able to stand it, but shall be distributed among the public generally as a just and righteous incidental charge of production.

We do not favor these laws in any spirit of hostility to employers of labor, or to capital; on the contrary, we think it will benefit both labor and capital. Statistics are said to show that of the immense amount of money recovered for accidents to workingmen, only thirty per cent. goes to the employee, while the other seventy per cent. is consumed in court costs, lawyer fees, and the like. The present system is expensive, illogical, creates and keeps up bad feeling between the laborer and his employer, and is really unjust to both. If the Constitution of the State will not permit of the enactment of such laws, then we favor its amendment, because we believe that the constitution was made for the people and not the people for the constitution.

Primary Elections—Purity of the Ballot.

We favor the enactment of a primary election law whereby all nominations for public offices, including the office of United States senator, and whereby the members of the state and county political party committees, shall be chosen. This election should be held on the same day throughout the state, and all political parties should be compelled to make their nominations in that way, and fees for entrance should not be prohibitive so that a poor man may be a candidate as well as a rich one. Such a law should provide all practicable means to prevent the nomination of candidates by a minority vote. In connection with such a law, we heartily favor the enactment of a Corrupt Practices Act, which will be thorough and comprehensive, and which will not only stop the corrupt use of money in elections, but also its lavish expenditure. The bribery of voters and the lavish and corrupt use of money in our politics being a great and dangerous evil, and one which threatens the very life of our free institutions, we favor the most stringent and searching laws to eradicate these evils.

The voter who so lightly regards the great right of franchise as to sell it for money, ought to be deprived of its use, and we favor the disfranchisement of every man who is convicted of that crime, at first for five years; and for the second offense for life.

Any candidate who violates the law should not only be punished by fines and imprisonment, but ought also to lose any nomination thereby gained, and he ought to be made ineligible, at least for a time, to be a candidate for any office or to hold any office.

All contributions for political party purposes and all expenditures by candidates, committees or other persons for political purposes, should be made public.

Agriculture and Roads.

We favor the enactment of all laws which will encourage the pursuit of farming in our state. Successful agriculture is the basis of all national prosperity. There is no good reason why West Virginia should not produce from her own soil all such products as she consumes. The State should offer every inducement in its power to encourage the cultivation of the soil, and no proper means should be spared to teach those engaged in agriculture how to farm their lands to the best advantage.

Allied to this subject is that of good roads. Good roads cannot be had and maintained without organization and system. There ought to be an efficiently organized Department of Roads with a competent state officer in charge, who should be provided with the means necessary to make investigation of the kinds of roads best suited to each neighborhood in the state and to give practical demonstration of the manner of constructing and keeping up the same, so as to get a full dollar's worth of good road for every dollar expended.

Fixed Pay for Attaches of the Legislature.

We favor the enactment of a law by the legislature which will definitely fix the number and compensation of the officers and employees of the legislature. We are opposed to the employment of an excessive number of clerks and other attaches, and to the evil practice of voting them increased compensation by joint resolutions and the like.

Conservation of Natural Resources.

We favor the protection of our forests, waters, soil and mineral resources, by all reasonable and practical regulations, whereby needless waste may be checked, and the damage from forest fires, floods, erosions and droughts lessened as far as practicable, and whereby the future production of lumber for the use of the people may be assured. In proportion as we consume our own coal and gas and other mineral products in the state, in useful manufactures, in that proportion will we get greater benefit from their gift to us; therefore, we earnestly urge that the legislature shall maturely consider what measures can be adopted to bring the manufacturers into this state which will consume our raw products at home. As it is now, such a large percentage of our coal and gas and of other products are made use of outside the state, that our people are deriving comparatively little benefit from them.

Popular Vote for President and Senators.

We favor the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people, in the same manner as representatives in the lower House of Congress are chosen, and until the constitution of the United States can be amended so as to provide therefor, we favor the nomination of candidates by political parties for this office by statewide primary election. We also favor the enactment of a law in this state whereby the voters of every political party may express their choice among the candidates for president of the United States at such primary elections.

Public Utilities Commission.

We heartily favor the creation of a public utilities commission, which shall have power to regulate and supervise all public service corporations, to prevent unjust discriminations by them, and also prevent the issuing of stock and bonds on "water," or in excessive amounts.

General Law for Municipal Charters.

We also favor an amendment of our constitution which will take from the legislature the power to pass laws creating or amending charters of cities, towns and villages. This should be provided for by general law, so that the valuable time of the legislature be not consumed in such mere local legislation.

A better system of municipal government in this state is greatly needed. To that end we urge upon the legislature the importance of giving this subject its best consideration, so that the people of our cities, towns and villages may have a system of government which shall carry out the will of the people and be business-like and economical in its operation. The scandal of granting valuable franchises by municipal authorities to corporations should be stopped. All franchises of importance should be subject to ratification by a vote of the people of the municipality. Water, light and heat should be furnished at the lowest price to the people of our cities and towns.

A Square Deal for Every Man.

We congratulate the colored people of the state on their great advancement in education and in the acquisition of property. We earnestly desire their welfare. We are opposed to any law which should apply to them on account of their race, or that would be applied to other citizens of our state on account of race or religious belief.

Convict Labor.

While the inmates of our penitentiary and other places of imprisonment, should not be supported in idleness at the expense of the tax payers, which would be a wrong to the latter and a crime against the former, yet in providing for employment for the inmates of our prisons, their work should come in competition with the work of free labor as little as possible.

Removal of Derelict Officers.

The non-enforcement of law in our state is a dangerous evil. A law not enforced breeds contempt for all law. In this government nothing stands between life and property except the law. An unenforced law is a dead one, and gives no protection. We require our governor to take an oath that he will be sedulous in the enforcement of the law, but we have withheld from him the power to carry out the pledge we exact from him. We therefore favor enactments which will give the governor authority, regulated by law, whereby he may remove all executive and administrative officers, who fail to perform their duties. The enactments we favor along this line are those that were advocated by Charles E. Hughes, now a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States and lately governor of the state of New York. We do not favor giving to the governor, or to any other officer, whether executive, legislative or judicial, arbitrary power. Every officer, before he is removed, should be confronted with the charges against him, and given an opportunity to be heard in his defense; but, nevertheless, public officers who refuse or fail, through corruption or incompetency or for other reason, to do their duty, ought to be removed from office, and those substituted in their stead who will do it. To this matter we invite the cooperation of all good men of all political parties, because we believe it is a most serious and growing evil.

The Courts.

We favor the simplification of the procedure of our intermediate and circuit courts, the lessening of the costs of litigation and the abatement of the cumbrous machinery of the law; and that in rendering decisions the court should depend upon the equities involved rather than upon legal technicalities, for we desire simpler, cheaper and more perfect justice to all—to rich and poor alike.

Resolved, That the delegates here selected to attend the national convention at Chicago to be held on June 18th be and are hereby instructed to vote for the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt as candidate for President so long as there is a possibility of his nomination and to use all honorable means to bring about the same.

Resolved, That the delegates elected at this convention be, and are hereby instructed to vote at the national convention to be held in Chicago, June 18th, for William Seymour Edwards for national committeeman.

DEMOCRATIC STATE PLATFORM OF 1912.

(Adopted In Convention at Huntington, August 16.)

The Democratic party of West Virginia, in convention assembled, is duly thankful that, in this hour of its brightest hopes, it can congratulate itself that during the trying years of ring rule and arbitrary government, with which the State has been afflicted since 1897, it has been true to the cause of the people and has consistently kept the ancient Democratic faith that there is no power under the American government greater than the people's will.

The People the Source of all Power.

The doctrine that the people are the source of all power, and that their expressed will is the true warrant for changes in the law, is the foundation stone of our party. "Progressivism" in its chief essentials is but the cardinal Democratic faith, that governments are made to serve the people, and that organic and statutory law should keep pace with the growth of business, trade, labor and enlightenment among the people. It is as true today as it was when the founder of our party wrote it into the Declaration of Independence and afterwards engrafted it into the platform of our party and won thereon the signal victory of 1800, that our government rests upon the consent of the governed, and that the right to form a government carries with it the right and the duty to change laws and constitutions when the latter fail to serve all the people with justice and without favor or special privileges to any.

Baltimore Platform Endorsed.

We therefore endorse the Democratic progressive platform adopted at the Baltimore convention and ratify and approve the nominations of Woodrow Wilson and Thomas R. Marshall, both of whom have redeemed their promises and their party pledges to the people.

There are no dissatisfied nor disappointed Democrats in West Virginia, and we send greetings to our distinguished nominees for President and Vice-President, that all progressives in West Virginia will vote for them and we pledge them the electoral votes of our State. We further pledge these great leaders of our cause that there will be no "acid tests" required of the electors whom we shall name and elect. They will be men who would spurn an election upon false pretenses and each and every one of them will be personally and politically inclined, as in honor bound, to vote for our candidates.

While it is true the national abuses that the Democratic party stands pledged to remedy are many and grave, yet it is to the state that society must look for relief from those conditions that are responsible for the social and industrial injustice that today pervades our country and threatens its very existence.

Will of the People Expressed at Elections.

At the foundations of a people's government is the duty to have, at frequent intervals, an expression of the desires and wishes of the people upon the officials who shall serve them and the principles upon which their government should be conducted. These expressions of the people's will are taken at elections and we declare that no government can long exist where corruption, fraud, ring-rule or arbitrary methods are employed in nominations or elections; and we further declare that laws which do not abolish these practices cannot be palmed off upon the people. Any effort to favor any party in the enactment of registration, primary or election laws is calculated to debauch officials and lessen respect among the people for constituted authority and we pledge the people that when entrusted with power, we will promptly pass laws protecting every citizen in his right to register and to vote, and will punish bull-dozing, bribery, corruption, fraud and any and every device to thwart the will of the people in primaries and elections and every scheme to cheat or defraud the individual votes or the voters of any precinct or county before, during or after an election or primary.

Primary Election Law.

We favor the enactment of a primary election law, the expense to be paid by the State, and all parties to nominate all officers at the same time and to be guarded by an adequate corrupt practices act. Presidential preferential primaries. And we further pledge the voters that such laws shall be so framed that the poor man shall have the same opportunity as the rich man and that the expenses of a campaign for nomination shall be so adjusted that all candidates shall be so protected by rigid laws that no ring or clique by money, favoritism or patronage shall usurp the offices.

Registration Law.

At the root of every honest election is an honest, fair registration. The legal voters should be entitled to register and this right should be so protected that it can be enforced in the courts against its arbitrary denial. On the other hand an illegal vote should be an impossibility and the legal voters should have the right to protect themselves in the courts against any padding of the registration lists. We pledge the people that we will enact an honest, fair non-partisan registration law, protected by severe penalties, and giving to the voter and to the people the benefit of the greatest publicity possible in its enforcement.

Election Law.

We also pledge ourselves to enact an honest, fair, non-partisan election law, severe in its penalties against bribery, corruption, fraud, arbitrary methods and bull-dozing, and protecting with the fullest power of the state the right of every voter to cast one ballot free from molestation at the polls and beyond the power of any one to question it afterwards.

It is a burning shame that in some parts of the state the citizens are afraid to go to the polls, afraid to serve as election officers and afraid to vote their real sentiments lest they lose their positions. The Democratic party will correct this without partisan bias and on the broad lines of modern progressivism.

Public Utilities Should be Regulated by Law.

We believe the time has come when railroads and other public utilities should be regulated by law and we pledge our party to enact such legislation so that the public shall be duly protected from the arbitrary methods of corporation officials, but with due regard to the investment made in such properties. We think that the commission plan protecting both the public and the public service corporations is a wise solution of this problem and we pledge the party to pass such laws.

Municipal Code Law.

We favor home rule for cities and pledge ourselves to pass a municipal code law.

The Power of Taxation.

The power of taxation is the life of the state and should not be hampered, and we favor a law making it impossible for a court to enjoin the collection of a tax, but reserving the right to the person taxed to protest and in the event of the tax being afterwards held invalid, the tax should be refunded without delay.

We favor an amendment to the present tax laws. Every family should be exempt from taxation on at least two hundred dollars' ($200.00) worth of property subject to that humane and wise exception in favor of those already heavily burdened in the struggle for existence and to that end we favor a constitutional amendment. Tax laws should be so framed as to put the necessary burdens of government upon all properties equal and fairly so that the burdens of government shall fall upon all equally and fairly and shall not be a burden upon industries that will tend to discourage, hamper or retard the development of the industries of the State.

Republican Extravagance.

Where much is spent, much must be levied and we re-affirm our belief that our state government has become extravagant by unnecessary increase in the number of office holders, constantly increasing salaries and unwise public expenditures. We promise the most rigid economy and the strictest honesty in public expenditures consistent with good government, and we further promise to reduce taxation to the lowest possible limit.

Certain General Enactments Favored.

We favor the enactment of a fair and just compensation act. Education, health, the preservation of our natural resources, the utmost humane treatment of those unable to care for themselves, the prevention of contagion and disease, the health and care of children, the prevention of small children from working in dangerous or unhealthy occupations, and the uplifting of mankind in general and the improvement of his condition in life, are some of the things which demand the highest and greatest care of the State.

The progressive program which the Democracy of West Virginia promises the people, embraces all these and every other subject where the uplift in the morals, the health and conditions of living are involved, and we declare that, subject to constitutional restraints, the lives, the happiness, the security, the health, and the education of the people are the highest considerations of law-making and the executive departments.

Protection of Property—Court Procedure.

The Democratic party believes in the protection of property. No one has the right, under any pretext, of injuring or destroying the property of another. Courts are instituted to decide disputed questions of law and fact between the citizens, and we will maintain the dignity, purity, and power of courts to administer justice between litigants without fear or favor. But many of our court proceedings are too complicated and the costs, expense, and delays of legal contests have become burdensome. Modern business methods and true progressivism demand that our court proceedings shall be simplified and the costs of litigation reduced and that the burden of unnecessary appeals and delays shall be obviated. We promise to make this reform, and, if necessary to submit constitutional amendments which will enable the change possible.

The Guard System.

The right of the person to guard his own property cannot be denied but no guard system should be allowed to supersede the power and duty of the State to see that needlessly severe methods be not used against citizens, and that private employes under the authority of the state be not autocratic or arbitrary. Where congestion of population, labor disputes or other causes will render life, property, and the safety and security of the person in danger, it is the duty of the state to see to it that an ample and efficient constabulary service shall be maintained; but the officers performing any such public duties shall be under the law-regulated authority of the Governor or some other executive officer accountable to the public. We denounce as unjust the present irresponsible guard system of this state, and declare in favor of placing all guards under reasonable bond, and in case of private guards we favor a law requiring identification of both employer and employee.

The Convict Labor System.

The manufacture of common articles of commerce by convict labor, at low wages, within the penitentiary does not provide employment for the convicts under the best conditions or produce lower prices to the consuming public, while it subjects outside labor and capital to unfair competition. We are opposed to the present system of convict labor in this State, and favor abolishing the same and using said convict labor in the construction of a good system of roads in this state and in such other lines of work as will not compete with the labor of this state.

Good Roads.

The crying need of this State is better roads, but in many sections local resources are inadequate to put into execution any comprehensive system. We favor national aid for good roads, and hereby promise to make every endeavor to meet the requirements of any bill passed by congress to aid the states in this work; and we pledge the people to put in operation a comprehensive road system to the extent of the state's ability and to join with the national government in any just plan that be offered for a national road system.

Public Education.

Public education, non-political, and non-sectarian, but broad and sound is an absolute necessity in a self-governing state. In the evolution of educational thought and practices the present tendency, the world over, is away from the idea that public education is primarily for the purpose of preparing the few for the so-called learned professions, and towards the idea that without excluding anyone from the highest education, it should be so shaped as to better prepare for their every day life work and duties as citizens, the many who do not and for economic reasons cannot go further than the high and common schools.

Regardless of the form of government or the political administration under which this idea of education has manifested itself, we recognize in it the true Democratic spirit and pledge to it our hearty approval and liberal support, and to the cause of education in general, we pledge the hearty support of our party.

Agriculture and Horticulture.

The agricultural and horticultural interests of this State are of the first importance, and their proper development should engage the best efforts of our people, and we favor such appropriations for our agricultural department as will enable it to render all possible aid in the development of these two important industries and the advancement of rural life, and we favor a law which will make it impossible to place on sale in this State seed, grain and horticultural supplies that are adulterated or misrepresented.

Anti-Injunction Bill.

We endorse the action of the national convention in its endorsement of the Clayton anti-injunction bill and we pledge ourselves to the enactment of a similar law for the State of West Virginia. We favor a trial by jury in cases of indirect contempt.

Judicial Reform.

We believe that the demand upon the part of the public for judicial reform is justifiable, and we pledge ourselves to institute such reforms as will expedite litigation and make the delay and expenses of same as free from hardships as is consistent with a stable and independent judiciary.

The independence of the judiciary, its purity and its honor, are alike necessary in a republic. But judges should not be autocrats and it is well known that some of them forget their high station and become biased, neglectful and careless, and others lose the confidence of the people by practices not always sufficient to justify impeachment proceedings, even where these practices can be proved. We, therefore, favor a modification of the law regarding the removal of judges, and an enlargement of the grounds of such removal. It should be the duty of some official or body to make inquiry into the conduct of judges, and instead of the long process of making changes by one branch of the legislature and trying them by another, the proceedings for removal should be with the judiciary committee of one body, and where that committee finds grounds for making a charge, the governor should be compelled to assemble the committee of the senate to hear and determine the charges and all the proceedings should be open to the public. This or some practical, just system for holding judges to the same responsibility for misfeasance or malfeasance in office as are other officials should be adopted.

Justice to All Interests.

These reforms are presented in sincerity to the end that this State shall not lag behind in the forward movement of mankind to bring their governments up to modern civilization and to make every one responsible to the law; to increase respect for constituted authority and to restore faith in the justice of our civil institutions. The Democratic party believes in progress but under a written constitution; it would not deprive any one of his property without due process of law; nor would it jeopardize the lawful investments made in the State nor throw a stone in the way of securing capital to develop our vast resources. Justice and nothing but exact justice to capital, labor, farming, business and enterprise, will be the Democratic watchword. Upon these principles we expect capital to come with confidence, labor to be employed with a sense of security and justice, and the unfortunate and the dependent to feel that love for the State which is only possible where justice and humanity go hand in hand.

Post Election Primary Endorsed.

We endorse the action of our state committee, which was ratified by the Parkersburg convention, in providing for a post election primary, and we pledge all Democratic members of the Legislature of West Virginia to ratify the preference expressed in said primary for the selection of a United States Senator.

Income Tax Amendment and Election of Senators.

Whereas, The legislature of this State failed to ratify the amendment to the Federal constitution, providing for an income tax, we deprecate such action and we demand that at its next session it reconsider its former action and ratify same; also, ratify the amendment now pending for the election of senators by direct vote of the people.

Virginia Debt Case.

We denounce the course pursued by the Republican party in the management of the Virginia debt case and we heartily endorse the plan of our representatives in congress to adjust the question, and pledge the nominees of this convention to co-operate with them to that end, and we pledge the Democratic party to take steps, as soon as practicable, looking to the most favorable adjustment of said question possible.

Republican State Senators Condemned.

We condemn the Republican members of the state senate for their unlawful, revolutionary conduct when the legislature met in regular session in 1911, which resulted in great expense to the tax payers of the state and the destruction of the legislative body for almost half the constitutional period of its sitting, producing legislative anarchy and violating their constitutional oaths, and we expect the wise, patriotic people of the State to disapprove this action by a large majority at the election in next November.

Representatives in Congress Endorsed.

We endorse the course of our senators and representatives in congress and thank them for their faithful services to the party and to the people.

In Conclusion.

Upon these declarations of principle we invite all good citizens to join with us in making West Virginia better, greater and richer. This is the time for progressive people to get together and we open the doors of the party to all who aspire to better government for the State.

RESOLUTIONS OF THE REPUBLICAN STATE COMMITTEE

Inviting the Co-operation of the Republican and Progressive Voters of the State, Issued February 25, 1914.

WHEREAS, the Democratic party, through the present administration of Woodrow Wilson, has demonstrated its unfitness and inability to successfully govern and guide the destiny of the Nation, and by its weak, vacillating and spineless foreign policy has made the country an object of ridicule and contempt, while its domestic policy has brought on business depression and industrial stagnation, and

WHEREAS, it is the sense of this Committee as well as its desire, that all voters of this State who now class themselves as Republicans, and who were formerly members of the party, should unite their efforts to rescue the Nation from the destructive blight of Democratic misrule, and save the State of West Virginia from becoming again an integral part of the "solid South," thus passing into Democratic control with all its attendant evils, political, financial and industrial, and to carry into effect the promises and policies made and enunciated in the State platform of the Huntington Convention of 1912. Be it therefore

Resolved, by this Committee that in order to secure the co-operation of all voters of this State, who believe in the fundamental principles of Republicanism as taught by that greatest American, Abraham Lincoln, that this Committee extend an invitation to the State Progressive Party Committee to meet and confer with this Committee, with a view of securing a union of all such voters in this State in electing a legislature this year that will support and uphold the splendid State administration for which we all cast our votes in 1912, in the work of carrying out the aforesaid promises and policies, and also to elect members of Congress and the county officers, and to the further end that the Democratic party shall not cast over the fair hills and valleys of West Virginia the blighting shadows of the black flag of business and industrial stagnation; and be it further

Resolved, that this Committee does hereby extend an invitation to the Progressive State Committee to meet with it on the 18th day of March, 1914, in the City of Parkersburg, at one o'clock, P. M., with a view of reconciling all differences existing, if any, as to the party government, methods of nominating candidates, as well as all other differences that may be found to exist between the Republican and Progressive parties, to the end that we may all co-operate and bring to pass the things we most desire, and be it further

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be furnished to the Chairman of the State Committee of the Progressive Party of this State and each member thereof, and that the Chairman of this Committee transmit to the Chairman of the Progressive Party Committee with said copy of these resolutions a request that said Progressive Committee meet and confer with this Committee for the purpose aforesaid.

REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

(Adopted at Charleston, May 20, 1914.)

The Republican party of West Virginia, in delegate convention assembled, at Charleston, this the 20th day of May, 1914, re-affirms the fundamental principle of the party, that this government of ours is "a government of the people, by the people, for the people," that the people are the source of all political power, and that they are capable of exercising the same. The purpose of our government is to "promote the public welfare," and this should be the guide of all our public officers.

THE TARIFF.

The Democratic party, true to its past history, has again by an un-American tariff bill brought disaster to the industries of this country. The Underwood-Simmons tariff law is professedly based not upon the principles of "tariff for revenue only" but upon the more extreme principle of a "competitive tariff," which means the establishment of free and unlimited competition between this and the free trade countries of Europe. The same result always follows the enactment of this hostile legislation, and all over the land today factories are closed down, laboring men by the hundreds of thousands are idle or partly idle, capital lies dormant and fear has taken the place of confidence.

We re-affirm our allegiance to the great doctrine of protection to American industries, American labor, the American farmer and the American home—a protection not too high nor too low, but intelligent and sufficient protection to restore our languishing industries, to give employment once more to our idle labor, to preserve our present decent standard of living, and in fact a tariff which will at least make up the difference between the cost of production by the pauper labor of Europe and the self respecting workmen of this country.

We observe with much alarm the statistics of the Department of Commerce which conclusively show that the imports from Europe are largely increasing and the exports from this country are largely decreasing; a condition which always follows the passage of an European tariff bill by a Democratic Congress.

OUR MEXICAN POLICY.

Either it is our duty to keep hands off in Mexico and recognize the existing government or else it was our duty to acknowledge our responsibility for the welfare of our sister Republic and to take prompt and sufficient steps to prevent a continuation of the deplorable conditions which have existed in that ill-fated land. As the latter policy was adopted by the administration we believe that it should have been determined and vigorous and worthy of the traditions of our great nation. The policy of "watchful waiting," which while denying recognition to the existing form of government, has by listless inactivity permitted the continuation of unspeakable atrocities, not only upon the citizens of Mexico, but upon American citizens, women and children, is to be greatly deplored.

We believe that the strong arm of the American government should give to every American citizen the protection of his country's flag in whatever land he may abide, and we pledge ourselves to the policy of again making that flag a symbol of such protection and of calling to account any government which permits its people to wantonly outrage, injure and murder American citizens.

We deplore the fact that the killing of a British subject seemed necessary to arouse the administration to some degree of activity in our foreign policy in Mexico.

THE PANAMA CANAL.

We, together with all other American citizens, are proud of the unparalleled achievement of our nation in constructing across the Isthmus of Panama a great inter-oceanic canal—a project which no other nation but ours could apparently accomplish. It was built at the cost of four hundred millions of dollars of American money and at the cost of many human lives.

We emphatically condemn the unjustified insistence of the Democratic National administration, without even an attempt to preserve by diplomatic negotiations or otherwise our rights as builders and owners of that canal, that we should voluntarily release and nullify these rights at the behest of a foreign power. The passage of the Simms bill will be an unqualified acknowledgement that we had no right to exempt our coastwise ships from tolls and the proposed repeal of a solemn act of Congress, granting such exemption, is a weak and unjustified surrender of national rights.

We denounce the repudiation by the Democratic national administration of the plank in the Democratic platform favoring such exemption, and we submit to the people the question of whether or not a platform is "molasses with which to catch flies," or whether, as we believe, it is a solemn pledge which must be sacredly observed.

TREATY WITH COLOMBIA.

The treaty which the Democratic national administration has negotiated with the United States of Colombia, which has not yet been submitted to the Senate for ratification, affords a striking illustration of the weakness and servility of our department of state. It compels the nation to render a humble apology wherein it has done no wrong, and takes from the treasury an immense sum of money and pays it as willing tribute to an unjust demand of a foreign power.

We denounce this proposed treaty and pledge ourselves as a party never to permit our country to be disgraced by its ratification.

OUR REPRESENTATIVES IN CONGRESS.

We endorse the records made by our Republican representatives in Congress from this State in enthusiastically advocating true progressive legislation and in standing, in face of overwhelming opposition, for the rights of the people and the peace, happiness and prosperity of the nation.

HUNTINGTON PLATFORM RE-AFFIRMED.

We re-affirm the excellent platform of our party which was adopted at Huntington, on the 16th day of May, 1912. We note with great gratification that the Legislature of 1913, although our party was handicapped therein by reason of not having a majority in the State Senate, carried into effect the most important of the promises and pledges of that platform, in the enactment of the following laws:

The Workmen's Compensation Law, which has been, and is, of inestimable benefit to working men and their families.

The creation of the Public Service Commission, which has been entrusted with the regulation and control of all public service corporations and agencies.

The "Blue Sky" Law, to safeguard the public from fake schemes of worthless stocks and bonds of corporations.

The act providing for the employment of prisoners from the Penitentiary and in the county and municipal prisons, on the public roads and streets. This is a long step in the right direction of preventing convict labor being brought into competition with the labor of free men.

Other laws of much benefit to the people were enacted by the Legislature of 1913, among which was an act preventing the indiscriminate exploitation of our great water power, and placing hydro-electric and other water power companies under the supervision of the Public Service Commission.

Amendments to the insurance and banking laws of the State are proving of benefit to the people.

Much benefit will accrue from the changes made in the public health laws, including the generous aid given to the Anti-Tuberculosis League, and in other ways.

To complete the work, and to deal with questions which have arisen since the promulgation of the Huntington platform, we appeal to all who assisted in the making of that platform to go with us to carry it out to the full, and in its spirit to go forward to deal with the new problems that demand solution. To insure all this we should all work together in earnest harmony in the election of members of the Legislature. We consider this matter of election of members of the Legislature one of the most important matters of this year's campaign.

PRIMARY ELECTION LAW.

We especially re-affirm the provisions of the Huntington platform favoring the enactment of a primary election law, whereby all nominations for public officers, including the office of United States Senator, shall be made, and members of state and county political party committees shall be chosen, and also that the voters of every political party may therein express their choice among the candidates for President of the United States.

ADDRESS OF REPUBLICAN STATE COMMITTEE.

We approve the address made by the Republican State Committee on the 25th of February, 1914, to the voters of the state, and we call attention to it as an exposition of progressive doctrine.

AGRICULTURE.

The cost of living should be as low as is reasonably possible, so that the necessities of life may be within the easy reach of all our people. The present high cost of living cannot be materially reduced except by increased production from the soil. Agriculture is the basis of our prosperity. Hence, we favor as the highest prudence the most generous aid to the cultivation of the soil. We commend the good work done along these lines by the Commissioner of Agriculture and by the Agricultural Departments of our State University and we favor an increase of means so that this work may be enlarged. We favor and commend the appointment of agricultural agents in the counties. We favor the holding of county and other local exhibitions of farm products, including live stock, and the offering of substantial awards to those who excel in the raising of crops and improved stock.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC COMPANIES.

West Virginia is very rich in the matter of water-power, which is a resource of inestimable value to the people, and is one that should be most carefully conserved. As the development of this water power must be made by private capital, as the State has no money and no authority, even if it were prudent to do so, to develop this resource on public account, the problem is not one without difficulty. It is, how may we best develop this great resource, offer the necessary inducements to private capital to undertake such large enterprises, and at the same time get the maximum return to the public, and maintain control of the water-power in the interest of the people. We commend the action taken by the last legislature in placing this subject under the supervision of the Public Service Commission, and in repealing the law giving these corporations the absolute right of eminent domain.

REFORM IN COURT PROCEDURE.

We especially declare our unreserved purpose to simplify court procedure to the end that "court delays" may be lessened and that litigation shall not be so complex or expensive, but be so regulated that the rich and poor may be more nearly placed upon an equal basis—and that justice may fairly be meted out to all parties desiring to invoke the benefits of the law.

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.

We commend the action of the State Board of Health for securing the establishment of a State Laboratory in connection with our State University, which gives to the citizenship of the State a place where any specimens can be sent for analysis by competent experts without charge, and we also commend the publication by the State Board of Health of a monthly bulletin dealing with the sanitary and general health conditions of our State. We commend a more favorable consideration by the next Legislature of the general welfare of the public health.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION LAW.

We especially call attention to the magnificent results achieved under the operation of the Workmen's Compensation law—a law which insures a maintenance to injured employees and their dependents; and we pledge ourselves to the passage of such additional measures as experience may show to be necessary to secure equitable conditions among all branches of industry.

GOOD ROADS.

The road problem is a most vital one, demanding great wisdom for its solution. The prosperity and well being of multitudes are affected by this question. We approve the action of the State Administration in seeking to stimulate the public interest in good roads. The State should, as soon as practicable, work out a method for co-operating with the counties in this important work, to the end that as nearly as possible the people may have a dollar's worth of good roads for every dollar expended. To what extent the State can financially co-operate in building of the inter-county highways is a problem yet to be solved.

REPRESENTATION IN SOUTHERN STATES.

The adoption of the recommendations of the Republican National Committee by the Republican party of West Virginia in convention assembled is not to be construed as an endorsement of the election laws of the Southern States, unjustly disfranchising thousands of American citizens, who, in law and equity, are entitled to express their choice at the ballot box; and the Republican party of West Virginia, in convention assembled, hereby denounces said election laws as unjust and indefensible, and demands that the 14th and 15th Amendments to the Constitution of the United States be enforced, and that in the Southern States Congressional representation be based upon the actual voting strength under their election laws.

We favor submission to the people of all questions affecting the fundamental laws of the State and Nation, when a reasonable demand by a considerable number of voters is made for such submission.

STATE ADMINISTRATION ENDORSED.

We endorse the administration of Governor Henry D. Hatfield and the other executive officers associated with him. We commend the efforts of the Governor to carry out the promises made to the people of the State in the Huntington platform, and we earnestly appeal to all good citizens of the State to aid in this work, as well as in the work of carrying out the policies herein enunciated. We consider it of prime importance that good, true and able men be elected to the Legislature, both as delegates and senators, who will stand shoulder to shoulder with the Governor in this good work.

DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM.

We, the Democrats of West Virginia in State Convention assembled, reaffirm our faith in and renew our allegiance to those basic principles of political morality and social justice that form the foundation of every real republic, and have been impressed upon this nation by a long line of illustrious Democratic Presidents, from Thomas Jefferson to Woodrow Wilson. While issues change from time to time, as human civilization in its resistless march faces new problems, principles are eternal; and we recognize the course pursued by President Wilson, with the splendid cooperation of Secretary Bryan and a Democratic Congress upon the great issues before the country, as patriotic of purpose, sound in principle and essentially democratic when tested by the teachings of Jefferson.

1st. We congratulate the whole people of the United States upon the ascendancy of the Democratic Party under its present leadership, and upon the great advancement it marks in the cause of popular government, not only in our own land, but throughout the world. New and higher standards have been established in the high places of government, and pure ideals obtain in the administration of public affairs. The light of publicity has been turned into the dark places and the people allowed to see what goes on in their own government. In view of all of these higher and better things of government we most heartily endorse the administration of Woodrow Wilson during the sixteen months he has been President, and in this endorsement we include his great Secretary of State, Wm. J. Bryan, who has so ably and unselfishly upheld the hands of the President in his battle for democratic principles. We also heartily endorse the course of Clarence W. Watson while in the United States Senate and of Senator William E. Chilton, who in the Senate of the United States has earnestly and devotedly brought his great talents and matchless eloquence and laid them at the feet of the President in his masterful contest for human rights. We also heartily endorse the course of William G. Brown and M. M. Neeley, the two Democratic Congressmen from this state, who have been among the able supporters of the President's policies.

2nd. We call attention with pride and gratification to the magnificent record of the present national administration and Congress for constructive statesmanship. This record is without a parallel in the history of this Republic, and now, when the first session of the 63rd Congress would ordinarily be just about ending, more than a year of solid work has been done.

The best Tariff Law of half a century has been passed;

Likewise a National Banking and currency Act that frees the productive energies of the nation from the burden of a mediaeval money system, and makes bankers' panics impossible;

The great Democratic principle of an Income Tax has been crystallized into law and for the first time the wealth of the country is required to contribute a fair share of the cost of government;

The election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people has been put into practical operation in such a way as to give to the people the full benefit of this great popular reform;

The iniquitous Commerce Court, devised by the Republican party to deny justice to individual shippers by making it too expensive to go to Washington with their complaints from all parts of the country, has been abolished;

And an Anti-Trust Program designed to protect our people from monopoly is well on the road to enactment, and we believe Congress should pass this act before it adjourns. All these great steps in freeing our government from the evils of special privilege, and restoring a real rule of the people have been taken in little more than one year, and in the face of a complicated and delicate foreign situation, which has been handled with such skill and pure diplomatic purpose as to establish a new standard of international confidence and honor in the new world, and to infinitely advance the cause of peace and Christian civilization among the nations of America.

3rd. We endorse the policy and purpose of President Wilson in relation to Mexico, and congratulate the mothers of ten million American boys that in the stress of the past year our country's course in Mexican affairs has been directed by two great lovers of peace to whom the lives of the flower of America's young manhood are precious. We join with all patriotic Americans in the hope that the earnest efforts of President Wilson and Secretary Bryan to avert bloodshed, and maintain peace with honor, may be crowned with success.

4th. We believe it is the duty of every political party asking for power to take the people into its confidence and courageously declare its position on all public questions as they become live issues. Accordingly we pledge the nominee of this convention, if elected to Congress, to vote to submit to the people, through their respective states, an amendment to the Federal Constitution prohibiting the saloon in United States territory.

5th. We endorse and commend the efforts of the Virginia Debt Commission created by the last legislature to relieve this State from the burden of a claim that our people from deep seated conviction believe to be unjust.

6th. We denounce the present State administration in West Virginia as the most recklessly extravagant in the history of the State. It has used half of the additional levy for state purposes authorized by the legislature to make up for anticipated loss of revenue under the new prohibition law, and this for the fiscal year 1913, when the revenue for liquor licenses was yet collected. Under this the first year of Hatfield, the State collected about six hundred thousand dollars more money than the last year of Glasscock, and yet in the face of this increase in taxes, the Governor publicly proclaims the state to be practically bankrupt. If he tells the truth, something is radically wrong somewhere and we demand a rigid examination and audit, under direction of the legislature and expert accountants, of the financial affairs of the State, and that the report be made public.

We denounce the present tyrannical efforts of the Governor through appointments and otherwise to dominate all branches and divisions of State government, to subordinate all functions of government to the executive will or whim and to drive independent thinkers into submission to his will.

We deplore the substitution of force and violence for reason and law in the government of our State, and fear for our good name among the sisterhood of states if it is permitted to continue.

7th. We condemn the course of the Republican administration in this state for the manner in which they have declared, enforced and upheld martial law in certain industrial sections of this state and express our belief that it is subversive of the fundamental principles of civil liberty and in flagrant violation of the Constitutions of both state and nation.

8th. We direct attention to the Water Power question, as perhaps the most important issue now before the people of this State, and the Democratic Party now takes its stand on this issue upon the side of the people of the State, and the generations to come after us. The present water power act we believe to jeopardize important public rights.

The natural water power sites in the public streams of West Virginia belong to the people who live in the State, and we are opposed to giving them away to private capital. In generations to come when water power will be the only source of heat and light it would mean that private capital could tax the right to exist in this state.

We have always fostered the proper development of our state, but we are unalterably opposed to the exploitation of its publicly owned resources. We are opposed to granting to any person or corporation any such power site for more than a limited period of years, at the end of which time it should revert to the public. And we declare our opposition to the building of dangerously high dams across our rivers, impounding vast artificial lakes of water which would endanger the lives and homes of thousands of our citizens who live in the valleys below them. Such dams, when permitted to be built, should be only of such height and construction as not to be a menace to human life.

9th. When we declare that the people should rule, we believe this means that all the people should rule. Therefore, we favor the submission to the voters of a constitutional amendment granting the franchise to women.

10th. We favor the enactment of a fair primary election law and pledge ourselves, if in control of the next legislature, to enact such a law, and to throw around the election provided for in such act all of the provisions for safety against fraud as are provided for in general elections.

11th. We favor such amendments to the Corrupt Practices Act as will as nearly as possible entirely eliminate corruption from our elections.

12th. The Democratic Party of West Virginia recognizes as a menace to the integrity of the state and nation campaign contributions made by corporations which are seeking legislative favors antagonistic to the common interests of the whole people, and we instruct all persons who are connected with the coming campaign to refuse to accept such contributions, and we further pledge ourselves to publish all campaign contributions in sums of more than one hundred dollars and the names of the people making such contributions, before the election. If the honest, patriotic Democrats of West Virginia do not have sufficient faith in the Democratic Party to finance it without the aid of those who would prostitute it to their own selfish purposes, they do not deserve to win, and if they should win under any other conditions the victory would only result in the demoralization of the party.

13th. We recognize the growing importance of industrial peace to the business interests of this state, and we favor the enactment of such laws for the settlement of labor disputes as will enable labor and capital to cooperate upon terms of mutual interest without the war and waste of the strike and lock-out, and we pledge ourselves to the enactment of an Industrial Disputes Act which shall provide for boards of investigation and conciliation in labor disputes, which boards shall be composed of representation for capital and labor, said representatives to be selected by the parties interested in the dispute.

14th. We believe that the best interests of the people are served by the fullest participation of the electorate in governmental affairs, and to this end we pledge ourselves to the submission of a constitutional amendment providing for the initiative and referendum for all general laws enacted by the State Legislature, and we favor the enactment of a municipal code which will allow cities to change or make new charters without being compelled to go to the Legislature for that purpose.

15th. We favor such amendments to the Workmen's Compensation Act as experience may show to be necessary in order to enable the act to meet the purpose for which it was designed.

16th. We favor the abolition of the present fee system and the substitution therefor of a fair compensation to public officials in the form of a stated salary.

The Democratic Party of West Virginia plights its faith to stand true to the cause of the people on every issue that arises, and fighting as a part of the great national democracy in its battle to banish privilege and restore equal rights in the land, under the matchless leadership of Woodrow Wilson, we invite the cooperation and support of all unselfish men who believe in a republican form of government, administered out in the open light of day, and in the interest of the whole people.

Section 1. Hereafter the members of all state executive committees, all district executive committees, and county executive committees, and delegates to national conventions of every political party shall be chosen, and all candidates of political parties to be voted for by the people (except candidates for judges of the supreme court of appeals, candidates for judge of the circuit court, and candidates for judge of the criminal or intermediate court, and such candidates as are to be voted for at special election to fill vacancies, presidential candidates and electors, and candidates for office to be filled by cities, towns or villages of less than five thousand inhabitants) shall be nominated at a direct primary election, held in accordance with this act.

A political party shall be taken to be an affiliation of electors representing a political party or organization, which at the last preceding general election polled for its candidates for representatives in congress in the several districts, at least five per cent. of the entire vote cast for that office in the state.

Sec. 2. Primary elections for the purposes of this act, other than for nominating municipal candidates, shall be held in each election precinct in the state on the first Tuesday in June, next before the general election in the year in which a president of the United States is to be elected; and in all other years, on the first Tuesday in August, next before every general election; and be known and designated as the June and August primaries, respectively. The time of holding any such general primary election, and describing the object thereof, shall be published in two newspapers—if any there be—of the two opposite parties which polled the largest number of votes at the preceding general election, and published in each county of the state, of general circulation therein, once a week for two successive weeks next preceding the date of any such primary election. The time for holding primaries for the purpose of nominating municipal candidates shall be fixed by charter or ordinance of the respective municipalities; provided, that no such municipal primary shall be held on the same day as the general primary, nor less than twenty-five days immediately preceding the corresponding municipal election. The time of holding any such general or municipal primary election, and describing the object thereof, shall be published in two newspapers—if any there be—of the two opposite parties which polled the largest number of votes at the preceding general election, and published in each county of the state, of general circulation therein, once a week for two successive weeks next preceding the date of any such primary election. At all primary elections the polls shall be opened at six-thirty o'clock A. M., and closed at thirty minutes after six o'clock, P. M., eastern standard time. Said primary shall be conducted in one room at the regular voting place in each precinct.

Sec. 3. For the purposes of this act, there shall be chosen at the June primary for each political party, as hereinafter provided, a state executive committee; consisting of two members from each senatorial district, to be selected by the party voters in such district, and who shall not be residents of the same county; provided, however, that the committee elected shall appoint three additional committeemen at large; a congressional executive committee, a judicial executive committee, and a state senatorial executive committee for each of the respective congressional, judicial and state senatorial districts, each committee to consist of one member from each county in the respective districts, to be elected by the party voters of such county; and a county executive committee, consisting of two members from each magisterial district therein, except that in all cities of ten thousand or more in population there shall be one additional member of the executive committee from each ward. All members of executive committees selected for each political division, as herein provided, shall reside within the county or district, senatorial or magisterial, from which chosen; provided, that no person holding any appointive or elective political office shall be eligible to serve on any of the committees named in this section.

The term of office of all committeemen so elected shall begin on the fifteenth day of June, succeeding said June primary, and shall continue for four years thereafter and until their successors are elected and qualified. Vacancies in the state executive committee shall be filled by the members of the committee for the unexpired term. Vacancies in the congressional, judicial, senatorial and county executive committees shall be filled by the executive committee of the county in which such vacancy exists, and shall be for the unexpired term.

As soon as possible after the fifteenth of June, succeeding the selection of the new executive committees as herein provided, they shall convene within their respective political divisions, on the call of the chairman of corresponding outgoing executive committees, and proceed to select a chairman, a treasurer, and a secretary, each of which officers shall for their respective committees perform the duties that usually appertain to such offices.

The various executive committees and officers thereof, now in existence, shall exercise the powers and possess the duties herein prescribed until their successors are chosen in accordance with this act.

Sec. 4. The county court of every county shall hold a regular or special session at the court house of their county, on the second Tuesday of the month next preceding the month in which any primary election is to be held, and shall appoint three qualified voters as commissioners of election, and two poll clerks, for each precinct in their county, who shall be legal voters in such precinct. Said commissioners and poll clerks shall be persons of good standing and character, and not addicted to drunkenness. They shall be selected from the two political parties which at the last preceding general election cast the highest number of votes in the county in which the election is to be held, and not more than two of said commissioners shall belong to the same political party. But if at any time during said session the county executive committee of either political party from which said commissioners of election and poll clerks are to be selected or appointed, as hereinafter provided for, shall present to said court a writing signed by them, or by the chairman of said committee on their behalf, requesting the appointment of a qualified voter of their political party for commissioner and poll clerk, respectively, and who is otherwise qualified to act as such under the provisions of this act, it shall be the duty of the county court to appoint the person so named in such writing as such commissioner and poll clerk. No person shall be eligible to appointment as commissioner or poll clerk, or in any way to act as such, who has anything of value bet or wagered on the result of such primary election or has received a promise, agreement or understanding that he is to receive appointment as deputy from any candidate to be voted for at such primary election, or has any agreement, understanding or arrangement that he shall receive any sum of money or any portion of the salary, fees or emoluments of any office, for which any candidate to be voted for, at said primary election, should said candidate be nominated at such primary election and elected to such office at the ensuing general election, or who is a candidate to be voted for at such primary election.

If any of the commissioners of election and poll clerks so selected shall fail to appear at the hour appointed for the opening of the polls, the remainder of the commissioners may select a commissioner and poll clerk, if necessary, who shall be of the same political party as the absent commissioner or poll clerk; but if the qualified voters of the party of such absent commissioner or poll clerk, present at the polls, shall nominate a voter having the same qualifications to act under the provisions of this section, for commissioner or poll clerk, or both if necessary, such nominee or nominees shall be appointed. If none of the commissioners of election or poll clerks appear at the hour appointed for opening the polls, the qualified voters present, being at least ten in number, shall elect three commissioners of election, and two poll clerks, to act in their stead, by a viva voce vote; not more than two of such commissioners and one poll clerk shall belong to or be elected by the same political party, as herein provided for.

A list of all commissioners and poll clerks appointed by the county court as herein provided, shall be published in two newspapers of general circulation in the county, of opposite politics, if such there be, for at least two weeks prior to such general primary election.

Sec. 5. The said county executive committees, or the chairmen thereof, mentioned in section four of this chapter, shall on or before the second Tuesday next preceding the month in which any primary election is to be held, name a member of their respective parties, as a primary ballot commissioner, who, together with the clerk of the circuit court, shall constitute a board of primary ballot commissioners for such primary election. If any person so named fails or refuses to serve as such ballot commissioner, the vacancy shall be filled by the chairman of the executive committee.

Sec. 6. The clerk of the county court shall provide and cause to be delivered to one of said commissioners in each of the several election precincts of said county at least three days previous to any primary election, a duly certified copy of the list of registered voters for their respective precincts; also (after the first general primary), the affirmation books used at the respective precincts at the last preceding general election; also the blank affirmation book called for in section thirteen of this act, which blank book shall have pages arranged for signing names alphabetically, with columns for entering place of residence, street and number; also proper poll books bearing on the front page of each the following head: "Names of persons voting for candidates, at precinct number, in the district of, in the county of, this day of, in the year" Said poll books shall have columns headed respectively, "Number of Voters;" "Names of Voters;" "Residence of Voters;" "Party Affiliation." Each clerk shall list the name of each voter in the proper poll book, and properly set out the information as to each as indicated in the heading of the column in said poll books. The said clerk of the county court shall also furnish proper booths and ballot boxes as provided at general elections; and also strong and durable envelopes for returns, and whatever else is necessary for holding the primary election and making due return thereof, as herein provided.

All ballots used in primary elections shall be printed on paper conforming as nearly as practicable in weight, texture and color, to the samples furnished by the secretary of state, and the paper shall be sufficiently thick that the printing can not be discernable from the back. On the back of the ballot shall be printed in black ink, and in plain, legible, black face pica type the name of the political party as contained in the heading, followed by the word "ballot." Under this designation shall be printed blank lines followed by the words, "poll clerks."

Sec. 13. On entering the election room, the voter shall announce his name, and if he is duly registered, or has obtained transfer as provided by law, he shall sign his name and place of residence in a book of the party whose ballot he wishes to cast, which book shall be paged alphabetically, and have at the top of the page thereof in form and effect the following oath or affirmation with blank spaces properly filled in as to the party and precinct as indicated: "The undersigned do each for himself severally swear or affirm that I am a regular and qualified member and voter of the party, and am a duly qualified resident and voter in precinct No., district, county, West Virginia, and reside at the place designated opposite my name signed hereunder; that the one ballot which I am about to cast will be the only primary election ballot cast this day by me; that I have neither received, nor do I expect to receive, anything of value for myself or another, given or promised with the manifest intent to influence my vote or the vote of another or others at this time."

Having so signed, said voter shall be allowed to cast the ballot of the party named in said oath or affirmation. Every voter whose name is so signed upon said affirmation book, shall be conclusively presumed to have taken the same in due form. Said affirmation book, together with all written affidavits made at said primary, shall be placed in a strong and durable envelope and securely sealed by the commissioners of election, and each commissioner shall write his name across the back of such envelope, which shall be delivered by one of said commissioners to the clerk of the circuit court, who shall preserve said affirmation book in his office, and deliver the affidavits to the foreman of the grand jury when next in session, as provided by section eighty-three of chapter three of the code. Those falsely making affidavits shall be subject to the same penalties as provided in section fifty-one of the same chapter, in connection with all other penalties prescribed by law. Section fifty of said chapter three of the code is specifically made to apply to primary elections.

The clerks shall write their names at the place designated on the back of the official ballot called for, and deliver it to the voter, who shall have but one ballot, unless he shall return the same spoiled; if he shall return the same spoiled, the clerks shall immediately destroy the ballot so spoiled, and deliver to him another ballot in the same manner as they delivered the first one. The voter shall then forthwith, and without leaving the room, retire alone to the booth or compartment prepared for the purpose, and there prepare his ballot. Any voter who so desires shall receive the assistance as provided in section sixty of chapter three of the code. After preparing the ballot the voter shall fold the same so that the face shall not be exposed, but so fold it as to show plainly the name of the political party and the names of the poll clerks signed thereon. The voter shall then announce his name and present his ballot to the commissioner of his party, if there be one, who shall hand the same to another election officer, who shall deposit it in the ballot box; provided, that said ballot is the official one properly signed. The poll clerks shall then enter the name of the voter on their respective poll books, and number the same in the order in which the ballot was cast. When the voter has voted, he shall retire immediately from the election room, and beyond the sixty foot limit thereof, and shall not return, except by permission of the commissioner.

If any person is unable to sign the affirmation book, by physical disability or otherwise, the same shall be signed for him by one of the poll clerks, and such person shall make his mark.

Sec. 14. When the polls are closed, the commissioners of election and the poll clerks shall proceed to ascertain the result of the election as follows:

First. All ballots remaining not voted shall be immediately destroyed by burning or otherwise, and before the ballot box is opened.

Second. The commissioners and clerks shall ascertain from the party affirmation book, and set down therein, the total number of ballots of each party cast.

Third. The ballot box shall be opened and one of the commissioners shall take therefrom one ballot at a time, in the presence of all the other officers, and shall announce what political party's ballot it is, and shall read therefrom the result of the vote on such ballot for each office, and hand the ballot to another of said commissioners differing in politics from himself, who, if satisfied that it is correctly read, shall string the same on a thread. The ballots of each party shall be strung on separate threads. Each poll clerk shall keep an accurate tally of the contents of each ballot of each party on tally papers, which shall be provided for the purpose, so as to show the number of votes received by every person for any office. The ballots shall be counted as they are strung upon the thread, and whenever the number counted for any party shall equal the number of votes entered upon the affirmation book of that party, any other ballot of such party found in the ballot box shall be immediately destroyed by fire or otherwise, without unfolding the same, or allowing any one to examine or know the contents thereof.

Fourth. As soon as the results at such precinct are ascertained, the commissioners and clerks shall make out and sign two certificates for each party represented of the vote for all candidates of such party, in the following form:

"Certificate of Result for.....Party Candidates..

"We, the undersigned, commissioners and poll clerks of the primary election held at precinct No. of district of county, W. Va.; on the day of 19...., do hereby certify that, having been first duly sworn, we have carefully and impartially ascertained the result of said election at said precinct for the candidates on the official ballot of the party, and the same is as follows:

"For the office of governor, A. B. received.....votes.

"For the office of governor, E. F. received.....votes.

"For the office of governor, G. H. received.....votes."

(And so on as to each office for which any candidate was voted for, stating in words and figures the number of votes cast for each candidate.)

"Given under our hands this day of, 19....

The two certificates for each party shall then be sealed, each in a separate envelope, furnished for the purpose, and all ballots voted for candidates of each party shall be sealed up in separate envelopes, and the commissioners and clerks shall each sign his name across the seals.

Sec. 15. It shall be the duty of the board of primary ballot commissioners to appoint one of the commissioners of election at each precinct of the county to attend at the offices of the clerks of the circuit and court courts at least three days before each primary election, to receive the ballots, ballot box, poll books and all other supplies and material for conducting the election at his precinct, as provided in this act; and the said clerks shall deliver to such commissioner the ballots, ballot box, poll books and other supplies required to be furnished by this act for conducting the election at such precinct, and take from him receipts for same, which shall be filed in their respective offices. It shall be the duty of such commissioner to attend at said clerk's office and to receive the said ballots and all other election supplies used in conducting the election at his precinct, and to deliver the same, with the seal of all sealed packages unbroken, at his election precinct, in time to open the election. Said commissioner shall receive the per diem and mileage allowed by law for this service.

In case any commissioner of election so appointed shall fail to appear at the offices of the clerks of said county and circuit courts by the close of the second day prior to any election, as required by this section, the board of ballot commissioners, or the chairman thereof, shall forthwith dispatch a special messenger to his precinct with the ballots, poll books, ballot box and other supplies for such precinct. Such messenger shall be allowed two dollars for his time, and five cents per mile for the distance necessary to be traveled by him, and shall promptly report to the clerk of the circuit court and file with him receipts of the person to whom he delivered such ballots and other supplies, and his affidavit, stating when and to whom he delivered them.

Sec. 16. If by any accident or casualty the ballot boxes, poll books or any of the other supplies delivered to a commissioner of election or to any messenger shall be lost or destroyed, it shall be the duty of such commissioner or messenger to report the loss forthwith to the board of ballot commissioners, or the clerk of the court from whom the same were obtained, and make affidavit of the circumstances of the loss; whereupon such board or clerk shall at once send a new supply by messenger, as provided in other cases.

Sec. 17. It shall be the duty of the commissioner of election at each precinct who was appointed to attend at the offices of the clerks of the county and circuit courts, respectively, and receive the ballot boxes, poll books and other supplies for his precinct, without delay to return to the clerk of the county court the ballot boxes and the several packages of ballots, poll books, tally sheets and certificates, and all other returns of election, except the packages addressed to the clerk of the circuit court, which shall contain one poll book, one tally sheet, and one certificate of each political party, which package he shall deliver to such clerk. If, for any good reason, such commissioner cannot act, one of the other commissioners shall be selected by them to discharge said duty.

Sec. 18. When any such election is held in a county or district, the county court sitting as a board of canvassers shall meet at the court house thereof on Friday next succeeding any general primary election, and publicly, carefully and impartially ascertain the result of such election in the county and in the district, and election precincts thereof, and cause to be prepared and recorded in the primary election precinct record book, a table or tables which shall show as to each candidate of each political party for each office, the number of votes cast for him at each precinct, and the total number thereof cast in the entire county.

The board shall then make up and enter in said record book a certificate for each political party, showing as to each candidate for each political party for each office, the total number of votes, (in words and also in figures) cast for him in the entire county, the number of votes received by all the candidates of such party in such district, which shall be in the following form:

"The board of canvassers of the county of....., state of West Virginia, having carefully and impartially examined the returns of the primary election held in said county on the day of, 19...., do hereby certify that in said county or district at said election, on the official ballot of the party for the office of A. And so on for each particular office for each political party according to the truth.

When the certificates are all entered, the report shall be signed by the members of the board or a majority thereof. Said members shall also sign separate certificates of the result of said election, within the county, for each of the offices to be filed by each political party, as provided by the next section.

Sec. 19. The certificates of the board of canvassers made pursuant to the preceding section shall be by them disposed of as follows: One of the certificates showing the votes received by each candidate of each party for each office to be filed by the voters of a political division greater than a county, including state committeemen, shall be filed with the secretary of state, and by him preserved in his office, and a copy thereof filed in the office of the clerk of the circuit court of the county of such board to be preserved by such clerk, and which shall be open to public inspection. One certificate showing the votes received by each candidate of each party for each office to be filled by the voters of the county or magisterial district within such county, shall be filed with the clerk of the circuit court, and by him preserved in his office. If requested, the board of canvassers will furnish to the county chairman of each political party a certificate, showing the number of votes received by all the candidates of such party in the county or magisterial district therein.

The secretary of state shall certify, under the seal of the state, to the clerk of the circuit court of each county in which a candidate is to be voted for, the name of the candidate of each political party receiving the highest number of votes in the political division in which he is a candidate, and who is entitled to have his name placed on the official ballot in the general election as the nominee of his party for such office.

Sec. 20. If any vacancy occurs in the nominees of any party after the holding of any primary election, the same shall be filled by the executive committee of that party, in the municipality, county, district or state, as the case may be.

The candidates for all offices to be filled by the voters of a political division greater than a county shall, at the time of filing with the secretary of state the nomination, petition and affidavits as required by this chapter, also file a certified check for the amount of their respective assessments, and take receipts for same.

The candidates for nomination for all offices to be filled by the voters of a county or district therein, shall pay to the sheriff of the county the amount of their assessments, required by this section, and take from such sheriff duplicate receipts, one of which shall be filed with the chairman of the board of ballot commissioners.

The secretary of state shall apportion the amounts so paid to him hereunder among the several counties entitled thereto, and remit the same to the sheriffs of such counties, within twenty days after the time for filing nomination announcements closes.

The sums so paid under the provisions of this section shall be applied

In the several counties towards defraying the expenses of the general primary election, and the balance, if any, shall be used for county purposes.

In the case of municipalities, said fee shall be paid to the municipal treasurer, or corresponding officer, and a receipt issued by him in triplicate.

Sec. 22. The action of the board of canvassers, or of any political committee, at any primary election, may be appealed from by any candidate thereat, to the circuit court of the county. All such contests shall be governed by the provisions of the code of West Virginia, so far as the same are applicable, as found in chapter six thereof.

Sec. 23. The expense of said general primary election and the per diem of election officers shall be paid by the county court the same as other election expenses are now provided for and paid by general law: provided, that no compensation to any member of any executive committee shall be included in said expense.

Candidates for public office may be nominated otherwise than by direct primary election. In such case, a certificate shall be signed by voters resident within the state, district or political division for which the candidate is presented, to a number equal to five per cent. of the entire vote cast at the last preceding election in the state, circuit, district, county or other division for which the nomination is made. No voter signing such certificate shall be counted unless his residence and postoffice address be designated. Such certificates shall state the name and residence of each of such candidates; that he is legally qualified to hold such office; that the subscribers desire and are legally qualified to vote for such candidates; and may designate, by not more than five words, a brief name of the party or principle which said candidates represent. No person shall be legally qualified to sign such a certificate who participated in a direct primary election held in accordance with this act. Every person not legally qualified to sign such a certificate and who subscribes his name to the same shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars, and a justice of the peace shall have jurisdiction in such case.

Such certificates shall not be circulated to be signed by voters until after the direct primary election provided for in this act and such certificates shall be filed within the time and with the same officers as is prescribed by law for the making up of the official ballot and all candidates nominated by the signing of such certificates shall pay the sums as provided for in section twenty-two of this act and unless such sums have been so paid no candidates so nominated shall be eligible to hold the office for which he is a candidate. The money so paid shall be used for county purposes.

Sec. 24. All provisions of chapters three and five of the code of West Virginia, so far as the same are not in conflict with and are not modified by this act, shall, so far as they are germane, apply to and are hereby made applicable to the primary elections.

Sec. 25. Any primary election officer, members of any political committee or other person, who shall wilfully fail and neglect to perform any duty by this act required of him, or who shall tamper with, change or destroy any ballot, return or certificate of election, or delay the return of ballot boxes, ballots and other election returns to the county clerk, or wilfully do any other act, the object of which is to destroy any ballot, or the record of any canvass of votes, or in any way wilfully interfere with the utmost honesty and fairness in conducting any such primary election, or in making nominations thereat, and any voter who shall cast more than one primary election ballot on the same day, or who shall vote under a name other than that by which he is generally known, who shall make any false oath, affirmation or affidavit respecting the right of himself or any other person to vote, shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof, shall be confined in the penitentiary not less than one year nor more than three years.

Sec. 26. No candidate shall be considered a nominee nor his name be placed on the regular election ballot by the ballot commissioners until said candidate has filed the affidavit required by the corrupt practices act as to the amount of expenses as provided by said act.

Sec. 27. The state executive committee of each party may make such rules for the government of such party, not inconsistent with law, as may be deemed expedient; and it may also revoke, or alter, or amend, in any manner not inconsistent with law, any present or future rules of such party; and all acts of such state or other committees may be reviewable by the courts.

National committeemen shall be elected by the state committee of each respective party, unless the rules of the national party otherwise provide, in which case they shall be elected in the manner provided by the rules of the national party; and all state committeemen shall be elected by senatorial districts.

Vacancies happening at any time in the office of national committeemen shall be filled by the state committee of the respective parties, unless the rules of the national party otherwise provide; and vacancies in all other committees shall be filled as provided in section three of this act.

Nothing in this chapter contained shall be so construed as to prohibit any political committee from appointing any sub-committee of its own members, or other committee charged with any duty named in the order or resolution providing for the selection of said sub-committee; nor the appointment of any campaign or central committee to have charge of the administrative or executive work of the political campaign; but no such central committee or sub-committee shall be competent to discharge any duties devolved by this chapter on any political party committee, or the members thereof.

Sec. 28. Municipal executive committees shall exercise similar functions and be governed by the same laws in regard to primary elections as county executive committees in regard to general primary elections, so far as the same may be applicable. All expenses of conducting such primary election shall be paid by the municipality.

The provision of this act referring more specifically to primary election shall, so far as the same can be applied, and not otherwise provided, govern the conduct of municipal primary elections.

Sec. 29. Between the first and fifteenth day of August in each year in which a president of the United States is to be elected, each political party shall at some convenient place to be designated by the chairman of the state committee thereof, hold a meeting for the purpose, and shall formulate and promulgate a state platform, and select presidential electors for the state at large, and each congressional district. And if at the said election a judge or judges of the supreme court of appeals is or are to be elected, the candidates of such party for such judge shall be nominated, and the name of such candidates for such offices of judge, and elector shall be certified by the officers of said convention to the secretary of state.

Candidates for judges of the circuit court of the several circuits, as well as judges of the intermediate and criminal courts of those counties having such courts, shall also be nominated by similar conventions in their respective circuits and counties, and the results similarly certified to the clerks of the circuit courts of the counties composing such circuits and counties having such intermediate and criminal courts.

The respective executive committees of each party shall have the right and power to adopt such rules as they shall see fit to govern the holding of such conventions, and the number and selection of delegates to the same.

Any nominations so made shall have the same force and effect as if made by a primary.

Sec. 30. Of the candidates for each office respectively, including that of party committeemen and delegates and alternates to national conventions, the one receiving a plurality of the votes cast for the candidate for that office by his political party in the territory for which he is a candidate, shall be declared the nominee of his party for the office for which he was a candidate.

Sec. 31. In presidential election years, in addition to the candidates hereinbefore required to be nominated at the general primary election, the qualified voters of each political party shall have the opportunity of voting for their choice among those aspiring to be the candidates of their respective parties for the President of the United States. The names of such aspirants shall be printed on the official primary election ballot of their respective parties, as provided in section twelve of this chapter, upon the filing with the secretary of state the announcement as provided in section eight of this act, and the ballot shall be marked and the vote shall be counted, canvassed and returned under the same condition as to names, certificates and other matters, as the names and certificates of the party aspirants for the party nomination for the office of governor.

Any person or persons who shall become a candidate for delegate or alternate to the national convention as herein provided shall file with his announcement, or include therein, a statement as to whether or not he will support the popular choice of such primary.

Sec. 32. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent and in conflict with this act, are hereby repealed.

DIGEST OF THE CORRUPT PRACTICES ACT

At all primary elections records of receipts and expenditures for political purposes must be kept by or in behalf of all candidates; sworn statements of such receipts and expenditures must be made and filed as public records by all candidates and by their political agents, representatives, or any person acting for or on their behalf and by the treasurers of all political committees.

Every political committee must appoint and maintain a treasurer and all moneys received or expended for political purposes by any member of the committee must pass through the treasurer's hands. No person may act as such treasurer unless a written statement designating him as such is filed with the secretary of state or with the county clerk of each county in the district within which he serves at least sixty days before the primary or election at which he is to act.

Candidates, financial agents and treasurers must keep detailed accounts of all money or its equivalent received by them, of disbursements made and liabilities incurred either by themselves or by any person acting in their behalf.

Statements Must Be Filed.

The act requires the filing of itemized statements as follows:

"Not less than seven nor more than fifteen days before each primary election, and again within thirty days after each primary or other election, every candidate for public office (except in towns of less than five thousand population), and every financial agent, and the treasurer of every political committee, shall file with the officers hereinafter prescribed a detailed, itemized statement subscribed and sworn to before an officer authorized to administer oaths, setting forth all financial transactions in connection with such primary or other election: Such statement shall show each and every sum of money or other thing of value contributed or advanced; the name of each person, firm, association or committee by whom it was contributed or advanced; the name of each person, firm, association or committee by whom it was contributed or advanced; the amount and purpose of every expenditure made or liability incurred, and the name of each person, firm, association or committee to whom such expenditure was made or liability incurred, with dates of each transaction.

"Any unexpended balance remaining in the hands of the treasurer of any political committee at the time of making the statements herein provided for, shall be properly accounted for in said statement and shall appear as a balance in the next following report of such treasurer or his successor in office.

"Such sworn statement shall be filed with the secretary of state by candidates for state and other offices to be nominated or elected by the votes of a political division greater than a county; with the clerk of the county court by candidates for offices to be nominated or elected by the votes of a county or district therein, and by all candidates for other offices not otherwise provided for, and with the clerk or recorder of the city in the case of candidates for city offices."

Blank Forms Provided.

Blank forms for these statements must be furnished by the secretary of state, and the statements when filled in are to be filed with the proper officials and preserved for one year. Failure to file such sworn statement subjects the delinquent to fine or imprisonment. Such failure also prevents the name of a delinquent candidate from being placed on the ballot in the primary, and no such delinquent can take the oath of office or enter on the duties of any office to which he may have been elected, nor shall he receive any salary or emolument for any period prior to the filing of the required statement.

Corporation Contributions Barred.

No contributions from corporations for political purposes may be either made or solicited. This applies to officers of such corporations and to individuals acting in behalf of such corporations.

No candidate, financial agent or treasurer of a committee shall pay, give or lend, or agree to pay, give or lend, either directly or indirectly, any money or other thing of value for any except certain specified expenses.

Expenditures Limited.

No payment shall be made and no liability shall be incurred by or on behalf of any candidate for office in this state to aid in securing his nomination or election, or both, which shall in the aggregate exceed the amounts herein provided for; that is to say, candidates for United States senate or any state office, the sum of seventy-five dollars for each county in the state for the primary election, and a like amount for the general election; candidates for members of the legislature, the amount of one hundred and twenty-five dollars in each county in which said candidate is voted for, for the primary election, and a like amount for the general election; for members of the United States house of representatives, the sum of seventy-five dollars for each county in the district at the primary election, and a like amount for the general election; for any county office not to exceed two hundred dollars in each county at the primary election, and a like amount for the general election; for any other office, not hereinbefore mentioned, a sum not to exceed fifty dollars in the political division in which such person is a candidate in the primary election, and a like amount for the general election.

Any candidate may delegate to a financial agent or a political committee, in writing duly subscribed by him, the expenditure of any portion of the total expenses authorized to be incurred by him or on his behalf; but the aggregate of all expenses made and incurred by such candidate, by any political agent on his behalf and by any political committee on his behalf, shall not exceed the amounts hereinbefore provided.

No payments shall be made and no liability shall be incurred by any financial agent or political committee which shall exceed in the aggregate the sum of the amounts theretofore delegated to such committee by the candidate, in writing, as hereinbefore provided.

Disqualified From Holding Office.

Corrupt practices and practices forbidden are specifically described and enumerated in the act, and persons guilty of such practices, on conviction, are disqualified from voting or holding office for a period of five years. The promise or offer of any money or thing of value or of any office, place or employment, public or private, to or for any voter, in order to induce any voter to vote or refrain from voting, or to vote for any particular person or candidate, is a misdemeanor, and is punishable by fine or imprisonment and by disqualification for voting or holding office for a period of five years. In all cases where a candidate is convicted of any corrupt practice the penalty includes forfeiture of the office to which he may have been elected in addition to fine or imprisonment.

A Judiciary Inquiry.

At any time within sixty days after any primary or other election, the attorney general, any prosecuting attorney, any candidates voted for at such election, or any one hundred qualified voters, upon giving bond to indemnify the person whose election is contested, from all costs, attorney's fee and expenses incurred by him in defending his title to office in the event that such person's title to his office is upheld, may present to any circuit judge a petition setting forth under oath, upon information or personal knowledge, that corrupt and illegal practices contrary to the provision of this act, specifying the same, were committed in connection with such election, naming any candidate as defendant, and praying for a judicial inquiry into the alleged facts.

If such judge shall be of the opinion that the interests of public justice require such a judicial inquiry, he shall authorize such inquiry.

Such petition shall be tried without a jury; the petitioner or petitioners, and all candidates at such election, shall be entitled to appear and be heard as parties; and the court shall have power to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of books and papers which are relevant and material and all the evidence taken shall be properly certified and made a part of the record of such proceeding.

If any such court shall decide that any successful candidate so petitioned against, in person or through his political agent, had committed corrupt or illegal practices, sufficient to materially influence the result, the election of such candidate shall be void.

Corrupt Practices Forbidden.

Among the "practices forbidden" in the act is that of soliciting contributions from employes of the government by any official. No officer of government in charge of any building, office or room, occupied for official purposes, shall permit any person to enter the same for the purpose of collecting political assessments. It is also provided that no person shall publish, issue or circulate, or cause to be published, issued or circulated, any anonymous letter, circular, placard, or other publication tending to influence voting at any election.

No owner, publisher, editor or employe of any newspaper or other periodical shall insert, either in its advertising or reading columns any matter paid or to be paid for, which tends to influence directly or indirectly, the voting of any election whatever, unless it is distinctly designated as a paid advertisement, and states the name of the person authorizing its publication and the candidate in whose behalf it is published.

In addition to the above, other corrupt practices are defined and inhibited, as follows:

“(a) Any person, other than a financial agent or a member of a political committee, duly appointed and designated as provided in this act, who shall solicit from any candidate for nomination or election to any public office, any money, gift, contribution, benefit or expense of any person or persons, club, company, organization, religious body, society, association, or for any other purposes except as herein provided, or for the expenses of any primary or other election campaign.

“(b) Any person who shall demand, solicit, ask or invite any candidate to make any contribution or incur any obligation to any religious, charitable or fraternal cause, or organization other than political committees duly designated under the provisions of this act, or to buy tickets to any entertainments or ball, or to subscribe or pay for space in any book, program, periodical, or promise any such payment or contribution with the apparent hope or intent to influence the result of any election; provided, that this paragraph shall not apply to the solicitation of any business advertisements in a periodical in which such candidate regularly advertised prior to his candidacy, nor to ordinary business advertising, nor to the regular and normal payments to any religious, charitable or other organization to which he may have been a contributor for more than six months before his candidacy.

“(c) Any person who shall, directly or indirectly, by himself or by any other person on his behalf, make use of, or threaten to make use of, any force, violence or restraint, or inflict, or threaten to inflict any damage, harm or loss, upon or against any person, or by any other means attempt to intimidate or exert any undue influence, in order to induce such person to vote or refrain from voting, or on account of such person voted or refrained from voting, at any election, or who shall by abduction, duress or any fraudulent device or contrivance, impede or prevent the free exercise of the suffrage by any elector, or shall thereby compel, induce or prevail upon any elector either to vote or refrain from voting for or against any particular candidate or measure.

“(d) Any person who, being an employer, or acting for or on behalf of any employer, shall give any notice or information to his employes, containing any threat, either express or implied, intended or calculated to influence the political view or actions of his workmen or employes.

“(e) Any person who shall, knowingly, make or publish, or cause to be made or published, any false statement in regard to any candidate, which statement is intended or tends to affect any voting at any election whatever.

“(f) Any person who shall pay any owner, publisher, editor or employe, or any newspaper or other periodical to advocate or oppose editorially, any candidate for nomination or election, or any political party, or any measure to be submitted to the vote of the people; any owner, publisher, editor or employe who shall solicit or accept such payment."

How Money May Be Used.

Within the limits of lawful expenditure permitted by the act, candidates and their financial agents and treasurers of committees may pay out money for the following enumerated purposes only:

"First. For rent, maintenance and furnishing of offices to be used as political headquarters and for the payment of necessary clerks, stenographers, typewriters, janitors and messengers actually employed therein.

"Second. For printing and distributing books, pamphlets, circulars and other printed matter relating to political issues and candidates and painting, printing and posting signs, banners and other advertisements.

"Third. For renting and decorating halls for public meetings and political conventions, for advertising public meetings and for the payment and transportation of speakers and musicians at such meetings.

"Fourth. For the necessary traveling and hotel expenses of candidates, political agents and committees, and for stationery, postage, telegrams, telephone, express, freight and public messenger service.

"Fifth. For preparing, circulating and filing petitions for nomination of candidates.

"Sixth. For examining the lists of registered voters, investigating the right to vote of the persons listed therein, and conducting proceedings to prevent unlawful registration or voting.

"Seventh. For conveying infirm or disabled voters to and from the polls.

"Every liability incurred and payment made shall be at a rate and for a total amount which is proper and reasonable and fairly commensurate with the services rendered."

(The joint resolution submitting this amendment was adopted by the Legislature of West Virginia February 28, 1915.)

That the following be and the same is hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of this state, to-wit:

That section one of article four of said Constitution as it now is, be altered and amended so as to read as follows:

Section 1. The citizens of the state, both male and female, shall be entitled to vote at all elections held within the counties in which they respectively reside; but no person who is a minor, or of unsound mind, or a pauper, or who is under conviction of treason, felony, or bribery in an election, or who has not been a resident of the state for one year, and of the county in which he or she offers to vote, for sixty days next preceding such offer, shall be permitted to vote while such disability continues; but no person in the military, naval or marine service of the United States shall be deemed a resident of this state by reason of being stationed therein.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT RELATING TO COUNTY COURTS.

To Be Voted Upon at the General Election, Tuesday, November 7, 1916.

(The joint resolution submitting this amendment was adopted by the Legislature of West Virginia, February 24, 1915.)

That article eight, section twenty-three of the constitution, be amended so as to read as follows:

Sec. 23. The commissioners shall be elected by the voters of the county, and hold their office for the term of six years, except at the first meeting of said commissioners they shall designate by lot, or otherwise in such manner as they may determine, one of their number who shall hold his office for a term of two years, one for four years and one for six years, so that one shall be elected every two years. But no two of said commissioners shall be elected from the same magisterial district. But if two or more persons residing in the same district shall receive the greater number of votes cast at any election, then only the one of such persons receiving the highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and the person living in another district who shall receive the next highest number of votes shall be declared elected.

Said commissioners shall annually elect one of their number as president, and each shall receive four dollars per day for his services in court, to be paid out of the county treasury; provided, however, that said payment of four dollars per day shall not exceed the sum of four hundred dollars per year for each commissioner; and, provided, further, that such compensation may be increased in any county by the assent of a majority of the votes cast on the question at any general or special election.

ELECTIVE STATE OFFICERS.

Governor.

HENRY D. HATFIELD (Republican) the son of Elias and Elizabeth (Chafins) Hatfield was born on a farm on Mate Creek, Logan County, West Virginia, September 15, 1875, and received his earlier education in the common schools. In 1888 he entered Franklin College, at New Athens, Ohio, from which he graduated in 1890 with the degree of Bachelor of Arts. His professional education as a physician and surgeon was commenced at Rush Medical College, Chicago, in the same year, and continued at the University of Louisville. He graduated at the latter institution in 1893 with the degree of Doctor of Medicine, and the following year located at Matewan, Mingo county, where he practiced his profession a short time, removing then to Thacker, in the same county, and finally to Eckman, McDowell county, which is now his legal place of residence.

In 1903 Dr. Hatfield entered New York University from which he graduated in 1904, with the degree of Doctor of Medicine. At numerous times he has done post graduate work at the New York Polyclinic, the Post Graduate Medical School of New York City, Cornell University, the University of Pennsylvania, Mayo's Clinics, at Rochester, Minnesota, and Mercy Hospital, Chicago.

Politically, Dr. Hatfield has always been a Republican. In 1896 he walked twelve miles to an old log school house, on Mate Creek—known as the "Henry Mitchell school house"—to cast his first vote for William McKinley for President, and ever since then has been conscientious and unswerving in his devotion to the cause of Republicanism. A firm believer in the cardinal principle of protection, he attributes the growth and prosperity of the State and Nation to its practical application, and believes that industrial and financial depression naturally follow as a result of the abandonment of that principle.

Shortly after the act was passed by the legislature in 1899 establishing three miners' hospitals in West Virginia, Governor Atkinson appointed Dr. Hatfield a member of the board of directors of the one that was located at Welch, in the county of McDowell. To this position he was reappointed by Governor White, and later by Governor Dawson, serving on the board until the management of the institution was taken over by the State Board of Control in 1909. During the entire period of his service as a director, Dr. Hatfield never accepted any compensation. Starting with the very foundation of the hospital, he superintended the proper planning and construction of its buildings, and after their completion, furnished the operating room—free of cost to the State—with its first surgical equipment and X-Ray machine. For twelve years he was chief surgeon of the institution, never asking or expecting any remuneration for his work. Aside from this, he contributed liberally of his time and professional experience in many other ways for the development and improvement of the institution, until it was brought up to the high standard of excellence for which it is noted. While Dr. Hatfield was still connected with the hospital, a former Governor of West Virginia—in speaking of him to the writer of this sketch—said: "There is a man who is worth five thousand dollars a year to the State of West Virginia and but few people appreciate it." For fifteen years, and covering the period of his connection with Miners' Hospital No. 1, Dr. Hatfield was District Surgeon for the Norfolk & Western Railway Company.

In 1906 he was elected a member of the county court of McDowell county. During his term of office he was instrumental in bringing about many improvements and reforms in the administration of affairs, one of the most important being the working of jail prisoners, convicted of misdemeanors, on the public highways, instead of permitting them to lie idly in jail, a burden and expense to the county. Through the inauguration of this system over sixty miles of good, substantial roads have been built in McDowell county.

In the summer of 1908 Hon. W. W. Whyte, who had been renominated for the State Senate by the Republicans of the Sixth District, withdrew from the ticket and it became necessary for the senatorial committee—of which Dr. Hatfield was a member—to fill the vacancy. At a meeting of the committee, at which the Doctor was present, his name was proposed for the place. Against this he protested, and by voting against the proposition "tied" the committee and an adjournment was had. Subsequently, during his absence from home, another meeting of the committee was held and his name was placed upon the ticket. At the November election his majority in the district was over 6,000.

In the legislative session of 1909 Dr. Hatfield was chairman of the committee on Railroads and also of the committee on Medicine and Sanitation, and ranking member of the Finance Committee. While interested in all general measures that came before the Senate he directed his attention specially to those affecting public institutions and those that had for their object the protection and improvement of the public health.

The session of 1911 was one that will long be remembered in the history of the State. The Senate was evenly divided politically, which resulted in serious and threatening embarrassments in connection with its permanent organization. This condition continued for eighteen days, when the Democrats conceded the presidency of the Senate to the Republicans with the provision that Dr. Hatfield should be chosen to fill the place. He was elected by acclamation on Saturday, the 28th day of January, 1911, and presided over the Senate during the remainder of the session. As a presiding officer he was dignified and courteous; his rulings were made with the utmost fairness, and he commanded the respect and esteem of the entire body.

The presidency of the Senate brought him prominently into the political limelight, and soon after the adjournment of the session leading Republicans throughout the State began to appeal to him to become a candidate for Governor. He declined repeatedly, on the ground that he would be making too great a sacrifice, professionally, but after persistent and urgent solicitations finally yielded to the wishes of his friends, who were of the opinion that he was the only Republican in the State who could harmonize the factional elements then existing and lead the party to victory. He was nominated in the primary by a large majority and at the general election had a plurality of 8,770 over his Democratic opponent. He is the only man of his profession who has ever held an elective State office.

Governor Hatfield is a member of the Christian church; also of the Masons, Elks, Independent Order of Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias. In 1915 Bethany College conferred upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

An interesting account of Governor Hatfield's administration, and its many accomplishments, up to the time of the preparation of this brief biography, will be found in the "Historical Sketch of West Virginia," beginning at page 371 of this volume.

Secretary of State.

STUART F. REED (Republican) was born and reared on a farm about eighteen miles south of Clarksburg, West Virginia, in the region where his ancestors located over a century ago. His parents, Milton D. and Margaret (Stuart) Reed, died at Buckhannon, his mother in 1914 and his father in 1915. He has two sisters living, Mrs. E. M. Jackson of Buckhannon and Mrs. C. C. Wentz of San Antonio, Texas.

By working on the farm and saving his earnings, Mr. Reed managed to attend the Fairmont Normal School and later the West Virginia University. Upon completing his studies at the University, he secured an interest in the Clarksburg Telegram, and was for eight years its editor. Receiving the nomination for the twenty-third State Senate without opposition, he was elected as its youngest member. He has been a member of the Board of Regents of the West Virginia University, a member of the Republican State Committee and a member of the Executive Committee of the National League of Republican Clubs. Mr. Reed was President of the West Virginia Editorial Association three terms and was one of the founders of the National Republican Editorial Association of the United States. He has served as President of the Board of Trustees of Broadus Institute, Vice-Chairman of the West Virginia Semi-Centennial Commission, Eminent Commander of the Knights Templars, and was selected as President of the first Young Men's Christian Association Convention, at Charleston. He was elected Secretary of State in 1908 and re-elected in 1912 receiving 132,513 votes—the highest number cast for any State official in that year. At Cincinnati, in October, 1915, he was, by acclamation, elected President of the Association of American Secretaries of State.

Mr. Reed's home is at Clarksburg, where he has been a legal resident and voter for over twenty years. In 1898 he was married to Miss Bonnie Belle Smith, of that city.

Superintendent of Free Schools.

MORRIS PURDY SHAWKEY (Republican) State Superintendent of Free Schools of West Virginia, was born at Sigel, Pennsylvania, in 1868. He is one of the numerous sons of the old Keystone State who have gone to other fields to do a worthy work. In many senses Mr. Shawkey may be regarded as a typical American citizen. His father was a sturdy and energetic Teuton, born not far from the banks of the Rhine, in 1830. His mother was of Scotch-Irish blood and a descendant of the family of John Witherspoon, who was in Revolutionary times President of Princeton University and a signer of the Declaration of Independence.

After his graduation from the Ohio Wesleyan University Mr. Shawkey taught school for a time in Kansas and Pennsylvania and served one year as superintendent of schools at Reynolds, North Dakota, gathering in all these places a valuable fund of information and experience in school affairs. He came to West Virginia in 1895, and since that time has been closely identified with the educational interests of this state. He became a member of the faculty of the West Virginia Wesleyan College at Buckhannon, leaving there in 1897 to accept the position of chief clerk in the State Department of Schools. In 1906 he was elected county superintendent of schools of Kanawha county and two years later was elected state superintendent. The most recent honor to come to him was his election to the presidency of the Department of Superintendence of the National Education Association for the 1916 meeting at Detroit.

In 1903 Mr. Shawkey served a term in the State legislature where, as chairman of the Committee on Education, he played an important part in working out a revision of the School Law, which marked an epoch in the educational history of West Virginia. The new laws included the uniform examination law, the compulsory attendance law, the free text book law, and the institute attendance law.

Mr. Shawkey's administration as State Superintendent has been marked by a systematic campaign for the betterment of the rural schools of the state. His ability as a leader and organizer and his untiring energy have won for West Virginia an enviable reputation as the most progressive state in the south in educational methods. West Virginia's "Social Center" plan has attracted wide attention and is being used as a model in many other states. The growth of high schools, the thousands of volumes added to the school libraries, and the improved sanitary conditions are some of the substantial evidences of school progress in the state, and explain why Mr. Shawkey is known in West Virginia as the "human dynamo."

In connection with his official services he has also found time to do some editorial and literary work. Superintendent Shawkey is the author of a geography of West Virginia which has had a very wide use in the State and is also author of a history of West Virginia in pamphlet form. He is one of the editors of the West Virginia School Journal and Educator, a journal which has been active and influential in the up-building of school sentiment in West Virginia.

While not lacking in appreciation of the purely cultural arts, Mr. Shawkey is by nature of a practical turn of mind, and is essentially an organizer and builder. Every turn of his life has something to show for the work he has done. At Wesleyan College, Buckhannon, he founded and built up the college lecture course which is still flourishing. He was also one of two men to take the responsibility for the first summer school in that institution. As State Superintendent Mr. Shawkey originated and built up the custom of observance of Clean-up and Beautify Day, the State Honor Roll, which has added thousands of days in the aggregate to the attendance of pupils, the present system of state high schools, the present plan of rural supervision by the state, the summer school for colored teachers, and other features of the present progressive educational system. As a member of the State Board of Regents he has been instrumental in building up the more efficient courses of work in both the normal schools and the university and in many other features of the state educational work his hand may be seen as the hand of a public builder of enterprises.

It is safe to say that he may be depended upon to do his part in building West Virginia toward the high level of her manifest destiny industrially, socially and educationally.

State Auditor.

JOHN SHERMAN DARST (Republican) was born in Cheshire, Gallia county, Ohio, October 3, 1860. He attended the public schools, where he acquired his education, and later learned the miller's trade which he followed for a number of years both in Ohio and West Virginia. When he came to West Virginia he located in Jackson county with his home and business at Cottageville.

The first public office held by Mr. Darst was member of the House of Delegates from Jackson county. He was elected in 1896 and took an active part in framing the laws of the State. He was twice re-elected as a member of the House of Delegates and in 1902 was elected to the State Senate where he served four years. During his term in the Senate, Mr. Darst became a potent factor in the creation of the new tax system and was also the patron of the constitutional amendment, later ratified by the voters of the State, which placed the office of State Auditor on a salary basis, made the Secretary of State an elective officer and eliminated the fee system in both offices.

Mr. Darst was appointed Assistant State Tax Commissioner following his term in the State Senate and served until 1908 when he was made the Republican nominee for State Auditor. With his associates on the Republican State ticket he was elected in 1908 and re-elected in 1912.

Auditor Darst now lives at Charleston and is a citizen of Kanawha county. He married Miss Blanche McKay, of Meigs county, Ohio, and they have three children, Lieutenant Gilford Darst, retired officer of the United States Navy; Mrs. Helen Corbin, of Morgantown, and Moses Darst, a law student at the West Virginia University.

Mr. Darst as Auditor of West Virginia is also ex-officio Insurance Commissioner of the State and was honored in 1915 with election to the Presidency of the International Convention of Insurance Commissioners. He is also a successful business man, heavily interested in Charleston real estate and a stockholder in banks and mercantile establishments.

State Treasurer.

E. LESLIE LONG, (Republican) was born at Alma, Tyler county, West Virginia, the son of L. H. and Martha A. Long. He attended the public schools in Tyler county and was graduated from Wesleyan College at Buckhannon with the class of 1898. He then took the law course in the West Virginia University, from which he was graduated in 1901, and being admitted to the bar the same year, began the practice of his profession at Welch, McDowell county.

He early became interested in politics as a member of the Republican party, and has been a member of every State convention of that party since 1896. In 1898 he was nominated for State treasurer by the Republican convention which met in Charleston, and was elected in November of that year. He was renominated in the Statewide primary of June, 1912, and re-elected in the following November, receiving the largest majority of any candidate on the ticket.

Mr. Long is a member of the Masonic order, his membership being in McDowell Lodge No. 112 at Welch. He is also a member of the West Virginia Consistory at Wheeling and of Beni-Kedem Temple of Shriners at Charleston. At college he was a member of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity.

Though one of the youngest members of a State administration in which young men predominate, Mr. Long has achieved a large measure of success, having been well known and largely employed as an attorney before he entered office. In the management of the treasurer's office he has been careful and conservative, and the finances of the State have been cared for with signal ability. The books of the office are well kept and everything about it runs with the utmost smoothness.

Attorney General.

ARMISTEAD ABRAHAM LILLY (Republican) was born in Summers county, March 25, 1878. His parents moved to Raleigh county while he was very young, and there he attended the public schools and afterwards went to the high school at Bluefield. He taught in the public schools and later took a law course at the Southern Normal University, at Huntington, Tennessee, from which school he received the degree of Bachelor of Laws. He was admitted to the bar in 1900, and the same year was elected to the legislature from Raleigh county. In 1904 he was elected to the office of Prosecuting Attorney of Raleigh county, and in 1908 was one of the presidential electors who cast the vote of the State for Hon. William H. Taft. In 1910 he sought the Republican nomination for Congress in the Fifth District, but did not succeed in securing the honor he sought. In 1912 he was nominated for Attorney General, and elected in November of that year.

As Attorney General he has had many questions of great importance to deal with, among them the Virginia debt case, the cases involving the validity of the railroad two-cent law and the cases growing out of charges of bribery brought against members of the legislature. In all these he has shown his legal ability.

General Lilly, in 1900, married Miss Mary Elizabeth Glenn and is the father of one daughter and two sons.

Commissioner of Agriculture.

HOWARD E. WILLIAMS (Republican) was born at Blue Sulphur Springs, in Greenbrier county, June 10, 1875. His parents were A. G. and Elizabeth (Donnally) Williams. When he was two years old his parents moved back into the mountains of Big Clear creek, and there he lived until his father's death in 1894. He was educated at Wesleyan College at Buckhannon and the West Virginia University, being at the former school 1894-99 and at the latter 1900-02.

He specialized in agriculture while at the University, and was appointed director of Farmers' Institutes for 1905 and 1906. He was appointed State Highway Inspector in 1906 and served two years.

In 1912 he was elected Commissioner of Agriculture, being first to serve the newly created office.

Mr. Williams was married on December 26, 1912, to Miss Lillian Margary Wright, of Buckhannon.

APPOINTEE STATE OFFICERS.State Tax Commissioner.

FRED O. BLUE (Republican) was born November 25, 1872, at Grafton, West Virginia; educated in the common schools and Grafton High School; studied law in the office of Dayton & Dayton, Philippi; admitted to the bar December, 1891, and immediately entered upon the practice of law; elected to the State Senate in 1906, and served the term of four years; appointed State Tax Commissioner by Governor Glasscock, March 1, 1911; commission expires February 28, 1917.

State Board of Control.

JAMES S. LAKIN, President, (Republican) is the eldest son of Calvin H. and Catherine (Finney) Lakin, and was born at Moundsville, West Virginia, March 1, 1864. His father is a retired minister of the Methodist Episcopal church, living at Huntington, who spent half a century in active work in the West Virginia and Iowa conferences, including service as Presiding Elder of the Oakland and Huntington districts.

James S. Lakin received his earlier education in the common schools and later attended the Fairmont State Normal and the Ohio Wesleyan University, at Delaware, Ohio. In 1889 he became a member of the mercantile firm of Offutt & Lakin, doing business at Terra Alta, Preston county. He had full charge of its affairs until 1909, when he relinquished the work to accept a position as one of the members of the State Board of Control. He was succeeded as manager of the mercantile firm by his brother, Finney L. Lakin, who still occupies that position. The business of this firm was successful from the beginning, and from a strictly mercantile business branched into other lines, particularly dealing in timber lands. In connection with his business success Mr. James S. Lakin naturally became interested in banking, and has served as President of the First National Bank of Terra Alta and as one of the directors of the Terra Alta bank. He has always taken an active interest in political and public affairs and for a number of years was a member of the Republican Executive Committee of Preston county. In 1899 Governor Atkinson appointed him First Lieutenant of Company M, First West Virginia Infantry. Governor White, in 1901, made him a director of the West Virginia Asylum, at Huntington, and in 1905 he was re-appointed by Governor Dawson. In 1906 Mr. Lakin was the Republican candidate for Congress in the Second Congressional District and was only defeated by a small majority. He was appointed in 1909 by Governor Glasscock as one of the members of the newly created Board of Control to have charge of the business and financial side of all state institutions. The other members were John A. Sheppard and Thomas E. Hodges. Mr. Lakin was elected President of the Board and in that position had ample opportunity to demonstrate his marked and excellent ability as an organizer. His service in that position was continuous except for a brief leave of absence during the political campaign of 1912, when he served as Chairman of the Republican State Committee.

In 1913 Governor Hatfield appointed Mr. Lakin a member of the new Public Service Commission, of which he was elected Chairman. Subsequently, it was held that he was ineligible to a position on the Commission because of a provision in the law covering the State Board of Control. He was thereupon restored by Governor Hatfield to membership on the Board of Control and was again elected President of the Board. In 1914-15 he was a member of the Executive Committee of the West Virginia-Panama Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco. In 1915 he was re-appointed on the State Board of Control for the term of six years, and is still serving as President of that Board.

Mr. Lakin was married on the 14th day of November, 1899, to Miss Lura Oliva Lakin, whom he had first met when she was a young lady student at Wesleyan University. To this marriage three children have been born—James Offutt, Marion Elizabeth and Florence Catherine.

ARLINGTON BLISS McCRUM (Republican) was born at Aurora, Preston county, West Virginia, February 17, 1880, the only son of Lloyd L. and Emma (Shaffer) McCrum; grandson of James H. Shaffer and Summers McCrum, both pioneer settlers of Preston county, and nephew of Page R. McCrum, of Aurora, who represented Preston county in the House of Delegates in 1879 and 1881. The mother of Arlington Bliss McCrum died in 1882, and his father—a merchant with interests along the line of what is now the Western Maryland Railroad, and in Washington, D. C.—died in 1894. Young McCrum was educated in the common schools of Preston and Grant counties, the graded schools of Washington, D. C., the Central High School of that city and at the West Virginia University, graduating from the latter institution in 1901 with the degrees of A. B. and L. L. B. He began the practice of law at Kingwood, the year of his graduation, associating himself with P. J. Crogan, one of the leading lawyers of the state, with whom he formed a partnership some years later. Mr. McCrum served as a member of the House of Delegates from 1907 to 1911, both inclusive, and was chairman of the committee on Taxation and Finance in 1909. He was elected to the State Senate in 1912. He has been greatly interested in the industrial development of his native county, in the University at Morgantown and in the building of good roads. June 1, 1915, he was appointed a member of the Board of Control to fill the vacancy caused by the transfer of Hon. William M. O. Dawson to the Public Service Commission.

DR. J. M. WILLIAMSON (Democrat) is a native of Washington county, Ohio, and a descendant of Scotch-Irish ancestors. He is the third son of Captain J. W. Williamson, a pioneer steamboat captain and pilot of the upper and lower Ohio and Mississippi rivers. Dr. Williamson was reared in West Virginia and received his education in the common schools of this State and the high schools of Ohio.

In 1881-2 he prepared himself for his chosen profession—that of dental surgery—and in 1883 opened an office in New Matamoras, Ohio, the place of his birth. In 1894 he removed to West Virginia, locating in Moundsville. There he built and furnished an office with the most modern equipments available for the prosecution of his profession. After his appointment to his present position, Dr. Williamson was succeeded in his profession and business by his son, Dr. C. D. Williamson, who now has charge of the large practice.

In the year 1907 Dr. J. M. Williamson was elected Mayor of the city of Moundsville on a straight Democratic ticket, and it was his distinction to be the first and only person ever elected to the mayoralty of that city as a Democrat, on a strictly party ticket. He succeeded himself for three consecutive terms of two years each. When he took charge of affairs he found the city financially embarrassed, with heavy damage suits pending. Under his management and through his foresight, these damage suits were won for the city. He also found the finances in bad condition, with no funds on hand to meet demands and the city practically without credit. City street orders were selling for fifty cents on the dollar. There was also passed down to him as Mayor a legacy in the form of a floating city order debt of $52,000.00, that had been contracted when the city had licensed saloons and boasted of the same as a source of revenue. Under a strictly "dry" rule—the lid being on tight—these financial conditions had to be met. At the end of Mayor Williamson's third term, with no saloon license taxes, the floating order debt had been reduced to $6,000, and not a dollar of new floating order debt created. The city made rapid improvements during his three terms of office.

During his incumbency as Mayor of Moundsville, Dr. Williamson headed a movement for a bond issue for a separate system of sanitary sewerage and surface draining. The bond issue carried by nearly five to one, and the city sewerage was completed. It can be said that no city in the State has a better and more up-to-date sanitary system than the city of Moundsville, consisting of more than twenty-nine miles. It is said that this was the largest contract ever let at one time in this State. At the same time the city of Moundsville enjoyed the distinction of being the first city in the State to install an auto fire truck, consisting of hose ladder and chemical combination.

On the 6th day of February, 1914, Dr. Williamson was appointed by Governor Henry D. Hatfield as the minority member of the State Board of Control. Since his appointment to this position he has served as auditor of the board and personally inspects every bill paid by the State through this institution.

Dr. Williamson is an enthusiastic horticulturist, and has great faith in the Upper Ohio Panhandle of West Virginia as a fruit growing section. He owns and is now having operated, by the most modern methods, the largest commercial apple orchard in that section of the State.

Dr. Williamson is a believer in secret orders, and is an enthusiastic member of the lodge of A. F. & A. M. and the B. P. O. E.

Public Service Commission.

ELLIOTT NORTHCOTT, Chairman, (Republican) was born at Clarksburg, Harrison county, West Virginia, in 1869; received his earlier education in the public schools and afterwards attended the Northwestern Academy in that city, from which he graduated; took a course in law at the University of Michigan and began practicing at Huntington in 1891; served as city attorney of Huntington and later was appointed United States District Attorney for the Southern District of West Virginia; was Chairman of the Republican State Committee in 1904. In 1909 Mr. Northcott was appointed United States Minister to Colombia, South America; afterwards to Nicaragua and then to Venezuela, but left the diplomatic service with the change of administration in 1913, when he returned to West Virginia and settled on a farm in Cabell county, near the city of Huntington. In 1914 he was appointed a member of the State Board of Regents by Governor Hatfield, and in 1915, a member of the Public Service Commission, of which he is Chairman.

Mr. Northcott was married in 1893 to Lola B., a daughter of Dr. J. A. Beardsley.

WILLIAM MERCER OWENS DAWSON,* Commissioner, (Republican) was born at Bloomington, Maryland, within a few hundred yards of the Virginia (West Virginia) line, May 21, 1853, and was a son of Francis Ravenscraft and Leah (Kight) Dawson. His mother died during his childhood and he was taken to what is now West Virginia by his father, to live successively at Cranberry (now Terra Alta), Bruceton Mills, and Ice's Ferry. In 1863, he began to learn the cooper's trade at Cranberry and subsequently attended school there, after which he worked as a clerk and taught school in that vicinity. In 1873 he settled at Kingwood, the county seat of Preston county, and became the editor of "The Preston County Journal," a Republican newspaper. Two years later Mr. Dawson became the owner of the "Journal." In 1874 he was elected chairman of the county Republican committee and served by re-election for thirteen years. In 1880 he was elected to the State Senate, in 1884 was re-elected and in 1888 he declined to be a candidate for a third term. As Senator he served on a number of important committees including those on Banks and Corporations, Finance, Penitentiary, Mines and Mining, and Public Printing; was on the joint sub-committee on finance to prepare appropriation bills, to investigate the tax laws, and on a special committee to investigate the public printing. He was the author of a bill to create a railroad commission on lines that were subsequently adopted by the Federal government in the creation of the interstate commerce commission, which bill he introduced in the State Senate in 1881. Mr. Dawson served in the long sessions of 1881 and 1882, as well as the regular sessions of 1883 and 1887. By reason of the long extra session of 1882 and the extension of the session of 1881, at which sessions the Code of 1868 was revised, his service of eight years covered a much longer period than is usual in two ordinary terms of the senate. In 1891 Mr. Dawson became Chairman of the Republican State Committee, and three years later West Virginia, which had been Democratic since 1871, was placed in the column of Republican states. Similar victories followed in 1896, 1898, 1900 and 1902. He served as chairman until 1904 when he resigned, upon his nomination for governor. By appointment of Governor Atkinson and Governor White he was secretary of state two terms 1897-1905. In 1904, after a contest unparalleled in the history of the state, he was nominated as the Republican candidate for governor of West Virginia. In the general election of that year he was elected governor, after a campaign of great bitterness, arising out of the proposal to amend the taxation laws of the state, substantially according to the recommendations of the tax commission of 1901. He served as governor for the four years ensuing from March 4, 1905. During his term many important new laws and changes in existing laws were made, principally in connection with the assessment, levying, collection and disbursing of taxes and other public revenues. He is the author of many laws now on our statute books, among which are the "Dawson corporation law," enacted in 1901, against much opposition, whereby the taxes on the charters of corporations were largely increased; and the budget law of 1908 (Acts 1908, chap. 9). In 1912 Mr. Dawson supported Theodore Roosevelt for president, and was elected chairman of the state committee of the Progressive party of the state and a member of the national committee. In that campaign the Progressive party in West Virginia supported the Republican ticket that was nominated in the state-wide primary election, which was held prior to the National Republican Convention at Chicago which nominated Mr. Taft. After his appointment to the State Board of Control he resigned this chairmanship. Subsequently, the Progressive state committee, being dissatisfied with Mr. Dawson's support of Governor Hatfield's administration, without notice to him, recalled him as a member of the national committee. Mr. Dawson was always a progressive; usually in advance of his party. By some he was considered radical. But we believe it is very generally conceded that as governor of the state he was always ready to hear every one, and was fair to all interests. In May, 1913, Governor Hatfield appointed Mr. Dawson a member of the State Board of Control, and two years later he appointed him a member of the Public Service Commission, which office he held at the time of his death.

Mr. Dawson was clerk of the House of Delegates in 1895. In 1889, he was elected mayor of the town of Kingwood, in Preston county, where he then resided. In 1879 he married Luda, daughter of John T. Neff, of Kingwood, by whom he had a son, Daniel, who is a practicing attorney at Huntington. She died in 1894. He married Miss Maude, daughter of Mrs. Jane Brown, of Kingwood, in 1899, by whom he had two children, Leah Jane and William Brown. He was a member of the Presbyterian church.

E. F. MORGAN, Commissioner, (Republican) was born at Forksburg, Marion county, West Virginia, January 16, 1869; educated in the public schools, Fairmont State Normal, and West Virginia University; taught in public schools of Marion county for nine years; graduated in the law department of West Virginia University, in the class of 1897; engaged in practice of law at Fairmont, West Virginia, in 1898; was judge of Intermediate Court of Marion County for a term of six years, 1907-1913; at the expiration of his term resumed the practice of law; appointed a member of the Public Service Commission of West Virginia by Governor Hatfield for a term of four years, commencing June 1, 1915.

Compensation Commissioner.

LEE OTT (Republican) was born at Hopewell, Bedford county, Pennsylvania, January 5, 1859, and received his education in the common schools. He was reared on a farm until he was sixteen years of age, when he went to work in the mines. He came to West Virginia in June, 1897, and was appointed Superintendent of the Thomas plant of the Davis Coal & Coke Company, filling that position until April, 1900. At that time he was transferred as Superintendent to the Elk Garden Mines, but returned to Thomas November 1st, 1906 as General Superintendent of all the mines of the Davis Coal & Coke Company. During his very able management of the company's mines and ovens he brought them to a high state of efficiency and economical production. He also had charge of all the vast improvements enumerated and outlined in the history of the company.

Mr. Ott was one of the best known and esteemed business men of that region and was connected with various other concerns and enterprises, besides being a director of the Davis National Bank of Piedmont. He is an official of the affiliation board of the Coal Mining Institute of America, and a member of the executive board of the West Virginia Coal Mining Institute. He is also well known in Masonic circles, being a life member of Logan Lodge, No. 490, of Altoona, Pennsylvania; a member of West Virginia Consistory, No. 1, Wheeling, West Virginia; and Osiris Shrine, Wheeling, West Virginia. He is also a member of the Methodist Episcopal church.

In his political opinion Mr. Ott is an adherent of the Republican party. Although he was never active in politics, his support was always solicited by politicians in the five counties of West Virginia along the eastern border, and his acquaintance covers a considerable portion of the State, with business concerns especially. His interest, however, is always strong in any movement affecting the public welfare.

Mr. Ott was appointed by Governor Hatfield a member of the Public Service Commission on the 19th day of July, 1913, serving as Chairman of that body until June 30th, 1915, when he was appointed State Compensation Commissioner.

Commissioner of Banking.

SAMUEL PRESTON SMITH (Republican) was born March 20, 1875, at East Bank, Kanawha county, West Virginia, and received his education in the public schools. From 1904 to 1908 he was Assistant Commissioner of Banking; from 1909 to 1913 was Treasurer and Sheriff of Kanawha county. April 1, 1915, he was appointed Commissioner of Banking by Governor Hatfield for a term of four years.

Chief of the Mine Department.

EARL A. HENRY (Republican) was born November 25, 1867, at Winifrede, Kanawha county, being the oldest of five sons. When he was three years old the family moved to West Columbia and after a few years moved to Clifton, Mason county, where he still resides.

His father having spent the greater part of his life in the coal mines of this State, nothing was more natural than that his son should follow in his foot-steps, so at the age of nine years he entered the mine with his father and has spent his entire life in the coal industry of the State, except four years, from 1897 to 1901, when he was Deputy Sheriff of Mason county. Beginning in 1876 as trapper boy, he worked his way up to Mine Foreman, and then to District Mine Inspector, being appointed by Governor White in 1901, and reappointed by Governor Dawson in 1905 and by Governor Glasscock in 1909, from which position he was appointed Chief of the Department of Mines by Governor Hatfield, on September 1, 1913. His promotion to chief of the department was a just recognition of faithful and efficient service rendered the state.

Commisioner of Labor.

JACK H. NIGHTINGALE (Republican) was born May 26, 1862, in Bolton, Lancashire county, England, of English-Scotch-Irish parentage. Emigrating to America while a child, he received his early education in the public schools of Bradford, Pennsylvania, and later attended St. Boneventure College, Alleghany, New York. He has been identified with the labor organizations since April 5, 1880. In November, 1881, he was elected to represent the Knights of Labor in the British Trades Congress, which convened in Manchester, England. For five years he was General Organizer for the American Federation of Labor, his duties taking him across the continent four times. Mr. Nightingale is the best acquainted man in the State among the labor organizations, having served two terms as Secretary-Treasurer of the West Virginia State Federation of Labor. In taking up his residence in West Virginia in 1893, he became known among the oil people for his ability in the building of drilling jars and fishing tools, working at that business for a number of years in Parkersburg. Where oil and gas is produced in this State he is familiarly known among the drillers and producers. Mr. Nightingale was appointed State Commissioner of Labor by Governor H. D. Hatfield, May 1st, 1914, and by an act of the legislature of the session of 1915, by virtue of being State Commissioner of Labor was made ex officio Commissioner of Weights and Measures.

Health Commissioner.

S. L. JEPSON, M. D., (Republican) was born on a farm in Ohio ten miles west of Wheeling, and soon after--on account of a severe injury that rendered him permanently lame--his father gave up farming and opened a store in St. Clairsville. There the boy grew to manhood. In an ungraded school he pursued his studies which included Latin, Greek and some of the higher mathematics. Applying for admission to the junior class of Washington College, Pennsylvania (now Washington and Jefferson) he was for several months put on probation. At the end of two years he was graduated (A. B.,) eighth in a class of thirty, being one of the commencement speakers, and sharing the literary honors of the class with one who is now the Bishop of New York.

Later, the study of medicine was commenced, and in 1868 the degree of M. D. was conferred by the Medical College of Ohio. The young doctor succeeded—by a competitive examination—in securing a position as resident physician and surgeon in the Cincinnati Hospital, which position he filled for a year.

Locating in Wheeling in April, 1869, he was in 1873 elected as City Health Officer, and held this position for six years. In September, 1895, on account of the long-continued presence of small-pox in the city, he was urged to take the office again. He assumed charge of thirty-six cases. In four weeks but three cases remained in the city. For his services $2,000.00 extra compensation was paid, and he was twice reelected, making a total of eleven years of service as health officer.

In 1877 he went to Europe for medical study, spending nearly a year in Edinburgh, London and Vienna. Always active in medical societies, Dr. Jepson has served as secretary and twice as President of the Ohio County Medical Society, for three years as Secretary and in 1887 as President of the State Medical Association, and for three years as a member of the Judicial Council of the American Medical Association. He is also a member of the American Public Health Association, and until the present year was a member of the American Medical Editors Association, and in 1915 a member of its Executive Committee of three. During 1915 he was Vice President of the National Federation of Medical Examining Boards. He was editor of The West Virginia Medical Journal, from its origin, in 1896, until the end of 1915. He has written many medical papers for the journals and societies.

From 1884 to 1889 he served in Wheeling as Acting Assistant Surgeon in the United States Marine Hospital Service; from 1889 to 1893 and from 1907 to 1915 as United States examining surgeon for pensions; on the medical staff of the City Hospital, Wheeling, from 1890 to 1915.

Always interested in education, he served for sixteen years on the Wheeling Board of Education, part of the time as president. He was the author of resolutions that established a High School and also a Public Library. Since 1904 he has been a member of the Board of Trustees of Washington and Jefferson College. From this college he received the degree of A. M., and in 1907 the honorary degree of Doctor of Science was conferred by the University of Pittsburgh.

In June, 1913, Dr. Jepson was made a member and Secretary of the State Board of Health by His Excellency, Governor Hatfield, and in June, 1914, under the new law constituting a State Department of Health, Governor Hatfield appointed him as the first Commissioner of Health, for a term of four years.

State Historian and Archivist.

HENRY SHERWOOD GREEN, (Republican) was born at New Milford, Connecticut, November 12, 1854; academic degrees, A. B., Yale University; L. L. State Geologist.

DR. I. C. WHITE (Republican). Michael White, the father of I. C. White, married Mary Anne Russell (probably Rischel, originally, since her ancestors were all from Holland) and settled on a farm of two hundred acres in western Monongalia County about three miles below the head of the Pennsylvania Fork of Dunkard, and the same distance above the village of Jollytown, Pennsylvania. Six children were born of this union; viz., Henry Solomon, William Thomas, Lydia Anne, Catharine, Israel C. and John, two of whom (John and Catharine) died during childhood, and the mother herself died in 1852.

Israel C. White, the subject of this sketch, was born at the old homestead in Battelle district in the western portion of Monongalia county, November 1st, 1848, and grew to manhood, (nineteen) on the farm, with only such educational advantages as the "subscription schools" of the time, previous to 1865, afforded. His father had a high appreciation of the value of education, however, and made many sacrifices to give to his children the advantages of the best "subscription schools" available. Michael White was a strong, virile citizen, a born leader of men, and one of the five persons selected to divide the county of Monongalia into districts and give names to the same after the formation of West Virginia. He gave the name "Battelle" to the most western district, in which he also resided, naming it after Rev. Gordon Battelle, a talented Methodist Episcopal minister of Wheeling, who, through a series of newspaper articles, accomplished more than any other one man in crystalizing the public sentiment of Western Virginia in favor of separation from the mother State. It was while attending one of these "subscription schools" taught by George Fletcher, a graduate of Alleghany College, at Meadville, Pennsylvania, that the subject of this sketch conceived the idea of securing a college education. Hence, when the West Virginia Agricultural College was established at Morgantown and opened its doors for the higher education of the young men of the State in September, 1867, Israel C. White became one of the matriculates at the opening, through the encouragement of his intelligent and appreciative father. This father, however, although one of the strongest men physically the county ever produced—never having been outdone in wood chopping, rail making or lifting contests—sickened and died at the end of 1868, during the middle of the son's second college year. Thrown upon his own resources at the age of twenty, the son determined to carry out his father's wishes and graduate from the State's highest institution of learning. He taught school, worked on the farm during vacations, sold his small contingent interest in the farm, and graduated with honor in the class of 1872, not owing any one a dollar, but with only about $10 in cash ahead for future capital. Soon after graduation in June, 1872, he married Emma Shay, a talented teacher of the Morgantown public schools. Both taught school for the first and second years of their married life, and in 1874 Mr. White was elected principal of a private school at Hunterdon, New Jersey, where they went to reside. Soon after the birth of his oldest daughter (now Mrs. Joseph H. Mills), Mrs. White died, November 24th, 1874, and Mr. White relinquished the profession of teaching to take up the study of geology, having secured an appointment as aid to his old teacher in geology, Dr. John J. Stevenson, on the Second Geological Survey of Pennsylvania, beginning work thereon in May, 1875. He was made full assistant in 1876, and remained in connection therewith until that survey came to a close in 1884, being the author of eight volumes of the Reports of that survey; was professor of Geology in the West Virginia University from 1877 to 1892, and one of the assistant geologists on the United States Geological Survey from 1884 to 1888 during which time he prepared and published Bulletin 65 on the "Stratigraphy of the Appalachian Coal Field." In 1892 he resigned his position in the University to take charge of a large petroleum business which he had developed for himself and associates, through scientific discoveries made in connection with his studies of the occurrence of petroleum, natural gas and coal, in all of which he is an expert specialist, being the author of the anticlinal or structural theory for the occurrence of oil and gas. Dr. White was treasurer of the Geological Society of America from 1892 to 1907, Vice-President of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Section E (Geology) 1896-7; delegate to the International Geological Congress held in St. Petersburg, 1897, and in Paris, 1900. Dr. White has been State Geologist of West Virginia since 1897, and has prepared and published five of the volumes of the reports; viz., Vols. I and I (A) on "Petroleum and Natural Gas," and Vols. II and II (A) on "Coal," and Bulletin Two on "Levels and Coal Analysis." He has also supervised and edited the publication of nineteen other volumes published by the West Virginia Geological Survey which were prepared by his Assistants.

In 1904-5 Dr. White visited Brazil at the request of the Brazilian government to make studies and an official report on the coal fields of South Brazil. His report—a large quarto volume with numerous illustrations on the "Brazilian Coal Fields"—was published in both English and Portuguese in 1908. He was invited by President Roosevelt to be the second speaker on the program at the White House Conference of Governors in May, 1908 where he delivered an address on "The Waste of Our Fuel Resources" and this in connection with an address before the American Mining Congress, at Pittsburgh, December 6, 1908, on "The Barren Zone of the Appalachian Coal Field," has greatly aided the conservation movement inaugurated by President Roosevelt.

Dr. White, although a very busy man, finds time to take an active interest in civic affairs, having been the Vice-President for West Virginia of the International League for Highway Improvement, President of the West Virginia State Board of Trade, and President of the Morgantown Board of Trade, and is also a member of the Federal Trade Committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Dr. White was married a second time, in December, 1878, to Miss Mary Moorhead of New Castle, Pennsylvania, who has borne him five children: Nell, wife of C. W. Maxwell, Attorney at Law, Elkins, West Virginia; Fannie, wife of H. P. Brightwell, Cashier, Union Trust Company, Charleston, West Virginia; Edith, wife of Karl L. Kithil, Technologist, United States Bureau of Mines, Denver, Colorado; Charles, purchasing Agent for the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railway, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; and Gertrude, wife of E. R. Wise, Architect, Cleveland, Ohio. Dr. White is the happy grandfather of ten grandchildren, five boys and five girls, ranging in age from one to eleven years.

He was for many years an active leader in the Republican party and was also an effective campaign speaker, which largely extended his acquaintance throughout the state. At the early age of twenty-six he was elected to the responsible office of Sheriff of his native county. Judge Poffenbarger was elected to the Supreme Court in 1900, over his old instructor, Judge English, and so thoroughly satisfactory were his services to the people of the State that he was re-elected in 1912. His term of office will expire December 31, 1924. Only one other judge—the late Henry Brannon—has been honored with elections to two full terms.

Judge Poffenbarger is in the full vigor of the prime of life, loves his work, pursues it with unflagging industry, and has already achieved a reputation as a jurist which places him among the distinguished leaders of the judiciary of the State. He has a vigorous, analytical and discriminative mind and his written opinions are widely cited by the profession and discussed in law journals. During his incumbency he has been influential in altering and improving the methods of procedure of the court of last resort, of which he has several times been president.

Judge Poffenbarger is a member of the Presbyterian Church, the Sons of the American Revolution, the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and other organizations.

WILLIAM N. MILLER, (Republican,) was born in Ohio, October 18, 1855, and was educated in the public schools and Otterbein University, from which institution he received the degree of A. B. in 1879 and A. M. in 1881. He early came to Parkersburg, West Virginia, and read law in the office of William L. Cole. He was admitted to the bar in 1882, and became a member of the firm of Cole & Miller.

Judge Miller was appointed Judge Advocate General by both Governor White and Governor Dawson. For fifteen years he was an officer of the West Virginia State Bar Association and has been for many years a member of the American Bar Association. On January 28, 1907, he was appointed a Judge of the Supreme Court of Appeals to succeed Judge Cox, and was elected by the people to the same office in 1908, and ever since he ascended the bench he has performed the responsible duties of his high office with conspicuous ability. His record as a judge of the court of last resort has been eminently satisfactory both to the bar and litigants. His written opinions are clear, terse and logical and constitute each within itself a valuable precedent. His persistent labor on the bench, in conference, and in his private office, and his conscientious and painstaking consideration of each case before the court win for him the highest commendation. He has twice filled the office as President of the Court.

Judge Miller has been a life-long Republican, and before ascending the bench he was a leader of his party and frequently advocated its principles as a campaign speaker. In 1892 he was a delegate to the Republican National Convention which renominated President Benjamin Harrison. He is a member of the Elks and other orders, an Episcopalian, and a public spirited citizen, whose popularity is attested by a host of friends throughout all parts of the State.

CHARLES W. LYNCH, (Republican), was born in Harrison County March 11, 1851. He graduated from the West Virginia University in 1874 with the A. B. degree and received the degree A. M. in 1877. Previous to 1882 he was superintendent of public schools at Burning Springs and Clarksburg. Meanwhile he studied law and was admitted to the bar in that year. He soon took commanding rank at the bar.

He frequently has been honored by the Republican party in having conferred upon him unsought nominations for public office. He was a member of the House of Delegates 1882-3 and 1891-2; prosecuting attorney for Harrison County 1885-9 and 1893-7; Judge of the Circuit Court of the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit 1905-13.

In 1912 Judge Lynch was nominated for his present position of Judge of the Supreme Court of Appeals without his knowledge or consent, and was elected at the ensuing election. He began his service on that high tribunal January 1, 1913.

Judge Lynch's long practice of the law, and his large experience as a circuit judge thoroughly equipped him for the arduous duties of his present position in which he is making a most enviable record as an appellate judge.

Judge Lynch is a York rite and Scottish rite Mason of the thirty-second degree and is past grand master of the Grand Lodge of West Virginia. He is President of the Board of Trustees of West Virginia Wesleyan College from which institution he received the degree of LL. D. in 1915, and is an official member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in the activities of which he has long been prominent.

JOHN W. MASON, (Republican,) was born in Monongalia County January 13, 1842. At the age of 19 he enlisted in the Union army and for over three years he served as a non-commissioned officer of artillery in the campaigns in the valley of Virginia, and was honorably discharged September 14, 1864.

Judge Mason began his education in the subscription schools of his day and took the full course in Monongalia Academy which afterwards was acquired by the state as the foundation of the present State University. He became a member of the faculty, and thus is the oldest professor of that institution.

As an ardent, loyal Republican Judge Mason has frequently been the standard bearer of his party. He was Chairman of the State Republican Committee from 1872 to 1876, and member of the Republican National Committee from 1876 to 1888. He repeatedly declined nominations for Governor, Supreme Judge and Federal appointments. He practiced the profession of law with great success from 1867 to 1889, when he was appointed Commissioner of Internal Revenue by President Harrison and inaugurated numerous improvements in the public service. He was defeated for congress by W. L. Wilson by only 10 votes, the normal democratic majority being about 2500. For thirteen years he served as circuit judge in the Fourteenth Circuit, retiring January 1, 1913, and it is universally conceded that he was one of the best circuit judges in the State. Soon thereafter he was appointed a member of the Virginia Debt Commission in which capacity he rendered invaluable services in connection with that important legislation.

On November 1, 1915, Governor Hatfield appointed him to the vacancy on the supreme bench caused by the resignation of Judge Robinson, where he is making the same high record as an appellate jurist that he made as a nisi prius judge.

He is a Royal Arch Mason and a member and active supporter of the Presbyterian Church.

WILLIAM BURDETTE MATHEWS, (Republican,) the efficient Clerk of the Supreme Court of Appeals of West Virginia was born August 27, 1866, at Round Bottom (once owned by George Washington), Marshall County, this state. He taught school for six years, three as principal of the McMechen public schools. He received the degree of A. M. from Waynesburg (Pa.) College and LL. B. from Columbian (now George Washington) University, Washington, D. C. He was admitted to the bar in 1892. He practiced law in the District of Columbia, Moundsville and Charleston. He served as Chief Clerk of the State Auditor's office and as Assistant Attorney General under Attorney General Freer.

Mr. Mathews is a Republican and served as Secretary of the Marshall County Executive Committee in 1896. In 1900 he acted as president of the State League of Republican Clubs, and presided over its convention at Parkersburg. The same year he was chosen a McKinley and Roosevelt elector to fill a vacancy in the electoral college. He also has been State President of the Epworth League, twice a delegate to the General Conference of the M. E. Church, and in 1911 was a delegate to the Methodist Ecumenical Conference at Toronto, Canada.

For four years—1902-6—he was a member of the Charleston Common Council, and as Chairman of the Finance Committee of that body he instituted a greatly improved fiscal system.

He is treasurer of the Bar Association of the City of Charleston and has long been a member of the State and American Bar Associations. He is a member of the Masonic bodies, the Elks and other orders.

THE VIRGINIA DEBT.

By JOHN W. MASON, Chairman of the Virginia Debt Commission of 1913-'14.

A brief history of the public debt of Virginia, created prior to January the first, 1861, the liability of West Virginia for a part of it, and her promise to pay may be interesting and profitable to the people of West Virginia at the present time. In what I shall say, I shall take the liberty of quoting very freely and at length from the report of the Virginia Debt Commission made to Governor Hatfield a few months ago.

About the year 1823, the Commonwealth of Virginia entered upon a plan for financing certain internal improvement companies and banking institutions located in different parts of the state, and also to aid in the construction of turnpike roads and bridges. This system involved the creation of a large public debt.

The method adopted by the state was the issuance of interest bearing bonds which were sold and the proceeds thereof applied to the purchase of the capital stock or bonds of public or quasi-public corporations, or loaned to such corporations directly. It was not the purpose of the Commonwealth to go into the stock jobbing business; the dominant idea of the statesmen of that day was that it was wise public policy for the state to aid and promote local improvements. In form, these expenditures were investments; but, in fact, they were loans to aid in the development of certain parts of the state. The whole Commonwealth had to assume the risk of loss by these investments and bear the burdens, and the benefits should have been equitably distributed. But unfortunately, the official machinery of the Commonwealth, both executive and legislative, was so organized that a large proportion of the people derived little or no benefit from these expenditures.

For about fifteen years, there was no security for the payment of these debts except the mere promise of the Commonwealth. But the assembly of 1838, in order to better secure the payment of the money borrowed and to provide against the possibility of these stocks and bonds being squandered, or being sold and the proceeds derived therefrom being invested in other stocks, thus increasing the liabilities of the Commonwealth without limit, and doubtless, for the further object of protecting the portions of the Commonwealth liable for the debts but receiving none of the benefits, passed an act on the 9th day of April, 1838, pledging and appropriating the stocks of any joint stock companies, subscribed for or purchased with the moneys so borrowed, together with the dividends and other net income which might accrue therefrom to the Commonwealth or to the fund for improvements, to the payment of the interest on and the final redemption of the principal of the sum so borrowed. This statute is incorporated in substance in the code of Virginia of 1849. Virginia adopted a new constitution in 1851 and authorized a sinking fund setting apart annually a sum equal to seven percent of the public debt existing on the first day of January, 1852, to be applied to the interest and principal when due, and, to more effectually pledge the stocks held by the Commonwealth to the payment of her public debt, provided in section 30, article 4:

"The General Assembly may at any time direct the sale of the stocks held by the Commonwealth in internal improvement and other companies, but the proceeds of such sales, if made before the payment of the public debt, shall constitute a part of the sinking fund and be applied in like manner," that is, applied to the payment of the interest on the public debt and on the principal sum when redeemable.

Provisions were made by the act of the assembly of March 26, 1852, carrying these constitutional provisions into effect; all of which were incorporated into the code of 1860.

Under this arrangement, the Commonwealth of Virginia created a debt amounting to $32,919,863.93 on the first day of January, 1861, to which should be added $977,209.89 for interest due on that day, making the total debt on January 1, 1861, $33,897,073.82. A large part of this debt was for investments in railroad, canal companies, and bank stocks and loans and the balance for investments in turpentine and bridge stocks.

Such was the financial condition of Virginia on the first day of January, 1861. Her credit was good at home and abroad. The money markets of the world were open to her, and her financial obligations honored everywhere. True, she was obligated for many millions; but, back of these obligations were the stocks and bonds of solvent companies, pledged for their payment, leaving Virginia practically only a guarantor. Had the Commonwealth of Virginia gone into liquidation at that date, there would have been but little deficit after these assets had been applied.

On the first day of January, 1861, Virginia stood among the first of the great states of the Union. Every citizen was proud of her public record. Her future was full of hope and promise. Her geographical position secured for her commercial independence. Her territory reached from the waters of the Chesapeake and the Potomac to the great valley of the Ohio. Her unlimited resources of natural wealth invited alike the trade of the east and the west. The salubrity of her climate secured for her a world-wide reputation as a place for comfortable homes.

But, unfortunately, there were deep-seated social and political dissensions among her people. It would not be profitable to stop here to inquire into the causes of these dissensions; it is sufficient to say that they existed. While we were yet subject to the rule of Great Britain, that government was asked to establish a separate colony west of the Alleghenies to be known as Vandalia. After the formation of the United States Government, the Continental Congress was asked to create a new state to be called Westsylvania.

A distinguished statesman and historian, Hon. James G. Blaine, aptly describes the people of this section of Virginia in his "Twenty Years in Congress." He says:

"The West Virginians were aware of the splendid resources of their section and were constantly irritated by the neglect of the parent state to aid in their development. They enjoyed a climate as genial as that of the Italians who dwell on the slopes of the Appenines; they had forests more valuable than those that skirt the upper Rhine; they had mineral wealth as great as that which has given England her precedence in the manufacturing progress of the world. They were anxious for self government."

For more than a century, the people of Virginia residing west of the Alleghenies had been quietly but anxiously waiting for a time to come when they could be freed from an unprofitable and distasteful alliance with those of the east. The civil war, in 1861, afforded them their opportunity. The people of the eastern side of the mountains withdrew their citizenship from the state as a part of the Federal Government, while the people of the west maintained the state organization in the Union, and as a consequence, they had control of the state government and gave consent to the creation of the new state, in the manner provided by the Constitution of the United States.

West Virginia's Promise and Liability.

Much controversy has arisen between the representatives of the two States out of a misunderstanding or misconception of the promises and primary liability of West Virginia respecting the public debt of Virginia existing prior to the first day of January 1861. A brief review of this controversy and the contention of the two States may be appropriate.

On the 20th day of August 1861, the Commonwealth of Virginia, by an ordinance (commonly known as the "Wheeling Ordinance") of her State Convention, then in session, provided for the formation of the State of West Virginia; which ordinance among other things, says that the new State should take upon itself a just proportion of the public debt of the old Commonwealth, existing prior to the first day of January 1861. Section 9 of these ordinances reads as follows:

"The new State shall take upon itself a just proportion of the public debt of the Commonwealth of Virginia prior to the first day of January, 1861, to be ascertained by charging to it all state expenditures within the limits thereof, and a just proportion of the ordinary expenses of the State government, since any part of said debt was contracted; and deducting therefrom the monies paid into the treasury of the Commonwealth from the counties included within the said new State during the same period. * * * * *

The Constitution of West Virginia was prepared and proposed by the Convention which met at Wheeling on the 26th day of November 1861, and was submitted to the people of the counties of which it was proposed to form the new State, and was ratified by the voters thereof, under which West Virginia became a State June 20, 1863. Section 8 of Article 8 of this Constitution provides:

"An equitable proportion of the public debt of the Commonwealth of Virginia, prior to the first day of January, 1861, shall be assumed by this State; and the Legislature shall ascertain the same as soon as practicable and provide for the liquidation thereof by a sinking fund sufficient to pay the accruing interest and redeem the principal thereof within thirty four years."

It will be observed that Section 8 of Article 8 of the Constitution of West Virginia provides for the assumption by this State of an equitable proportion of the public debt of Virginia existing prior to the first day of January 1861, and that Section 9 of the ordinance of August 20, 1861, differs only by prescribing the method of determining the portion of the debt to be paid by West Virginia. The ordinance says: "The new State shall take upon itself a just proportion of the public debt of the Commonwealth of Virginia;" and the constitutional provision is that "an equitable proportion of the public debt of the Commonwealth of Virginia, prior to the first day of January 1861, shall be assumed by this State." There is no difference in substance between the obligation imposed by the ordinance and the promise made by the Constitution. The ordinance expressed the will of the people of Virginia, speaking through their Convention. It required the new State to take upon itself a "just proportion" of this public debt of prior to the first day of January, 1861, and it also provided the method of ascertaining it. The people of the proposed new State afterward adopted a Constitution wherein it was provided that an "equitable proportion" of the public debt of the Commonwealth of Virginia, prior to the first day of January, 1861 shall be assumed by this State." Reading the ordinance adopted by the Virginia Convention and this section of the Constitution of West Virginia together, there is no conflict or room for misunderstanding. In addition to this, it should be noted that, after this ordinance was adopted and the Constitution prepared for ratification, the General Assembly of Virginia, by an act passed May 13th, 1862, gave consent to the formation and erection of the State of West Virginia under the provisions set forth in the Constitution of the State of West Virginia.

Prior to the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, the contention of West Virginia had always been that the just and equitable proportion of this debt should be ascertained in the manner provided by the "Wheeling Ordinance," but Virginia later, sought to depart from this method. In direct disregard of internal improvements and relative wealth, she assumed that, inasmuch as the new State embraced about one-third of the territory and about one-third of the population, the equitable proportion of the debt which West Virginia should pay would be one-third. The Court was of the opinion that, conceding the fact that West Virginia must bear an equitable proportion of the debt, the nearest approach to justice that the Court could make was to adopt a ratio determined by the valuation of the real and personal property of the two States on the date of the separation, June 20th, 1863, excluding slaves from the valuation. The valuation thus ascertained showed the value of the real and personal property of Virginia to be $300,887,367.74, and of West Virginia $92,416,021; the ratio of liability being .7651 for Virginia and .2349 for West Virginia, (Virginia v. West Virginia, 220 U. S. 1), and Justice Holmes speaking for the Court, in syllabus 8 of the opinion says:

"The valuation of the real and personal property of the two States of Virginia and West Virginia on the date of their separation, excluding slaves, is the proper basis for determining the equitable proportion of the public debt of the original State of Virginia which was assumed by the State of West Virginia at the time of its creation as a state, subject to the qualification that the difference between Virginia's share on this ratio and the amount which her creditors were content to accept from her should be deducted from the sum to be apportioned."

With this difference of opinion as to the method of ascertaining the proportion of the debt which West Virginia had assumed, it is not strange that there should be difficulty in concluding a settlement. It was a proper subject for negotiations.

Attempts to Settle.

Section 8 of Article 8 of the Constitution of West Virginia of 1863, before referred to, in addition to pledging the State of West Virginia to assume an equitable proportion of the public debt of the Commonwealth of Virginia, prior to the first day of January, 1861, also made it the duty of the Legislature to ascertain the same as soon as might be practicable.

The representatives of Virginia with a view, doubtless, of creating a sentiment prejudicial to West Virginia have persisted in the claim that West Virginia has always sought to evade a settlement. These charges are not sustained by the records. On the contrary, the only fair and practicable methods of settlement have been the propositions coming from West Virginia. The propositions coming from Virginia have never been a fair or practicable form. They were always submitted at a time when no settlement could be made, or after she had placed herself in a position where she was disqualified from settling in her own interest, or coupled with conditions that West Virginia could not accept.

As this is a question affecting the honor of the State I beg to call attention to the facts and circumstances which caused this delay of half a century.

In the first place, it must be borne in mind that the civil war had existed in Virginia for two years before the formation of West Virginia, and continued until the Spring or Summer of 1865; that during that time, the books, papers and reports essential to a settlement were at Richmond, and beyond the reach of West Virginia, and that for many months after the Confederate Government (with which a large portion of Virginia was associated) had lost control of Richmond the necessary data,—owing to the unsettled conditions of the State—could not be secured. It is very evident, as a matter of public history, that for many months after Richmond passed into the hands of the Federal government and the civil war was practically closed, the conditions there existing precluded any settlement of a case of this magnitude, presenting so many questions of public interest.

It was not until February, 1866, that either State took any action looking to a settlement. The first official action taken by either State with a view to a settlement, was the resolution of the General Assembly of Virginia, adopted February 28th, 1866.

The Legislature of West Virginia was not in session when this resolution was adopted, and before its next session, the Commonwealth of Virginia instituted a suit in the Supreme Court of the United States against the State of West Virginia, claiming that the counties of Berkeley and Jefferson were never legally parts of the State of West Virginia, and asked that the boundary lines between the two states be so established as to include these counties within the boundaries of Virginia. This suit was not finally determined until March 6, 1871. (11 Wallace, 39).

As a matter of course, with area, population, relative wealth, and expenditures for internal improvements dependent upon the outcome of this issue, no settlement between the two States could be consummated during the pendency of this suit, but the West Virginia legislature, with a view of expressing a desire to settle at the earliest possible moment, at its first session after receiving notice of the Virginia resolution, adopted the following resolution on February 28, 1867.

"2. That so soon as the suit of Virginia against this State, now pending in the Supreme Court of the United States, to recover jurisdiction over the counties of Berkeley and Jefferson has been fully disposed of, the Governor of this State appoint three Commissioners on the part of this State to treat with the Commissioners appointed by the State of Virginia upon the adjustment of the public debt of said State as provided in Section IX, of 'An Ordinance to provide for the formation of a new State,' adopted by a convention of the people of Virginia on the 20th day of August, 1861 and in section VIII of Article VIII of the Constitution of West Virginia, and report their action to the Governor, to be by him communicated to the Legislature of this State for their approval or disapproval."

On the 18th day of February, 1870, the General Assembly of Virginia passed the following act:

"1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly, That three Commissioners, resident citizens of this State, be appointed by the Governor to treat with the authorities of West Virginia upon the subject of the proper adjustment of the public debt of the State of Virginia due or incurred previous to the dismemberment of the State, and of a fair division of the public property, provided, however, that the action of the said Commissioners shall be subject to the approval or disapproval of the General Assembly."

"2. The said Commissioners shall enter upon their duties without delay, and shall receive the same pay and mileage as members of the General Assembly while actually engaged in the discharge of them; and they shall within the next sixty days after their appointment, make a full report of their proceedings to this General Assembly."

This act would seem to meet the requirements of the West Virginia resolution of February 28th, 1867, but the suit in the Supreme Court of the United States was still pending, and no action by either State could be taken at that time. The Assembly of Virginia on the 11th day of February, 1871, (while the suit was still pending) adopted a joint resolution: "Tendering to West Virginia an offer to appoint arbitrators for the apportionment of the public debt, the arbitrators not to be residents of either State." The effect of this resolution was to supersede the act of February 18, 1870.

And on the 24th day of February, 1871, the West Virginia Legislature adopted another resolution replying to the Virginia resolution of February 11th, 1871, declining to appoint arbitrators who were not citizens, but inviting Virginia to appoint three disinterested citizens as Commissioners to treat with a like Commission of West Virginia, substantially repeating the offer made by Virginia in her act of February 18, 1870.

It will be observed that this resolution was adopted about ten days before the suit was decided in the Supreme Court of the United States.

By the authority of this resolution, Hon. John J. Jacobs, Governor of West Virginia, appointed a Commission consisting of Jonathan M. Bennett, Gen. John J. Jackson and A.W. Campbell, to treat with the authorities of Virginia upon the subject of the public debt. This Commission met at the city of Richmond in November, 1871, but the authorities of Virginia declined to treat with them.

It is worthy of special notice that the Commonwealth of Virginia instead of accepting the invitation of this State to appoint commissioners to treat with West Virginia in regard to the public debt, ignored the resolution and on the 30th day of March 1871, less than three weeks after the case in the Supreme Court was decided, passed the first of her so called "funding acts," and thereby assumed to settle the controversy herself without consulting the State of West Virginia, and arbitrarily apportioned to West Virginia one-third of the debt. This apportionment was made upon the assumption that inasmuch as there was included in the boundaries of West Virginia about one-third of the territory as well as about one-third of the population of Virginia, the State of West Virginia should pay one-third of the debt. This is the first of a number of statutes passed by the Assembly of Virginia known as the "funding acts" whereby Virginia undertook to provide for what she assumed to be her proportion of the debt, to-wit: two-thirds. By the terms of this act, upon the surrender of the old and the acceptance of the new bonds for two-thirds of the amount due thereon, as provided in section two of this act, there should be issued to the owner, for the other one-third of the amount due upon the old bond, stock or certificate of indebtedness so surrendered, a certificate setting forth the amount of the bond which was not funded and that payment of the said amount with interest would be provided for in accordance with such settlement as should thereafter be had between the Commonwealth of Virginia and the State of West Virginia. Under this act, a large number of certificates were placed on the market. The Commonwealth of Virginia having made this compromise with her creditors, whereby she relieved herself of the duty of paying one-third of its debt until a final settlement should be had with West Virginia, was in no hurry about the settlement. So long as it could be deferred, Virginia could not be called upon to pay her creditors any part of the debt set aside as West Virginia's share. But to make certain that Virginia should never be required to pay more than two-thirds of the amount due her creditors, an act was passed by the General Assembly on March 28th, 1879, in which it was expressly provided that "the acceptance of said certificates of West Virginia's one-third, issued under this act, shall be taken and held as a full and absolute release of the State of Virginia from all liability on account of said certificates." (See section 7 of said act.)

When the West Virginia Legislature adopted the joint resolution of February 24, 1871, authorizing the appointment of three Commissioners to treat with Virginia upon the subject of an adjustment of the public debt and inviting Virginia to appoint a like Commission, the Commonwealth of Virginia found it more convenient for her purpose to ignore this invitation and make a settlement with her creditors. From this action on the part of Virginia, it is apparent that the men in control of her affairs did not intend to make a fair and just settlement with West Virginia. If they had sincerely desired to settle, here was the opportune moment. This was, perhaps, the only time in the history of the controversy when a settlement which would have been just to both sides could have been made. The suit which had been pending in the Supreme Court for more than four years was ended a few days after the adoption of this resolution, removing this impediment. Sufficient time had elapsed since the close of the civil war to allay much of the bitter feeling between the citizens of the two states engendered from 1861 to 1865. Business had been revived to a very large extent and the machinery of the state government restored to its normal condition; and moreover, the history of the various transactions out of which the debt arose, and the equities of the two states, were fresh in the memories of men who have since died. The personnel of the Commission appointed by the Governor of West Virginia under this resolution was such as should have readily commended it to the Legislature of Virginia. The reputation of these Commissioners was well known to every public man in Virginia at that time. A. W. Campbell had been for nearly twenty years the editor of the leading daily newspaper of the State. He was a man of education, great ability, eminently just and fair, and was recognized by all as one of the best informed men in the State on all public questions. General John J. Jackson was well and favorably known in both states. He was about seventy years of age and had a wide experience in public affairs. He served several terms in the Legislature of Virginia, was a member of the Richmond Convention of 1861, and was conceded to be one of the most active and independent public men of Virginia for half a century. Any honest interest was safe in his hands. Jonathan M. Bennett, the other Commissioner, was also eminently qualified for the place. He was a man of splendid intellect, well informed, public spirited and peculiarly suited for this position by reason of his thorough knowledge of all the facts, having served as auditor of Virginia from 1857 to 1865, and thus had unusual opportunities to become acquainted with all the details of the debt. He, perhaps, better than any other living man was qualified to state this account and adjust the equities between the two States. For a settlement of this kind, West Virginia at the first practical moment made an appeal and was denied. Virginia's reply to this appeal was to place herself in a position where she could not settle. Under these circumstances it does not become the representatives of Virginia to charge West Virginia with an effort to delay settlement.

The representatives of Virginia having refused to treat with West Virginia, no further action could be taken by this State, and the Commonwealth of Virginia was content to let this matter rest for twenty-three years. On the 6th day of March, 1894 Virginia revived consideration of the question by the appointment of a Commission to make a settlement, but limited the powers of the commission by providing that "said Commission shall in no event enter into any negotiations hereunder except upon the basis that Virginia is bound only for two-thirds of the debt of the original state which she has already provided for as her equitable proportion thereof." (See Joint Resolution, Acts General Assembly of Virginia, 1893-4, p. 867.)

Of course, West Virginia could not enter into any negotiations for a settlement under such conditions; therefore, she declined the offer to negotiate by a joint resolution of her legislature adopted February 7th 1895, reading as follows:

"Resolved by the Legislature of West Virginia:

"That this Legislature hereby declines to enter into any negotiations with the debt commissioners or commission, appointed under a joint resolution adopted by the General Assembly of Virginia, in the month of March, 1894, looking to the settlement of the Virginia debt question on the basis set forth in said joint resolution."

Virginia's resolution of 1894 and West Virginia's reply of 1895, closed the efforts for the time to make settlement.

Virginia's Suit Against West Virginia.

Nothing further was done until the 26th day of February, 1906, when the Commonwealth of Virginia filed a bill in equity against the State of West Virginia in the Supreme Court of the United States seeking an adjudication of the amount due Virginia from this State. Such proceedings were had in that court, that a decree was entered in this cause on the 6th day of March, 1911, in which it was held by the court (1) that the Commonwealth of Virginia had a sufficient interest to enable her to maintain a suit, notwithstanding the fact that, by an arrangement between her creditors and herself, she had been discharged from all liability for the part of the debt assigned as West Virginia's share; that "The suit is in Virginia's own interest, none the less that she is to turn over the proceeds;"

(2) "The valuation of the real and personal property of the two states of Virginia and West Virginia on the date of their separation, excluding slaves, is the proper basis for determining the equitable proportion of the public debt of the original state of Virginia which was assumed by the state of West Virginia at the time of its creation as a state, subject to the qualifications that the difference between Virginia's share on this ratio and the amount which her creditors were content to accept from her should be deducted from the sum to be apportioned;" (3) that the valuation of the property of Virginia, excluding slaves was on June 25th, 1863 the date of the separation, $300,887,367.74, and the value of the property of West Virginia, exclusive of slaves, was on the same date, $92,416,021.65, and that Virginia was, according to this estimate, liable for 76½% of the debt and West Virginia, for 23½%. The court then arrives at the amount to be paid by West Virginia by the following process, "If our figures are correct, the difference between Virginia's share, say $25,931,261.47, and the amount that the creditors were content to accept from her, say $22,598,649.21, is $3,333,212.26; subtracting the last sum from the debt leaves $30,563,861.56 as the sum to be apportioned. Taking .235 as representing the proportion of West Virginia, we have $7,182,507.46 as her share of the principal debt."

It will be observed by this decision, West Virginia was required to pay 23½% of the original debt without deducting any credits, the Court remarking that, "It does not appear that there are any stocks of value on hand." The representatives of West Virginia had proceeded on the theory that the case would be determined upon the basis agreed upon by the "Wheeling Ordinance," and under that ordinance it was not necessary to consider the value of "stocks on hand." The settlement was to be made by charging to West Virginia all state expenditures within the limits of her territory, and a just proportion of the ordinary running expenses of the state government since any part of the debt had been contracted; and deducting therefrom the monies paid into the treasury of the Commonwealth from counties included within the boundaries of the new state, during the same period. It was upon this basis of the "Wheeling Ordinance," that the commission of 1871 ascertained the debt against West Virginia to be $953,360.23. This decision of the Supreme Court establishing a different basis of determining West Virginia's liability was a great surprise. West Virginia's case was without a defense upon this theory. There was no dispute as to the gross amount of the debt, and no attempt had been made to prove any sets-off. It was not supposed that under the pleadings, such sort of evidence would be admissible. Therefore, the Court ascertained the total debt to be apportioned to be $30,563,861.56 and that West Virginia should pay 23½% of it, making $7,182,507.46 as her part of the principal debt, leaving open the question of interest. Had interest then been allowed and computed at the rate of the decree of June 14, 1915, the judgment would have been for about $20,000,000.00. It was common knowledge of every well informed man in Virginia and West Virginia, that, on the first day of January, 1861, there were many valuable stocks in the possession of Virginia, applicable to the payment of this debt—nearly, if not entirely, enough to discharge it. More than $26,000,000.00 of assets were on hand January 1, 1861, paid for out of money derived from the sale of these bonds; but, these facts were not in proof. The evidence will show that the greater part of this debt was incurred for the purpose of building railroads, canals and turnpikes, and furnishing capital for banks East of the Alleghenies. But, the Court, under the pleadings, could not consider this. It was not a question in issue, as the case was presented, of what the old state got, but, what was expended in the new. The injustice done to West Virginia by this decision was apparent. The legislature was not then in session, and did not convene until January, 1913; but, as soon as it did convene, it adopted a joint resolution authorizing the Governor to appoint a commission of eleven members to negotiate a settlement. This commission was promptly appointed and at its solicitation, the Virginia commission met with it for a conference on July 25, 1913, but no progress was made looking to a settlement. The Virginia commissioners took the position that by the decree of March, 1911, all questions arising in the case were finally settled except the question of interest. This, of course, the West Virginians could not concede. By that decree, the indebtedness of West Virginia was ascertained by determining the amount of the public debt of Virginia and West Virginia's equitable proportion thereof and not by the terms of the "Wheeling Ordinance." West Virginia readily acquiesced in this decision and expressed her willingness to settle upon this basis, provided only that the assets held by Virginia and appropriated to the payment of the debt be so applied. To this, the Virginia commissioners and representatives strenuously objected.

The West Virginia commissioners, as soon as they were appointed, proceeded to make a full and critical examination of the entire case, and especially to ascertain the facts so far as they could be discovered at that late day, and to make an inventory of the loans and investments and the securities held for the payment of the public debt. The desired information could be found only in the public records of Virginia at Richmond and in the offices of the corporations issuing the stocks. His Excellency, Governor Hatfield, took a leading part in these investigations. He could not have acted with more vigor had it been a purely personal accounting. The Attorney General, Honorable A. A. Lilly and the private counsel called to his aid, together with the State Tax Commissioner, Honorable Fred O. Blue, and his industrious and competent accountants, entered vigorously into this laborious and intricate work. Indeed, the entire state was aroused, not to say indignant, at the idea of having to pay $7,000,000.00 and fifty years interest thereon to the speculators in Virginia bonds, and all gave willing and valuable aid. By the month of February, 1914—about six months from the time the investigation was begun—the West Virginia commission had secured sufficient data to justify a proposition of settlement. Arrangements were accordingly made for a joint meeting of the commissions of the two states at Washington, D. C., March 4, 1914. At this meeting, the West Virginia commissioners, recognizing the difficulty of proving the value of these sets-off at that time, and desiring to do ample justice and settle the controversy finally, made a proposition by way of compromise. A statement showing in detail the assets and their value, for which West Virginia claimed credit upon the decree for $7,182,507.46 was furnished the Virginia commission. This statement showed that after making large deductions for losses and deteriorations, these assets were worth, on the first day of January, 1861, $20,810,357.17; that West Virginia's equity therein of 23½% as decreed by the Supreme Court would be $4,890,434.12, but that West Virginia had received bank stock included in the above computation amounting to $260,200.00 which should be charged to her, less $225,078.06 on account of money collected by Virginia as taxes after 1863, leaving the net amount due the old Commonwealth $2,327,195.29, which sum the West Virginia commission offered to recommend the payment of. This did not include the payment of any interest after January 1, 1861.

There are many reasons why no interest should be charged to West Virginia in this settlement. The Virginia Commission indignantly refused to consider the proposition or even discuss it, insisting that there was no question open in the case except the amount of interest to be added to the sum of $7,182,507.46.

There was no question as to the existence of these assets or of Virginia's having taken possession and disposed of them, nor was it pretended that Virginia had ever accounted to West Virginia for any of them, and whatever contention there might have been as to the value of some of these stocks, it could not be said that they were of no value, and all must admit that West Virginia was entitled to credit for the value of those assets. Yet the proposition was summarily declined, and emphasis given it by refusing to even consider the proposition, for no other reason than, according to their view, the principal sum to be paid by West Virginia had been irrevocably fixed. This immense sum of $4,890,434.12, asserted by West Virginia as the value of these credits omitted at the time this decree was entered, did not impress itself upon the Virginia Commission as worthy of any consideration, no matter what merit there might be in it. They could not avoid knowing that these assets had some value, and that West Virginia was entitled to some credit not allowed at the time the decree was entered. The Supreme Court had said that "the liability of West Virginia is a deep seated equity." Can less be said of her interest in these assets?

The Virginia Commissioners deemed it proper to invoke a technical rule of law applicable to private litigants, who have had a day in court, disregarding that the court had said that "This case is to be considered in the untechnical spirit proper for dealing with a quasi-international controversy." and that, "This is no ordinary commercial suit, but, * * * a quasi-international difference referred to this court in reliance upon the honor and constitutional obligations of the States concerned rather than upon ordinary remedies." The case was then pending in the Supreme Court and had not passed beyond the reach of the court to correct any injustice which had been done to West Virginia by omission. And certainly it was not too late for Virginia to have corrected any wrong done to West Virginia. The Virginia Commission having refused to consider the propositions, without regard to their merit, the West Virginia Commissioners were compelled to abandon all further efforts to negotiate a settlement, and appeal to the court to correct the wrong. Thereupon, the Attorney General of West Virginia, asked permission of the court to file a supplementary answer setting up the existence of these assets and asking to have them allowed in diminution of the amount fixed by the court as West Virginia's share of the debt. This motion was so manifestly just and proper, that, although stubbornly resisted by the attorneys for Virginia and the bond holders, it was promptly allowed, the supplemental answer was filed, and the case again referred to a commissioner or master for taking proof. The existence of the assets, and the possession and disposal of them by Virginia were conceded, and the right to have their value applied as a credit to the decree of March 6, 1911, scarcely contested. But great difficulty was experienced in proving their value. Virginia's delay in bringing the case before the court had well nigh destroyed all the evidence. Very few persons then living were old enough in 1861 to have personal knowledge of these business transactions and all the documentary evidence was in the possession of Virginia. Upon the final trial, the court reached the conclusion that West Virginia had proven these assets to have been worth on the first day of January, 1861, the sum of $14,929,161.44; West Virginia's equity therein of 23 1/2% was worth $3,508,352.94, for which she is entitled to a credit on the decree of March 6, 1911. After deducting from this amount, $541,467.76, money and securities received by West Virginia, there is left a balance of $4,215,622.28, principal, instead of $7,182,507.46 as found by the decree of 1911. To this principal sum, the Court adds $8,178,307.22 interest to July 1, 1915, making a total of principal and interest of $12,393,929.50. A formal judgment was rendered by the Supreme Court on June 14, 1915, in favor of Virginia against West Virginia for that amount with interest thereon at 5% after July 1, 1915. And by this decree, it was also ordered that each of the parties should pay one-half the costs.

The End of the Controversy.

It may be asked whether or not this formal judgment does not end this case; to which I would reply that if it were an ordinary law suit, it might and doubtless would be held that this is a final judgment and ends the controversy, but it must be remembered that this case has been considered by the court from the beginning "in the untechnical spirit proper for dealing with a quasi-international question" and that "it is not an ordinary suit concerning differences between individuals, but is a controversy between states involving grave questions of public law" as well as the good faith and honor of two states of the Union.

We want this question settled speedily, but want it settled right. There is no room for criticism or complaint of the court. The judges have always acted with fairness and impartiality, and have been uniformly indulgent and patient. But the members of that court had no personal knowledge of the controversy. They were compelled to rely upon the testimony of men who were relating occurrences more than half a century old, and who were attempting to fix values upon property about which they could have little knowledge. Under these circumstances no doubt this great court will indulge the people of West Virginia, in further investigation, if it be made to appear to the court that any injustice has been done us which the court has power to correct.

This case does not involve simply a question of money; if that were all, we could afford to be less persistent. In it is the greater question of whether or not during all these years West Virginia has been attempting to avoid a solemn contract made by her people at the polls and incorporated into her constitution as the price of her statehood. Viewing the case in this light, it is clearly the duty of the representatives of West Virginia to pursue the investigation and litigation until complete justice is done the state.

It is frequently suggested that the Federal Government should assume the payment of West Virginian's share of this debt. I have noticed with deep regret that certain persons have based this claim upon the proposition that West Virginia was created a state by Congress without legal authority and as a war measure by mere force of arms. To all such intimations and accusations I want here and now to enter my most solemn protest. There are many good and sufficient reasons why the Federal Government should save West Virginia harmless in this behalf, but this is not one of them.

Why the Federal Government Should Pay.

I beg to suggest at least two reasons why in my opinion the Federal Government should reimburse West Virginia:

1. When the state of Virginia adopted the ordinance of secession and withdrew her allegiance from the Union, the counties now composing the state of West Virginia immediately took steps to restore the state Government. By this means one-third of the commonwealth was kept out of secession and was officially restored to its place in the Union without any effort upon the part of the national government. The benefit of this movement in behalf of the general government cannot be estimated. Virginia bordered on the Pennsylvania line one hundred and twenty miles and along the Ohio river two hundred and fifty miles.

This movement meant more than mere military occupation. It was the reestablishment of civil government with the authority to enforce law and order, recognizing the Constitution of the United States as the supreme law of the land.

Had the people west of the Alleghenies been as loyal to the Confederate government as were the people east, the line of battle in Virginia would have been established along the Ohio and upper Potomac. The national capital would have been continually menaced, many thousand men would have been required to protect the borders of Maryland, Pennsylvania and Ohio—the gateway to the northern, middle and western states; the great Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, so valuable to the Union cause during the war, would have been in the hands of the Confederates. Many of the great battles of the war would have been fought in the Ohio valley instead of along the Potomac and James. Certainly these things appeal to the Congress of the United States.

2. There is another and perhaps stronger reason from a financial standpoint, why the United States government should intervene. West Virginia furnished more than twenty thousand volunteer soldiers for the Union army. These soldiers, by order of the Government, aided in destroying many of the properties belonging to Virginia in which these soldiers had substantial interests, and which are involved in this controversy. In other words, these West Virginia soldiers aided in shooting the values out of their own property by direction of the Government. Under these circumstances it would seem to be a simple act of justice for the Congress of the United States by appropriate legislation to indemnify and save West Virginia harmless.

The Remedy.

But it is unnecessary to consider ways and means for the payment while the amount is in dispute. The people of this state who are familiar with the transactions out of which this debt arose are not satisfied with the apportionment, and will insist on further investigation and reduction. They can rely upon Governor Hatfield to do all that can be done to protect the interests of the state. The judgment is against West Virginia and in favor of Virginia as appears from the record; but Virginia has in fact but little, if indeed any, financial interest in it. The men who hope to receive the money are the holders of the so-called "West Virginia Certificates." They are the men who have always stood in the way of a fair and equitable adjustment of this controversy by the two States and they are the people who are now denouncing the citizens of West Virginia as repudiationists. These men should have learned after two score years of experience with the people of West Virginia that their taunts and threats are unavailing. This desire on the part of our people to ask for further investigation of the merits of Virginia's demand must not be construed as hostility to the courts or of resistance to their mandates. Nothing of the kind is intended. We must not let our enemies place us in a false position before the world.

The Bond-Holders' Unjust Demands.

It will be remembered that the holders of these certificates, in the beginning, insisted that West Virginia must pay one-third of the whole debt, or more than $11,000,000, and assailed the character of the state in all the money markets of this country and England, because her people dared to question the correctness of this demand; that when the Supreme Court of the United States upon Virginia's own showing, and without any proof whatever on the part of West Virginia, reduced the principal amount to about $7,000,000, these same people sought by every possible means to force West Virginia to pay this sum, with a large amount of interest, before the court had the opportunity to hear West Virginia; and now that this claim has been further reduced, leaving the principal sum less than $4,000,000, they have renewed their attack accompanied with all sorts of dire threats.

West Virginia Not Deterred By Threats.

These men may as well understand that their clamor and abuse will go for naught. The reduction of the principal sum from $11,000,000 to $4,000,000 means, including interest, more than $20,000,000 which these men would have taken from the people of West Virginia, wrongfully and unjustly, as has been clearly shown by the decrees of the court.

Further Investigation.

It requires much time and great labor to secure evidence almost destroyed by the ravages of time. For more than forty years the holders of these certificates have endeavored to enforce payment by slander and threats. They have not succeeded in convincing any one that West Virginia is either insolvent or dishonest. For nearly a half century the poisoned "arrows of calumny" have been hurled at her by Wall Street machines, but all have fallen short of the mark and "lie harmless" at her feet. In all these years of controversy the attitude of West Virginia has been without reproach; she has always declared her willingness to pay her equitable portion of the debt, but has insisted with equal firmness that "he who asks equity must do equity". She has marched straight forward, turning neither to the right hand nor to the left, heedless alike of the taunts and threats on one side, and of the temptation on the other—even under great provocations—to disregard her obligations.

I hazard nothing in saying that the policy of West Virginia will be in the future, as it has been in the past, to defend with firmness the rights, and guard with jealous care the honor of a great State.

MR. BLAINE'S PLAN FOR THE PAYMENT OF WEST VIRGINIA'S PROPORTION OF THE VIRGINIA DEBT.

In his "Twenty Years of Congress," beginning on page 466 of Volume 1, the Hon. James G. Blaine, after recounting the various steps leading up to the dismemberment of Virginia and the admission of West Virginia into the Union, comments as follows on the public debt of Virginia and the equitable considerations involved in its settlement and payment:

"But the cause of the Union was aided by the addition of another loyal commonwealth, and substantial justice was done to the brave people of the new state who by their loyalty had earned the right to be freed from domination which had fretted them and from the association which was uncongenial to them.

Blow Heavy to Virginia.

"To the old State of Virginia the blow was a heavy one. In the years following the war it added seriously to her financial embarrassment, and it has in many ways obstructed her prosperity. As a punitive measure for the chastening of Virginia it cannot be defended. Assuredly there was no ground for distressing Virginia by penal enactments that did not apply equally to every other state of the Confederacy. Common justice revolts at the selection of one man for punishment from eleven who have all been guilty of the same offense. If punishment had been designed, there was equal reason for stripping Texas of her vast domain and for withdrawing the numerous land grants which had been generously made by the national government to many of the states in rebellion. But Texas was allowed to emerge from the contest without the forfeiture of an acre and Congress so far from withdrawing the land grants by which other southern states were to be enriched, took pains to renew them in the years succeeding the war. The autonomy of Virginia alone was disturbed. Upon Virginia alone fell the penalty which if due to any was due to all.

"Another consideration is of great weight. An innocent third party was involved. Virginia owed a large debt held in great part by loyal citizens of the north and by subjects of foreign countries. The burden was already as heavy as she could bear in her entirety, and dismemberment so crippled her that she could not meet her obligations. The United States might well have relieved Virginia and have done justice to her creditors by making some allowance for the division of her territory. Regarding her only as entitled to the rights of a public enemy so long as she warred upon the Union, we may confidently maintain that she is entitled at least to as just and magnanimous treatment as the national government extends to a foreign foe. In our war with Mexico it became our interest to acquire a large part of the territory owned by that republic. We had conquered her armies and were in possession of her capital. She was helpless in our hands. But the high sense of justice which has always distinguished the United States in her public policies would not permit the despoilment of Mexico. We negotiated therefore for the territory needed and paid for it a larger price than would have been given by any other nation in the world. The American government went still further. Many of our citizens held large claims against Mexico and the failure to pay them had been one of the causes that precipitated hostilities. Our government in addition to the money consideration of $15,000,000 which we paid for territory, agreed to exonerate Mexico from all demands of our citizens, and to pay them from our own treasury. This supplementary agreement cost the national treasury nearly $4,000,000.

West Virginia Not Responsible.

"If the United States were willing to place Virginia on the basis on which they magnanimously placed Mexico after the conquest of that republic, a sufficient allowance would be made to her to compensate at least for that part of her public debt which might presumptively be represented by the territory taken from her. If it be said in answer to such a suggestion that it would be fairer for West Virginia to assume the proportional obligation thus indicated, the prompt rejoinder is that in equity her people are not held to such obligation. The public improvements for which the debt was in large part incurred had not been so far completed as to benefit West Virginia when the civil war began,—their advantages being mainly confined to the Tidewater and Piedmont sections of the State. There is indeed neither moral nor legal responsibility resting upon West Virginia for any part of the debt of the old state.

"In determining the relative obligations of the national government and of the government of West Virginia concerning the debt, it is of the first importance to remember that the new state was not primarily organized and admitted to the Union for the benefit of her own people but in far larger degree for the benefit of the people of the whole Union. The organic law would not have been strained, legal fictions would not have been invented, contradictory theories would not have been indulged, if a great national interest had not demanded the creation of West Virginia.

If it had not been apparent that the organization of West Virginia was an advantage to the loyal cause; if the border state policy of Mr. Lincoln so rigidly adhered to throughout the contest had not required this link for the completion of its chain,—the wishes of the people most directly involved would never have had the slightest attention from the congress of the United States. Strong and equitable as was the case of West Virginia, irritating and undesirable as her relations to the older state might be, advantageous to the people as the new government might prove, these considerations would not of themselves have offered sufficient inducement to engage the attention of Congress for an hour at that critical period. They would have been brushed aside and disregarded with cool indifference by which all great legislative bodies prove how easy it is to endure the misery of other people. West Virginia, indeed, got only what was equitably due and what she was entitled to claim by the natural right of self-government. The war brought good fortune to her, as conspicuously as it brought ill fortune to the older state from which she was wrenched. West Virginia is to be congratulated and her creditable career and untiring enterprise since she assumed the responsibilities of self-government show how well she deserved the boon. But the wounds inflicted on the mother state by her separation will never be healed until Virginia is relieved from the odium of having been specially selected from the eleven seceding states for the punishment that struck at once against her prosperity and against her pride of empire.

Virginia The Creditor.

“Nor should it be forgotten that the state of Virginia before the war might well be regarded as the creditor and not the debtor of the national government. One of her earliest acts of patriotism as an independent state was the cession to the general government of her superb domain on the north side of the Ohio river from the sale of which more than $100,000,000 have been paid into the national treasury. A suggestive contrast is presented today between the condition of Virginia and the condition of Texas and Florida. It was the aggressive disunionism of the two latter states which aided powerfully in dragging Virginia into rebellion. But for the urgency of the seven original confederate states in which Texas and Florida were numbered, Virginia loyalists would have been able to hold their state firm in her national allegiance. Since the war Texas has travelled the highway to wealth and power founded on the ownership of her public lands of which the national government could have deprived her with as little difficulty as was found in dividing Virginia. Florida has likewise enjoyed general prosperity and secured rapid development from the resources of land which the national government had generously given her before the war and of which she was not deprived for her acts of rebellion. True-hearted Americans rejoice in the prosperity of these states which adorn the southern border of the republic; but they cannot help seeing and seeing with regret how differently the ancient commonwealth of Virginia has fared at the hands of the national government.

“If the hurt to Virginia were of a general character which could not be specified or defined, her case might be passed over with the plea of damnum absque injuria. But unfortunately,—or it may be fortunately—the detriment to her public credit can be stated with substantial precision, and can be traced directly to her despoilment. That took from her the power to pay her debt. If the harm resulting therefrom were confined to the state and to the holders of her securities the national government might the more easily disregard the equities of the case. But Virginia's embarrassment is of widespread concern and injuriously affects the public credit of other states. Nor can it be said that the precedent of aiding Virginia could be quoted for aid to every state that might get into financial trouble. It could be quoted only for the case—which will perhaps never again occur—where the national government shall strip the state of a large and valuable part of her territory and thus take from her the ability to meet her obligations. The precedent might then be quoted and should be unhesitatingly followed.

"In the formal and necessarily austere administration of public affairs there is little room for the interposition of sentiment. Yet sentiment has its place. We stimulate the ardor of patriotism by the mere display of the flag which has no material force but which is emblematic of all material force and typifies the glory of the nation. We stir the ambition of the living by rearing costly monuments to the heroic dead. It may surely be pardoned if Americans shall feel a deep personal interest in the good name and good fortune of a state so closely identified with the early renown of the republic,—a state with whose soil is mingled the dust of those to whom all states and all generations are debtors,—the father of his country, the author of the Declaration of Independence, the chief projector of the national Constitution."

The local rate is applicable to parcels intended for delivery at the office of mailing or on a rural route starting therefrom.

It will be observed that the rates of postage are largely reduced and that the limit of weight is increased from four to eleven pounds. Parcels will be delivered at all free-delivery offices and to patrons residing on rural and star routes; they may be registered and may be accorded special-delivery service on payment of the usual fees, and they may be insured against loss in an amount equivalent to their actual value, but not to exceed $25, upon payment of a fee of five cents. Distinctive stamps must be used on all parcels, but they may be mailed in quantities of not less than 2,000 identical pieces without stamps affixed, the postage being paid in money.

FOURTH-CLASS (PARCEL POST) MATTER.

32. The rates of postage on fourth-class or parcel post matter—to be fully prepaid—unsealed—are as follows:

(a) Parcels weighing 4 ounces or less, except books, seeds, plants, etc., 1 cent for each ounce or fraction thereof, any distance.

(b) Parcels weighing 8 ounces or less containing books, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions, and plants, 1 cent for each 2 ounces or fraction thereof, regardless of distance.

(c) Parcels weighing more than 8 ounces containing books, seeds, plants, etc., parcels of miscellaneous printed matter weighing more than 4 pounds, and all other parcels of fourth-class matter weighing more than 4 ounces are chargeable, according to distance or zone, at the pound rates shown in the following table, a fraction of a pound being considered a full pound:
